HERRIOT OPENS RUHR TO 7,000 GERMANS EXILED BY POINCARE

PARIS, June 16.—Premier Herriot will read his ministerial declaration in Parliament tomorrow when will begin the debate which it is not doubted, will end in a vote of confidence in the new Government.

Facing the difficult task of reparation negotiations, the situation has been clarified for the new Premier by the action of the Ruhr Industrialists in agreeing to prolong for fifteen days the Micum accords which came to an end yesterday. This enables him to discuss the situation with Prime Minister MacDonald next week-end under better circumstances. It was announced today at Coblenz that 7,000 Germans expelled from the Ruhr under the Poincaré régime are to be allowed to return. There is thought to be connection between the two developments.

Premier Herriot's declaration is expected to follow the lines of his letter and program sent to the Socialists when he asked their support. The Premier stated this evening that it would be long because under the delicate conditions he wished to be entirely explicit. Reliable indications as to the Radicals' intention to go to England to confer with the Prime Minister if the debate was finished by Friday. He counts on spending three days with Mr. MacDonald to discuss chiefly putting the Dawes plan into operation.

As understood in Paris tonight, M. Herriot will proclaim his intention to make Germany pay reparations and disarm. On reparations the Dawes report forms the basis of policy, whereas, he will point to the nomination of General Nollet as Minister of War as proof of his intention to deal with the German military situation on the basis of facts.

It is believed he will link the reduction of the military service term with disarmament in a manner to postpone the issue until some arrangement for French security has been reached. At the same time he will state his conviction that with the return of peace-time conditions the eighteen months' term should be cut.

He will recommend that France turn to the League of Nations as the proper organization to assure her against another German attack.

Will Announce New Ruhr Policy.

It is expected that M. Herriot will announce the abandonment of the Poincaré policy of remaining in the Ruhr until reparations have been paid in full, but will add that France will hold on to the Ruhr until Germany has taken the necessary steps to permit full operation of the experts' reparations payment system.

M. Herriot is believed to have entirely made up his mind to suppress the French Ambassador at the Vatican as well as the Law on Congregations, which the Radicals have always considered contrary to the policy France adopted twenty years ago toward the Catholic Church.

He is expected to announce his willingness to allow State employes to form labor unions and to recommend abolition of the decree laws obtained by M. Poincaré as part of the program for effecting economies.

Little has been divulged as to his declaration on amnesty, but it is generally believed that the Premier will exempt deserters and traitors from the pardon measure he plans for those convicted of political offenses.

Fight Against Army Reduction.

There is going to be a bitter struggle over the project to reduce the army by cutting the period of military service. The last official act of Minister of War Maginot, who gives way to General Nollet, was a statement to the French public declaring that in present conditions it would be suicidal for France to place herself in danger by making the military force smaller.

The Matin tomorrow morning will announce the beginning by M. Maginot of the fight against M. Herriot's proposal, taking the stand that "the German army is ready morally and materially to undertake a campaign." M. Maginot's stand is especially important since he is the leader of the National bloc in the Chamber which has only about forty votes less than M. Herriot's fragile majority.

M. Maginot says the Poincaré Government did its best to give France an able and stable army under the eighteen months law, and adds: "To touch its organization, based on the service of eighteen months, would be a grave and irremediable fault in existing circumstances." M. Maginot continues that while it is true young Frenchmen may be taught military duties in less than eighteen months France has need of the number of soldiers this rules gives her. "It suffices," he says, "to read the reports of General Nollet as head of the Disarmament Commission to show that France must remain on guard. Our enemies of yesterday have disarmed neither materially nor morally. Their

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Supreme Court lost ground during the term just closed in its effort to catch up with the docket.

Although 35 fewer cases were filed during the term than during the previous year, the court completed its work last Monday with 412 cases on its docket awaiting consideration, or 44 more than one year ago.

In addition the court had on hand awaiting decision 26 cases which had been fully argued and presented.

MACDONALD GIVES WARNING TO MEXICO

EXPLAINS CASE IN COMMONS

Charges Mexico With Breach of International Courtesy—Cummins Holds Out in Legation.

LONDON, June 16.—Prime Minister MacDonald had an interview in his room at the House of Commons today with the Consul General for Mexico, Alexander Carrillo, and intimated to him that Sir Thomas Hohler would not leave for Mexico until the dispute as to the proposed expulsion of Herbert A. C. Cummins, the British Chargé des Archives, had been adjusted.

He further indicated that the British Government took a very grave view of the incident as a breach of international courtesy.

Replying to questions in the House of Commons today, Prime Minister MacDonald said that for some time there had been friction between the Mexican Government and Mr. Cummins, the British Government being unable to agree that complaints made against Mr. Cummins were justified.

"On May 13 I was informed that if Mr. Cummins were not withdrawn he would be expelled on the 10th inst.," the Prime Minister added. "I have been desirous of regularizing our relations with Mexico for some time and decided that Sir Thomas Hohler should go out on a special mission and report to me. On his arrival Mr. Cummins was to leave.

"On April 15 that information was sent officially to the Mexican Government, and I trusted matters would be allowed to rest there. The Mexican Government have, however, not only declined to withdraw their notice of expulsion, but are apparently in ways reported in the press proceeding to carry it out.

"His Majesty's Government regard the action of the Mexican Government as a grave breach of international courtesy, but I am still waiting for further information as a result of communications I have made to the Mexican Government. I can only add at the present moment that I have informed the Mexican Government that in the event of their taking steps against Mr. Cummins with which his Majesty's Government did not concur the Hohler mission could not be proceeded with."

Asked what were the charges against Mr. Cummins, Mr. MacDonald replied:

"The allegations made by the Mexican Government against Mr. Cummins amount briefly to this, that Mr. Cummins made rude communications to the Mexican Government."

A Unionist member, Mr. McNeill, asked:

"Has friction arisen owing to Mr. Cummins's representations on behalf of the rights of British subjects on instructions from the British Government?"

Mr. MacDonald replied:

"That is an accurate description of the trouble that has arisen. During my time the whole idea I had in mind was that by regularizing our relations with the Mexican Government we would be in a very much better position than we are now to look after those rights."

The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent says: "The Prime Minister yesterday conferred with the American Ambassador, it is presumed in connec-

FALLON KEPT IN JAIL; COURT WON'T ACCEPT HIS $35,000 SURETY

BROTHER SUPPLIED $20,000

Remaining $15,000 Fails to Come Up to the Court's Requirements.

TRIAL IS SET FOR JULY 7

Lawyer Will Make Another Attempt Today for Release Under Bail.

William J. Fallon, who was arrested last Saturday as a fugitive from justice, had an opportunity yesterday to obtain his release on bail pending trial. He raised the $35,000 cash required. But he failed to satisfy the demands of Federal Judge John C. Knox for information as to the source of the money, the Court having required that the source be such as to preclude any possibility that the money was put up by persons who might benefit by Fallon's permanent disappearance.

Fallon, therefore, went back last evening to his cell in the Tombs. He said he would appear again this morning before Judge Knox in a further attempt to convince the Court that his financial backers were his relatives and close friends and that none among them could obtain any benefit from his act if he were to jump bail.

He spent all of the day in the Federal Building in custody of United State Marshal William C. Hecht after a court session in the forenoon in which Fallon's plea for bail at $20,000 was denied and after July 7 had been set as the date for his trial on the charge of bribing Charles W. Rendigs, a juror in the trial in 1922 of Durrell-Gregory & Co., Inc., and others accused of defrauding stock investors through the mails. It was Fallon's failure to answer the trial call on June 2, when he jumped a bail bond of $5,000, that brought about his present predicament.

Prisoner Gay in Court.

The lawyer exhibited no nervousness when brought to court yesterday. He smiled at friends in the courtroom who greeted him after the proceedings and chatted gayly with relatives throughout the day. He had shaved the small mustache that had been grown as a disguise during his voluntary exile for three weeks in an apartment in Academy Street. In court he was in his best fettle. Indeed, he took matters out of the hands of his attorney, John J. Curtin, and his law partner, Eugene F. McGee, and himself made an impassioned address to the Court in which he ridiculed the idea that he had intended to make himself a life exile. As Fallon entered, Colonel William Hayward and Assistant Federal Attorney William J. Millard came in to oppose motion for reduction of the $25,000 bail imposed Saturday when Fallon was arraigned before Judge Knox in the Kingsbridge Police Station.

"In view of the fact that the Government experienced much difficulty in apprehending this defendant we are in duty bound to ask for bail of $100,000," said Mr. Millard.

Attorney Curtin thereupon asked reduction to $20,000, saying that was all the defendant was certain at the moment of being able to raise.

"When he was arraigned Saturday, the defendant said he did not intend to leave the jurisdiction when he disappeared, but it was his desire to arrange bail," said Judge Knox. "He said he had directed his partner to give the Federal Attorney his message as to his intentions."

Here Fallon took up his own cause, saying: "I sent word down that I would be here as soon as I could make an arrangement to furnish bail. I had no intention of not meeting this issue. I understood my message was delivered. My friend, Mayor Frederick E. Weeks of White Plains, I understood, was in communication with Colonel Hayward on the subject. I tried lately to get in

Thiers Pearls Sold for 11,286,000 Francs; Buyer Said to Be Acting for an American

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—Eleven million two hundred and eighty thousand francs (at yesterday's exchange rates about $658,244) was the price paid this afternoon for the famous pearl necklace of Mme. Thiers, which she bought about sixty years ago for 234,000 francs. The buyer, M. de Lopez Terragoya, is a well-known Parisian pearl merchant. It is stated that he bought it for an American client, but he and his assistants refused to divulge the name, saying that the purchase was a purely personal business deal.

The sale, which attracted a large crowd of fashionable Parisians, was notable both because of the historic interest of the jewels and the fact that it took place in the unusual setting of the Louvre Museum, in the great hall beneath the famous "Winged Victory" of Samothrace, which, however, was hidden for the occasion behind red velvet curtains.

There was hot competition for the pearls. Among the would-be buyers being Baron Henry de Rothschild and Oscar Kahn, heads of famous jewelry firms in the Rue de la Paix.

The necklace, which consists of 145 pearls in three strands, weighs 2,138 grains. The three strands were first offered separately. M. de Lopez bid 2,300,000 francs for the first and 2,950,000 for the second. A famous Place Vendôme house bid 4,000,000 for the third and largest. The necklace was then put up as a whole, with its clasp.

Paul Léon, Director of the Fine Arts Department, under whose authority the sale was held, expressed himself as well satisfied with the result. He said he had expected that the necklace would go for not more than 9,000,000 francs. The sum was turned over to museum funds and to the charitable organization called the Thiers Foundation.

The sale was decided upon because the Fine Arts Department considered that the pearls did not possess enough artistic value to justify their retention by the Louvre Museum.

PARIS, June 16 (Associated Press).—Mme. Thiers, whose husband, Louis Adolphe Thiers, was once President of France, purchased one by one the pearls sold at the Louvre today.

While in the custody of the Louvre the gems were insured for 8,000,000 francs. It required an act of Parliament to authorize their sale. The proceeds will be divided into three equal parts and turned over to the State museums, the Thiers Foundation and the Doane Asylum. The foundation and the asylum, both endowed by Thiers's bequests, have lately been in straitened circumstances owing to the decreased value of the franc. Mme. Thiers was Mlle. Dosne before her marriage to M. Thiers.

U.S.S. West Virginia Is Damaged on Shoals; Forced Back With Navy's Olympic Squad

NORFOLK, Va., June 16.—The battleship West Virginia, which sailed today from Hampton Roads for France with the navy contingent of the American Olympic team aboard, went aground in a soft mud bank on the north side of the Thimble Shoal Channel in lower Chesapeake Bay, opposite No. 8 buoy, at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Three tugs, two mine sweepers and a destroyer tender stood by the ship until high tide early this evening, when they pulled her free.

A preliminary examination, officers said, indicated that the damage could be repaired in a few hours.

The West Virginia proceeded to Lynn Haven Roads to anchor for minor repairs, made necessary by the cracking of a condenser head and the losing of a tower when she struck.

The vessel grounded during a heavy rainstorm. According to reports, she was proceeding down the channel when mud was sucked into her condensers by the dischargers and the power immediately shut off. Helpless, she drifted to the north side of the channel, where she stuck fast. There was said to have been no civilian pilot aboard.

It was the shakedown cruise of the ship.

Secretary Wilbur sent the following message to the Olympic men aboard the battleship:

"I hope and confidently expect that you will have every success in connection with the Olympic Games. Your progress will be followed with the greatest interest by the navy."

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Navy Department was advised late today of the accident to the battleship West Virginia. After detailing the extent of the damage, the message said:

"Repairs can be effected at Hampton Roads. Require services of navy yard men. A master electric welder is being sent out to the West Virginia on the destroyer Hatfield."

The West Virginia and her sister ship, the Colorado, are the latest additions to the navy and are its most powerful units. Her displacement is 32,800 tons and her length 624 feet, or nearly 75 feet longer than the Washington Monument. She draws 30½ feet of water.

LAD FREED BY ESSAY HELD AGAIN AS THIEF

SWINDLES B. ALTMAN & CO.

Buys $472 Worth of Clothes Under Another's Name "to Go Into Business for Himself."

Vincent De Pascal, the youth who won his freedom from the New York State Reformatory at Elmira only six months ago by writing four essays on advertising, and who since then had been living an industrious life in the employ of a man who had befriended him, was locked up in the Tombs yesterday.

De Pascal explained his plight by saying he was too ambitious. A wish to go into business for himself had been his undoing. He pleaded guilty to grand larceny, and detectives, who have little sentiment in such matters, said it would take more than essay writing to get him out of Sing Sing for some years to come.

The story that was unfolded in the Yorkville Court was that De Pascal called at the store of B. Altman & Co. on June 2, and representing himself to be David Evans Jr. of 272 Midland Avenue, Montclair, bought on credit merchandise worth $472. His taste ran to clothing, and, after selecting a wardrobe trunk, De Pascal picked out suits and shirts and ties and hosiery and jewelry and hats. These he ordered sent, in the name he had assumed, to the home of M. J. W. Lappe, at Rockland Lake, N. Y., from whom, it developed later, he had rented a room, ostensibly for the season.

De Pascal Gets the Goods.

On July 7 De Pascal went to Rockland Lake. He was cautious about his movements. He did not first go to the home of Mr. Lappe, but dropped in on the ticket agent.

"Hello," he said, jauntily. "Any goods come for David Evans Jr.? I'm staying up at Lappe's."

The agent admitted many packages had arrived.

"Let's see the receipts," De Pascal suggested, genially, and the agent complied with the request.

De Pascal was satisfied. He went up to Mr. Lappe's home. He had paid nothing there, but he packed up all the things that had arrived and left, saying he was running down to Atlantic City for a day or two.

Two days later De Pascal again was at Altman's. He ordered many more things, and that bill for $400 also was charged to Mr. Evans in Montclair. This merchandise, like the first lot, was sent up to Rockland Lake, but with it went John F. Larkin, chief house detective at Altman's, and Detective John F. Marron of the Fifth Avenue Squad, whom Larkin had called in.

The store's suspicions were aroused after the first purchase. Larkin called up the Evans home in Montclair, and it happened that David Evans, just back from Boston "Tech," where he had been graduated a day or two before, answered the call.

"Why, no," young Evans said. "I've ordered no goods and I am not staying at Rockland Lake."

Detectives Await Impersonator.

The detectives were ready for De Pascal when he arrived on Saturday at noon, but he had a surprise for them. They had "covered" the station agent and the Post Office and were in the Lappe home, having given instructions all around to say in response to calls or telephone inquiries that some goods had come for Evans and that no one had arrived from New York. The surprise was the arrival of De Pascal on a motorcycle. As he drove up to the house he turned completely around, leaving his car facing down hill.

"If there was anything wrong," he said later, "I intended to skip out of the house, hop on the motorcycle and you never would have got me."

That scheme failed because when De Pascal entered the house Larkin and Marron stepped out and took him into the living room. There he admitted that his name was Vincent De Pascal and said he had ordered the goods because he planned to go to Cleveland to start up an advertising business of his own.

"I didn't seem to be able to get enough money," De Pascal explained. "I got a job that paid me only $25 a week. That wasn't enough, so I worked nights in a moving picture theatre and earned $10 more. Even so I didn't seem to be get-

14 FIREMEN BURNED IN GASOLINE BLAST

QUICK RESCUE BY COMRADES

A slight fire in the private garage of Miss Alice A. De Lamar at 143 East Fortieth Street yesterday afternoon caused a tank containing 275 gallons of gasoline to explode, injuring eighteen persons. Of those caught in the flames was Battalion Chief Thomas Murtha, and he was so severely burned that it was said at Bellevue Hospital that his condition was critical.

Leading his men and directing the playing of hose lines, Chief Murtha was within a few feet of the tank when the explosion occurred. Fourteen firemen, three employes of the Consolidated Gas Company and a civilian who had been peering down the street opening to the cellar of the garage were burned.

Firemen Caught in Cellar.

Shortly after 4 o'clock a man passing the garage noticed smoke coming from the street opening in the pavement. He sent in an alarm while another man aroused C. T. Brown, Miss De Lamar's chauffeur, who, with his wife and daughter, lives above the garage. Chief Murtha and the first of the men to respond found a pile of smoking rubbish in the cellar. The aspect of the fire was not alarming and a crowd of mildly curious gathered across the street watching the firemen open the two iron doors at the side of the building, drop a ladder down the opening and start laying hose lines. The only evidence of a fire at that time was a little smoke coming from the opening.

Chief Murtha with Lieutenants Jackson and Crowe entered the garage and went into the cellar, while the members of Truck 2 and Engine 21 were busy carrying the lines through the street opening. The officers were within several feet of the gasoline tank when the explosion occurred. There was a dense cloud of smoke, then a burst of flame that spread fan-shaped nearly across the street. The crowd fled in panic.

At the entrance to the cellar door were several firemen with their clothing on fire. They had been blown through the opening to the street. Near the curb were the employes of the Consolidated Gas Company, less seriously burned. They had responded to the alarm because of the fire being in a garage. When the explosion occurred they had just turned off the gas valve in the street.

The shouts of the firemen in the garage brought swift help from their comrades, who jumped into the cellar to rescue them. Some firemen were found lying near the opening. Chief Murtha and his lieutenants had been blown against a side wall by the force of the explosion. The Chief, nearest to the tank, was unconscious, his body burned and part of his clothing gone. Lieutenant Jackson suffered internal injuries in addition to burns.

By this time a large crowd had collected and police reserves were called out. Ambulances were sent from Bellevue and New York Hospitals and prompt treatment was given to the victims who had been carried out of the place. Many persons got oil from near-by garages, which was used to relieve the sufferings of the burned men. One of those who received this treatment was Joseph Kelly. He had paused by the street opening to watch the firemen and he was caught by the sudden sheet of flame and his face burned.

Nine Now in Bellevue.

The first to respond to the call for ambulances were Drs. Jonas and Wincor of Bellevue Hospital. Seeing that Chief Murtha was the most seriously hurt, they took him to the hospital. Then two doctors from New York Hospital arrived. Drivers of a score of automobiles volunteered to take the injured to Bellevue Hospital. The injured were:

COOLIDGE DECIDES ON ADVISORY BOARD TO DIRECT CAMPAIGN

SLEMP TO BE A MEMBER

RESIGNATION TALK DENIED

Older Leaders Now Believe Way Is Open to Smooth Out the Present Differences.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Coolidge has agreed that there shall be an advisory committee to be the real managers of his campaign. This development came as the result of a talk with C. Bascom Slemp, his secretary, following the publication in The Washington Post of a story that some members of the official family would resign as a result of the confusion and lack of decision displayed by William M. Butler at the Cleveland convention.

The article attributed to George Harvey, The Post's editorial director, touched upon the bitterness that arose against Mr. Butler among members of the Cabinet and older political leaders, and intimated that this situation would lead to the resignation of a member of the official family. Reports had it that three members of the Cabinet who had refused to accept Mr. Butler's political advice—Secretaries Mellon and Weeks and Postmaster General New—might resign, but a careful reading of the story showed that it applied entirely to Secretary Slemp.

Those who have followed the course of Mr. Slemp, his great political activity at the beginning of this Administration, when the President leaned upon him heavily, his slight eclipse after the Southern delegates had been obtained, and the differences of opinion that arose between himself and Mr. Butler and Frank W. Stearns, accepted the story at once as being directed against Mr. Slemp.

The publication gave Mr. Slemp an opportunity to have a plain talk with the President. This talk dealt with the political judgment of Mr. Butler and pictured to the President the dissatisfaction with Mr. Butler already felt by political workers. Mr. Slemp was ready to retire if he was to be a mere secretary without an important part in the campaign.

Slemp Denied Retirement Story.

Following the talk, Mr. Slemp issued a statement in which he denied that he would retire and asserted that he probably would be on the "Advisory Committee of the National Republican Committee, which will have the real management of the campaign."

"I am leaving this afternoon for Cincinnati," Mr. Slemp said, "to be present at an operation to be performed on my cousin, P. W. Slemp, now in a hospital there. He is my chief dependence in my business affairs. I am taking Dr. Oden with me. I shall be away several days. The time of my return is, in a certain sense, on account of this indefinite.

"When I do return I expect to be actively associated in the campaign and in my present position, which I have not resigned. In all probability, I will be on the Advisory Committee of the National Republican Committee, which will have the real management of the campaign."

The decision of President Coolidge to assign the running of the campaign to an Advisory Committee as the result of the showdown by his secretary is accepted by Republican politicians as meaning that the President has repudiated Mr. Butler as the sole and unquestioned manager of his campaign and placed the strategy work and the real political manoeuvres in the hands of the group of politicians who dictated the nomination for Vice President at Cleveland.

Acceptance of the Advisory Committee, of which Mr. Butler will be Chairman, came none too soon, in the opinion of Republican politicians. They said that workers were becoming apathetic as the result of the leadership of Mr. Butler, and disorganization, which spreads quickly in political ranks, was moving swiftly through the country. Whether

SMITH TAKES OVER HIS OWN CAMPAIGN

WORK ON PLATFORM PLANKS

Board to Boil Down Suggestions to Be Submitted to Resolutions Committeeman.

Governor Smith moved yesterday into the headquarters of his New York State campaign committee in the Prudence Building, Madison Avenue and Forty-third Street, and practically took charge of his own campaign.

The Governor did not in any way displace Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the committee, but hereafter he will be in direct touch with his own campaign organization and will see personally his supporters from other States as they begin to arrive.

One of the weaknesses of the Governor's campaign has been a certain lack of contact with prominent Democrats, most of them delegates, who have been in and out of the city during the last month. In the future the Governor to a large extent will be his own "contact" man, with Mr. Roosevelt having general direction of the campaign.

Mr. Roosevelt announced that a small committee had been appointed to consider platform suggestions and boil them down and submit recommendations to the New York member of the Committee on Resolutions. The New York State members of the convention committees as well as the man to place Governor Smith in nomination have not yet been chosen. The selection of the man to place him in nomination, the Governor said, probably would be announced in a day or two.

Gaining Strength in West.

Governor Smith has received information that he has gained in strength considerably in the West in the last few days. His supporters also were said to have received assurances from Democratic officials in certain Southern States that he would carry them, if nominated. The claims of William G. McAdoo's supporters that they have enough votes in sight to nominate on an early ballot failed to excite any apprehension in the Governor.

"Oh, that's part of the game," he said, when told of the McAdoo claims. "Every campaign manager does that."

"But your manager is not doing it," he was told.

"Oh, we are running a more intelligent campaign," said the Governor, smiling.

Among those at the Smith headquarters during the day were former Representative John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, State Chairman Herbert C. Pell Jr., State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag, Augustus Thomas, Joseph Barondess and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Shientag were understood to have been called in conference over platform proposals.

"Babe" Ruth Out for Smith.

"Babe" Ruth, "King of Swat," came out strongly for Governor Smith and stressed the point that the Governor, like himself, had climbed to success from the bottom of the ladder.

In a letter to Mr. Roosevelt, he said:

"I want to thank you for your kind letter asking me to be on the committee to boost Governor Smith for the Presidential nomination.

"Sure—I'm for Al Smith.

"There is one thing about your letter, Mr. Roosevelt, that went across with me good and strong. That was the talk about the humble beginning of Governor Smith.

"Maybe you know I wasn't fed with a gold spoon when I was a kid. No poor boy can go any too high in this world to suit me.

TEXAS ALSO PLEDGED TO IT

CHANGE THOUGHT UNLIKELY

Strategists, However, Consider Moves to Bring Issue Before Delegates.

Governor W. J. Fields of Kentucky, who will head the McAdoo-instructed delegation from his own State, is coming to the Democratic National Convention prepared to make an aggressive fight against the two-thirds rule under which the Democrats have nominated their Presidential candidates for almost a century.

Objections to the rule have been raised frequently heretofore, but every attempt to abolish it has failed. Now, however, indications point to a real fight in the convention, or at least in the convention Committee on Rules.

The growth into its present strength of the movement to nominate by a mere majority has been generally attributed to friends of William G. McAdoo, who will enter the convention with greater delegate strength than any other candidate. However, leaders thought to be in a position to speak for Mr. McAdoo said yesterday that they did not think Mr. McAdoo's supporters would take the initiative in a fight on the two-thirds rule. But they qualified this by saying it would be necessary for Mr. McAdoo himself to confirm their impression of his attitude. Mr. McAdoo is expected here tomorrow.

Texas for Majority Rule.

Meanwhile the Texas delegation, which is for McAdoo, will come to the convention committed to a rule providing for nomination of President and Vice President by simple majorities. Thomas B. Love, Democratic National Committeeman from Texas, has been one of the principal supporters of Mr. McAdoo and was one of his spokesmen in the Democratic National Convention four years ago.

Democratic leaders generally predicted that any attempt to abrogate the two-thirds rule this year would fail. Members of the Democratic National Committee who will wield a strong influence in the convention oppose the change, almost to a man.

With a simple majority rule in force, aspirants for the Presidency would be in a far better position to insure their nomination in advance of the convention. On the other hand, with the two-thirds rule in operation, a time comes at every convention when candidates begin frantic drives for delegates, and these afford delegation leaders opportunities for driving hard bargains which they otherwise would not have.

Friends who feel that with the two-thirds rule out of the way Mr. McAdoo could be nominated on an early ballot are well aware of the strength of this opposition. They are well aware also that the opening of such a fight on their initiative might alienate elements now friendly to their candidate. The result would be a loss of delegates as well as a loss of prestige if the fight were lost, which well might mean the defeat of Mr. McAdoo.

Strategists Get Busy.

It is intimated strongly that Mr. McAdoo's friends may attempt to manoeuvre the supporters of the two-thirds rule into a position where they would be compelled themselves to initiate a fight for its retention.

In connection with this the McAdoo supporters have made exhaustive search of the records and profess to have found that there exists neither legal nor historic grounds for perpetuating the rule. They take the ground that every convention is competent to make its own rules and cannot be governed by rules adopted by conventions that preceded it. This point is certain to be raised before the Committee on Rules and possibly in convention. The contention will be made that when the convention meets there is no two-thirds rule, and hence no need for aggressive action to abrogate it, the only question being whether the convention, acting without regard to past conventions, shall decide that nominations be made by a two-thirds rule or by a simple majority.

Colonel Dixon C. Williams of Illinois, Treasurer of the McAdoo Pre-Convention Campaign Committee, said he believed the McAdoo supporters would be well content to let advocates of the two-thirds rule take the initiative in a fight to uphold it.

"The chances of Mr. McAdoo getting the nomination are improving hourly," he said. "There has been a strong drift toward him. That is true with regard to delegates. It is true also with regard to public sentiment throughout the country, especially since the Cleveland Convention.

Finds Dissatisfied Republicans.

"We are exhibitors at a railroad supplies exhibition which is going on at Atlantic City at present. While this has been in progress I have talked with many people. I find that since the Cleveland Convention many Republicans who do not like the Republican platform or candidates would be glad to vote the Democratic ticket in the event Mr. McAdoo were nominated."

Mr. McAdoo, according to Colonel Williams, has eleven Illinois delegates and many of the remaining forty-seven members would gladly turn to him the moment it appeared that he could win the nomination.

"Who is second choice of the Illinois delegation?" Colonel Williams was asked.

"There is no second choice in my

Service Ends on Fifty-eighth Street Spur; Veterans in Charge of Last Midnight Run

Service over the old Sixth Avenue elevated railroad spur, extending from Fiftieth to Fifty-eighth Street, ceased at midnight last night. There were no mourners. There are to be neither flowers nor obsequies.

"Tom" Bird, who has been drawing his pay check from the company for forty-two years and has grown gray in its service, ran the last trip over the spur. With no more ceremony than he has used in years past he swung his control lever at two minutes before midnight, and his single car—for a long time the company has operated during night hours only one-car shuttle service on the spur—rolled out for its last trip over a right-of-way which the city has acquired and will soon demolish. Bird, as usual, took his starting signal from the conductor, Edward Cole, another veteran in the service of the elevated lines.

One of the passengers—there were two others who looked as though they didn't know where they were going but were content to be on their way—was Division Superintendent William Quinn. After the brief trip had been completed Mr. Quinn locked the switch for the last time. Unceremoniously he declared the old shuttle car out of commission. Then Bird gathered up his brass control lever, shuffled out of the motorman's box and waved adieu to the Sixth Avenue night skyline.

The Sixth Avenue elevated line and its spur, extending from Fifty-third to Fifty-eighth Street, was completed in April, 1878, and was placed in operation in the June following. The spur is, therefore, forty-six years old. The Sixth Avenue line was originally a part of the old Gilbert Elevated Railway, named for Dr. Rufus Gilbert of this city, who was a pioneer designer of that method of passenger transportation.

Under the auspices of the city's first Rapid Transit Commission, acting under the powers granted it by the Legislature in 1875, the Sixth Avenue (or Gilbert) line was completed, the Ninth Avenue line, known then as the New York Elevated Railway, was extended to the Battery, and the Second and Third Avenue lines were built to give better facilities to the east side. The lines were consolidated later under the unified management of the Manhattan Elevated Railway Company, the first Secretary of which was General Horace Porter, distinguished soldier and diplomatist.

opinion it will never come to a second choice," he replied with a laugh. "I think that's the way to put it at this stage of the convention preliminaries."

Among the leaders expected within a day or two is William Jennings Bryan from Florida. He is committed to Mr. McAdoo from the first ballot and for as long as his name is before the convention. The Florida delegation will vote as a unit on all questions under the unit rule.

Most of the leaders already on the ground are National Committeemen connected with sub-committees of that body which are arranging for the convention. The National Committee as a whole will not meet to consider contests and other business to be brought before it in connection with making up the temporary roll of the convention until Saturday.

Cordell Hull, Chairman of the National Committee; Charles A. Greathouse, Secretary; Burt New of Indiana, Executive Secretary; George White of Ohio, who four years ago were Chairman of the National Committee; Isidore B. Dockweiler of California, Edward F. Goltra of Missouri, Walter L. Moore of Alabama, Charles Beecher Stein of Illinois and Norman E. Mack of New York are among National Committeeman who already have arrived in this city.

A few State leaders are here, but the delegations will not begin to arrive until Sunday and Monday of next week.

SAYS ROADS FIGHT M'ADOO.

Companies Oppose Friend of Workers, Brotherhood Officers Assert.

The charge that the railroads of the country were trying to prevent William G. McAdoo from being the Democratic nominee for President was made yesterday by Timothy Healy, International President of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers. In a statement made public at McAdoo headquarters, Mr. Healy said:

"The railroads which are opposed to organized labor are determined to defeat Mr. McAdoo, the friend of the railroad workers, for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

"One of the Vice Presidents of the Pennsylvania Railroad has personally directed the campaign for the selection of the delegates from the State of Pennsylvania to the Democratic National Convention.

"The Pennsylvania Railroad has spent a large sum on this. A former Municipal Judge of Philadelphia, a friend of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is in charge of the anti-McAdoo delegation. They have rented an entire floor of the Pennsylvania Hotel, New York City, where the anti-McAdoo forces will be concentrated and headquarters of the railroads will be situated."

FARMERS ASK FOR PLANK.

Federation Names Committee to Present Views to Democrats.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The Executive Committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation met here today to appoint a committee to present an agricultural plank to the Democratic National Convention at New York.

Sam H. Thompson, President of the Illinois Agricultural Association, a member of the committee which presented an agricultural program to the Republican National Committee at Cleveland, said that the plank in which the party went on record as favoring, "without putting the Government into business, the establishment of a Federal system of organization for cooperative marketing of farm products," went even farther than the requests of the Federation. The plank proposed by the committee had simply asked aid of existing governmental agencies.

MISSISSIPPI FOR HARRISON.

Delegates Will Give Senator Complimentary Vote on First Ballot.

JACKSON, Miss., June 16.—Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Temporary Chairman and Keynoter of the Democratic National Convention, will receive the vote of the Mississippi delegation for the Presidential nomination on the first ballot, according to leaders here today.

This plan is intended as a compliment to the Senator and will enable the Mississippians to get the lay of the land before lining up definitely behind an active candidate, it is said. The delegation is uninstructed.

WILL AID LA FOLLETTE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Prediction that Senator La Follette formally will enter the race for President after the Progressive Convention in Cleveland July 4 and will force Coolidge into third place in the November election was issued today by Newton Jenkins, Illinois leader of the La Follette independents.

Illinois supporters of the Wisconsin Senator expect to aid his campaign by putting up a full State and county ticket. Mr. Jenkins has been tentatively slated as candidate for Senator on the La Follette ticket in Illinois, and the La Follette aids have been trying to persuade Raymond Robins to become their candidate for Governor, but are reported to have received a refusal from Mr. Robins, on the ground that he is interested in legislative rather than administrative matters.

LOOK TO STATE CONVENTION

Republicans Probably Will Meet at Rochester Late in September.

The Republican State Committee will meet at the National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street, this afternoon and set a date for the State Convention, which probably will be held at Rochester in the last week of September.

The committee has abandoned temporarily its headquarters at 43 East Thirty-ninth Street to afford temporary headquarters for the Republican National Committee. The National Committee, which moved in yesterday, expects to engage permanent Eastern campaign headquarters within a few days. J. I. Clarke is in charge. National Committeeman Hilles will take charge of the campaign in the East late in the week on his return from New Haven.

Mr. Clarke will be associated with Cornelius N. Bliss, Treasurer of the Republican State Committee, and William V. Hodge, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee. The raising of campaign funds in the East will begin at once.

Representative Ogden L. Mills and former State Senator Nathaniel A. Elsberg will address the members of the National Republican Club this evening regarding the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

MAINE PRIMARY VOTE HEAVY

Early Returns Put Fernald in Slight Lead for Senator.

PORTLAND, Me., June 16.—A fairly heavy vote in the Republican State-wide primary elections was indicated in the early returns tonight.

Returns from 146 election districts out of 636 in the State give for United States Senator: Bert M. Fernald, 6,568; Frank E. Guernsey (former Congressman), 6,103; Louis A. Jack, 2,090.

For Governor: Ralph O. Brewster (State Senator), 7,644; Frank G. Farrington (President State Senate), 5,615.

Interest of the Republican voters attached in about equal measure to the contests for the Senatorial and Gubernatorial nominations, although the campaign for the latter was more actively waged, with a sectarian issue and Ku Klux Klan participation in favor of Brewster as factors.

The only contest for Congressman nomination was in the Second District, where Congressman Wallace H. White Jr., Republican, was opposed by Cyrus N. Blanchard, while Bertrand G. McIntire and Albert W. Plummer sought the Democratic nomination.

Congressmen Beedy, Nelson and Hersey, Republicans, were renominated. Democratic candidates were, for United States Senator, Fulton J. Redman, and for Congressman, Mayor Roberts of Waterville, William M. Ingraham of Portland, Assistant Secretary of War under President Wilson, and Clinton C. Stevens of Bangor.

'KEYNOTE' AT NIGHT TO AID RADIO FANS

GARDEN VIRTUALLY READY

National Committeemen Visit Hall and Loudly Praise Its Arrangements.

Senator Pat Harrison's "keynote" speech as Temporary Chairman of the Democratic National Convention probably will be postponed until Tuesday evening, June 24, to give radio enthusiasts a better opportunity at hearing it. An agreement to this effect was reached yesterday by members of the Committee on Arrangements of the Democratic National Committee and is expected to be formally ratified at a meeting of the committee today.

The program now is to convene in Madison Square Garden at 11 o'clock next Tuesday morning, appoint the convention committees and then take a recess until 7:30 at night. This arrangement will enable the committees to begin their work without delay, and in addition to giving a much larger number of people opportunity to hear the speech by radio than if delivered around noontime will give clearer reception on the hundreds of thousands of receiving sets that will be tuned in.

The Democratic National Committee will meet Saturday morning at its headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria to make up a temporary roll, ratify the choice of Senator Harrison as Temporary Chairman of the convention and transact any other business that may come before it.

Garden Virtually Ready.

Madison Square Garden already has been placed virtually in readiness for the convention and the first inspection of it since its reconstruction and decoration was made yesterday by members of the Democratic National Committee and the General Entertainment Committee, of which Thomas L. Chadbourne is Chairman.

Among the members of the Democratic National Committee making the inspection were Cordell Hull, Democratic National Chairman; George F. Mara, his assistant, and Walter Moore of Alabama. Others in the party were Mr. Chadbourne, Stanley J. Quinn, John R. Young, Frank D. Waterman, Dr. John A. Harriss, Charles E. Gehring, George Ed. Smith and Frank A. Munsey.

The platform for the Chairman, speakers and 300 prominent Democrats was completed and presented an attractive appearance with its white ornamental balustrade. Immediately on each side are the 800 seats for working newspaper men. In front of the platform and covering the body of the floor of the Garden are the seats for more than 1,200 delegates, while to the east and west of these are the seats for the alternates.

Most of the decorations are in place. They consist almost exclusively of American flags draped and festooned about the balconies and galleries. The old girders supporting the roof are concealed completely by a tremendous American flag which forms a billowy ceiling extending from one side of the Garden to the other. The State arms and the city colors are also used but not obtrusively.

Garden Newly Painted.

Mr. Hull said the transformed Garden was the most beautiful convention hall he had ever seen. Others of the party expressed approval of the arrangements and decorations.

The Garden has been newly painted throughout. The great circle of boxes has been finished in blue to give a contrast with the rest of the interior. The restaurant in the Garden is being made over completely. The walls which have been stained and discolored for years are being painted. David Lantenberg, the concessionaire, has installed a complete new kitchen equipment.

The Tent, club, which is being fitted up by R. H. Macy & Co., made a strong impression on the members of the committees. This includes all of the old Garden Theatre. A large entrance has been cut through the wall into the main entrance of the Garden and a floor has been built over the orchestra seats and back over the stage. Through the use of soft, dark draperies the theatre has been transformed into a large clubroom with scores of easy chairs and other devices for the comfort of delegates. This men's club is being provided as a courtesy by Macy & Co. Nothing will be offered for sale there, except possibly cigars and cigarettes.

4,500 to Visit West Point.

One of the entertainment features of the convention will be the trip to West Point on the steamboat Hendrik Hudson on Sunday, June 29.

It is expected that 4,500 persons will be on board, including the delegates, alternates, members of the Democratic National Committee and members of the various entertainment committees and their families.

The boat will have the escort of a squadron of airplanes in command of Major William M. Hensley Jr., commanding officer of Mitchel Field. There will be an organ recital in the West Point chapel and a special parade by the cadets.

Grover A. Whalen, Vice Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests, announced the location of the city information booths, which will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until midnight daily during the convention period.

Twelve booths will be located in hotels, one each in the Imperial, Pennsylvania, Seville, Vanderbilt, McAlpin, Madison Square, Waldorf-Astoria, Prince George, Commodore, Murray Hill, Astor and Belmont. Five booths will be placed in Madison Square Garden, one in City Hall and six more at the following locations:

Fifth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, Washington Square Park and Eighth Street, Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue and City Hall Park.

Plenty of Rooms for Visitors.

Room reservations for the convention are still considerably short of expectations, according to the Hotel Association, and there are plenty of rooms left for those desiring to visit the city during the convention.

"While reservations have come in slowly," said Fred A. Muschenheim, President of the association, "the association is going ahead with plans for a big crowd. There will be room for everybody, no matter how many come. Today there are more than four or five thousand rooms, and those in close proximity to Madison Square Garden, that are completely reserved. At the hotels further uptown not many reservations have been received, some to be sure, but nowhere near the volume expected."

The New York Stock Exchange has completed its arrangements for entertaining delegates. Cards of admission to the Exchange will be issued at Democratic headquarters. A Reception Committee will explain the functions and workings of the Exchange to visitors.

Samuel Untermyer will give a large garden party for delegates and their wives, or husbands, at his country home at Greystone on Wednesday afternoon of next week. The different Presidential candidates have been invited. A concert and tea are on the program.

ALABAMA CONTEST AVERTED

A fight in the Committee on Credentials of the Democratic National Convention was avoided yesterday by the announcement by Walter Moore, Democratic National Committeeman, that Senator Underwood had certified the list of the Alabama delegates to E. B. Byrne, Chairman of the State Executive Committee. Mr. Moore also announced that he had called a meeting of the Alabama delegation for Monday morning, June 23, in the Hotel Imperial. A Chairman, National Committeeman and members of the convention committees will be elected then.

Mr. Moore said the delegation submitted for certification by Senator Underwood contained the names submitted by Mr. Comer, dry leader of the State. The entire delegation, under the Alabama law, is required to support Senator Underwood for the nomination for President.

'DAWES & COOLIDGE' OLD COLONIAL FIRM

Ancestors of Republican Nominees Were Related and Ran a Grocery in Worcester.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The Coolidge and Dawes families are not so unacquainted as the distance between Massachusetts and Illinois might make it appear. Their ancestors knew each other and worked together.

Now it is "Coolidge and Dawes," candidates for the two highest offices in the land.

Many years ago—about 147—it was "Dawes & Coolidge," grocers, of Worcester, Mass.

The Dawes of the firm was the ancestor of General Charles Gates Dawes, Republican nominee for Vice President. The Coolidge of the firm was an ancestor of the President.

The grocer Dawes was William, referred to usually as "The Patriot," who was the companion of Paul Revere on his famous ride.

The Daweses for five generations were builders and masons, but this William had a clubbed foot and could not follow the trade. He became a goldsmith. In 1742 he married Lydia, daughter of Nicholas Boone, a bookseller of Boston, who, one authority asserts, published the first newspaper in America. Nine children were born in this marriage, of which William, "The Patriot" was the second, born Sept. 6, 1745. The third child was a girl named Lydia, who was born Feb. 10, 1747. She married John Coolidge on Jan. 5, 1772.

It was with his brother-in-law, John Coolidge, that William Dawes, "The Patriot," went into the grocery business. John Coolidge seemed to go right along with the Daweses at that time.

When the siege of Boston began William joined the Continental troops at Cambridge and is said to have fought at Bunker Hill. When Boston became unsafe he moved his family to Worcester. It was while there that he started with his brother-in-law in the grocery business. When the war ended he returned to Boston and carried on the same business in Dock Square, residing in Distil House Square. No definite statement was found today as to when the grocery partnership was dissolved.

MAGNUS JOHNSON WINS.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 16.—The Minnesota primary polls closed tonight with but one result certain, the renomination of Magnus Johnson for United States Senator on the Farmer-Labor ticket. A light vote was cast all over the State, despite perfect election weather. Johnson had no opposition worthy of the name and made no campaign.

Theodore Christiansen, country editor, and O. B. Jacobson, a member of the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission, were believed to be in the lead in the Republican primary race for the Gubernatorial nomination. The light vote, however, cheered the other candidates, most of whom counted on local support.

Tom Davis, Minneapolis attorney, and Floyd B. Olson, County Attorney in this city, were conceded to be in the lead on the Farmer-Labor ticket, and as the polls closed each claimed victory.

In the Republican race for the United States Senatorship Ole Sageng, Thomas D. Schall and Oscar Hallam were closely bunched. Sageng was the favorite.

With 143 names on the ballot, the result of the voting for any office except that sought by Magnus Johnson will probably not be known for several days.

BRENNAN HERE TOMORROW.

Illinois Democratic Leader, Also Thomas Taggart, Start East Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—George E. Brennan, who, it is believed, will be chief strategist for the New York-Illinois-Indiana alignment, in the Democratic National Convention, will depart for New York tomorrow. The Illinois delegation, headed by Martin J. O'Brien, Democratic County Chairman, will depart by special trains Sunday night.

Thomas Taggart, Indiana's Democratic leader, who has charge of Senator Ralston's Presidential boom, is expected to arrive in New York when Mr. Brennan does.

The rules and resolutions committees promise the first big clashes, the former because it will pass on the two-thirds rule, and the latter because the principles involved will produce a battle more bitter than usual.

The opinion here seems to be that neither McAdoo nor Smith can muster a two-thirds vote. The hope of both, it is argued, lies in breaking the rule.

14 RADIO STATIONS LINKED TO GARDEN

St. Louis and Kansas City to Broadcast Convention, Dallas, Texas, May, Too.

GLASS CAGE FOR ANNOUNCER

Difficulty of Daylight Service and High Cost May Keep Coast From Listening In.

Fourteen stations have already arranged to broadcast the proceedings of the Democratic National Convention. They cover a territory from Buffalo to Atlanta and from Schenectady to Kansas City and St. Louis. It is under consideration also to broadcast for the Southwest from Dallas or Fort Worth, Texas.

WJZ will broadcast here and send its service by Western Union to be broadcast by WGY from Schenectady. All other out-of-town stations will receive the proceedings over long-distance telephone lines from the WEAF station of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This service is being furnished to broadcasting stations at cost.

Most of the broadcasting will be the sounds collected by sets of microphones at the speaker's stand. Graham McNamee, the announcer, will be in a glass cage where he can watch the proceedings, receive information from experts and keep up a running explanation for WEAF and the other broadcasting stations on the long-distance telephone lines. J. Andrew White, in another small glass house, will do the talking for WJZ and WGY.

Full Service by Telephone.

A full convention service will be sent by telephone to all broadcasting stations on the circuit. They will be able to relay to their listeners every sound wave in Madison Square Garden, but will be at liberty at the same time to substitute jazz, bedtime stories and health lectures, if they see fit, instead of the wrangles on rules and credentials or long-winded Vice Presidential nomination speeches.

While there was intense interest throughout the country in the Cleveland convention, the broadcasters received much evidence that political oratory can bore the radio listener, even when it causes hysterical excitement in the convention hall. On this account, WEAF, for instance, does not intend to use its own full convention service, but will seek to relieve the strain of heavyweight oratory with music and other numbers.

The service for the Democratic convention will be more thorough in the South than was the relaying from Cleveland. The coming convention is handicapped by the hour's difference in time between here and Cleveland. The dampening effect of daylight on radio will be so much worse on that account. For instance, it will be 11 o'clock at night here before the sun sets in San Francisco and Los Angeles, thus receiving conditions on the Pacific are near their best. This means that in California there is little chance of tuning in on the nearest stations—St. Louis and Kansas City—unless some of the night sessions go on after midnight.

Listening "Spotty" in Daylight.

The listening will be "spotty" until late in the evening under the best of conditions. The most powerful stations cannot give reliable service for more than about 200 miles during daylight in the Summer. This means that the listening will be poor in the daytime and evening in the greater part of the country.

Last Winter the Radio Corporation of America and the Westinghouse Company relayed a New York program by short-wave length radio to seven other stations running from coast to coast. The short-wave length was converted into regular broadcasting frequencies and rebroadcast, covering virtually the whole nation. The engineers of these companies decided, however, that it would be hopeless to attempt a repetition of this exploit during the convention. What was done at night in mid-winter was out of the question during daylight in Summer. The relaying between stations will take place at first by wire.

The long-distance telephone will carry the convention service from WEAF to the following stations for rebroadcasting: To WGR at Buffalo, WRC and WCAP at Washington; KDKA at Pittsburgh; KSD at St. Louis; WDAF at Kansas City; WLW at Cincinnati; WSB at Atlanta; WLS, WMAQ and WGN at Chicago.

Cost a Deterring Factor.

This list is not necessarily complete. One station in Texas and one or two others in other parts of the country may decide to take the service. The deterring factor is the cost, which is heavy, despite the fact that the company is offering it without profit. Stations in San Francisco and Los Angeles are reported to regard it as prohibitive. The only way of meeting the charge is for the broadcasting station itself to foot the bill. Neither of the national committees thought it worth while to finance the radio convention service as propaganda.

Both national committees have under consideration the use of radio for important campaign speeches, but the extent of the use of this agency is doubtful. The value of radio in politics has been little studied by political leaders, and, according to program experts of the great broadcasters, radio is a double-edged political weapon, because it is apt to make the old-time political spellbinder sound flat and cheap and a plain, blunt man sound like a Demosthenes.

"The Cleveland convention and previous experience with political speakers shows that radio demands a new type of orator," said an American Telephone and Telegraph expert, who studied the public reaction to the broadcasting of the Republican convention. "Radio will doom the flowery orator, or the one who relies on theatrical gestures and the excitement of his immediate audience to carry along a poor line of thought.

"Radio exposes every false note and every kind of affectation. The radio listener is often disgusted with things that pass for flashes of genius with a crowd that is tuned to the mood of the orator.

Praises Coolidge's Voice.

"The leaders have not yet tried to discover who are the effective speakers by radio in either party, and it is a risky thing to trust a man on the air because he has been a good stump speaker. President Coolidge has a great political asset in that he is extremely popular as a radio speaker. He never makes any of the mistakes that injure many speakers with radio audiences. There is never a false note in his talk. It is always simple and clear, with now and then a phrase so turned as to bring the radio audience figuratively to its feet."

Nineteen loudspeakers form the public address department that the Western Electric is installing in Madison Square Garden for the benefit of those in the Garden. These will carry the words of the speaker to the most remote galleries and corners. They will be operated in groups. Seven or eight experts will be in the hall all the time making reports by telephone to the control office in the basement. If the noise is stunningly loud in one part of the hall, it will be soft-pedaled by the touch of a button regulating one or two sets of horns. If the sound is too faint in another section, more noise will be put into it by pressure on another button in the control room.

Radio Rehearsals Planned.

After the microphones and loud speakers have been installed, there will be rehearsals in the Garden to test the effect of the nineteen reproducing horns. These effects were tried out at Cleveland by the use of the great organ in the convention hall, but the human voice will be used for that purpose in this city.

The question of repeating the convention proceedings to the crowd out in the open air on the streets and in Madison Square has not yet been decided. Doubts have been raised as to the advisability of this from the police point of view. Another difficulty is that the Western Electric Company is temporarily short of loud-speaking apparatus. The out-of-door apparatus was sent to Cleveland on motor trucks and will have to come back on motor trucks. All the other available apparatus will be used in the hall itself.

Another special convention service will be the electrical transmission of pictures. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which telegraphed pictures from Cleveland to New York, is preparing to telegraph pictures of the Democratic Convention daily from New York to Chicago, where they will be developed and printed by the hundreds and sent to newspapers all over the West.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANS ANNOUNCED BY WOMEN

Program, Covering Two Weeks, Given Out by Sightseeing and Excursions Committee.

Mrs. Anna Naughton, Chairman of the Sight-seeing and Excursions Committee for the National Democratic Convention, entertained her committee at a luncheon yesterday at the National Democratic Club and made public the program of entertainment that has been arranged for visiting women.

About fifty women attended the luncheon. The guests of honor were Admiral C. P. Plunkett of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Col. Julius Conrad, U. S. A., and Stanley Quinn, Chairman of the Convention General Entertainment Committee.

Among those present were Mrs. Royal Copeland, Miss Elizabeth Marbury, Mrs. Clarence Burns, Mrs. John Foley, Mrs. W. H. Good, Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Mrs. William Brown Stubbs, Mrs. Edward Lucas, Mrs. John Lockie, Mrs. Agnes Husch, Mrs. Charles Todd Clark, Mrs. Sadie Garland, Mrs. John H. Delaney and Mrs. George P. Kerr.

The program, to which other features will be added, follows:

Saturday, June 21—Special tea, Miss Marbury, to National Committee women.

Sunday—Reception to visiting press women, Westchester Club, Mrs. O'Day, hostess.

Monday—Fashion show, tea by New York State delegates, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, hostess.

Tuesday—Gala reception, Hotel Commodore, 9 P. M.

Wednesday—Breakfast, Woman's Democratic Club reception and tea, Brooklyn Museum, 3 P. M., William Good, hostess; and a visit to Samuel Untermyer's home, "Greystone," Dobbs Ferry.

Sunday—Excursion to West Point.

Monday—Visit to navy yard, Brooklyn, and reception on board battleship Colorado; Mrs. Anna Naughton at 8:30 P. M. committeewomen and committeewomen will be guests of Miss Anne Nichols, Republic Theatre, "Abie's Irish Rose."

Wednesday—Garden party and tea, Bronx Zoological Gardens, hostesses, Miss May Kennedy, Mrs. Anna Naughton and Bronx Executive Women's Committee.

Friday—Reception to delegates and alternates, "The Dog Out," ex-Service Men's Club, 18 East Fifty-eighth Street.

The reception headquarters of the New York City Women's Democratic Club at the Hotel Commodore was officially opened with tea. Mrs. John Enos Quinn, President of the organization, was the hostess and was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Virginia Pearson. Among those who attended were members of the committee of nine, including Mrs. William Good, Mrs. Jona Daly, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Miss Annie Mathews, Mrs. Daniel O'Day, Miss Harriet May Mills and Miss Elizabeth Marbury. Others were Judge Jean Norris, Martha Byrne and Mrs. P. Emmet Dorney.

FARMER-LABORITES DIVIDED OVER REDS

REDS ALSO BACK SENATOR

Foster and Ruthenberg Declare Party Must Get Behind Him If He Runs.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 16.—With a steady influx of widely known Progressive and Radical representatives of the Farmer-Labor Party at headquarters in this city today, there still seemed no one in authority able to state definitely how many actual delegates to the party's national convention, which is scheduled to open at the Auditorium at 10 A. M. tomorrow, were here. There probably will be in excess of 1,000 present, however, when the gavel falls.

In fact, the local committee and the directing heads of the Farmer-Labor movement were too busy endeavoring to iron out differences between the several factions, especially those relating to the participation of the Communist element in the convention, to give any regard to other matters.

As it appears tonight, the issue tomorrow will be whether the Communist Party and other economic organizations shall have representation in the national organization.

A majority faction, headed by William Mahoney of St. Paul, favored representation on the national committee of the third party for industrial groups but none for economic groups. The minority faction, headed by William Z. Foster, Chairman of the Workers' Party, which is the Communist organization in America, and C. E. Ruthenberg, Secretary of the Workers' Party, demand representation on the committee and are determined to win their point.

The organization problem is the only important question in doubt, according to the general opinion of delegates. The endorsement of Senator La Follette for President, even if he runs as an Independent Progressive, and not on a third party ticket, seems to be a foregone conclusion. Foster and Ruthenberg said today that the party must get behind La Follette should he be a candidate.

As now planned, the Executive Committee will be instructed to endorse La Follette if he is nominated at the Conference for Progressive Political Action at Cleveland, July 4.

If by any chance La Follette is not a candidate the Executive Committee will be authorized to select a candidate, and the favorite now appears to be Farley Christensen, who was the Farmer-Labor candidate four years ago. The platform already is outlined, and no fight is in sight over any of its provisions. The committee intends to avoid controversies over the platform by including in it only the major issues and leaving the controversial questions for resolutions.

The first test of strength in the convention will come with the report of the committees, particularly of that on national organization. It was to attempt to settle the row between the two factions and avert the possibility of the submission of conflicting majority and minority reports on the question of Communist representation that the committee was battling behind closed doors Sunday night and today with no agreement reached at a late hour tonight, according to the meagre reports that are allowed to emanate from the well-guarded rooms occupied by the governing committee.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 16 (By Associated Press).—About 900 credentials had been received up to tonight at the convention headquarters of the Farmer-Labor Party here. The convention call provided for 931 votes on the floor, but did not limit the number of delegates.

The Communist strength in the various delegations could not be accurately learned tonight. Some committeemen acknowledged, however, that there might be enough men and women of that persuasion in the New York and Pennsylvania delegations to control the votes from those States, and that Illinois might also fall into that column.

About 100 delegates are expected from Minnesota, and one-fourth of them will be avowed followers of the Moscow International.

WARREN NOT RESIGNING NOW

Retirement Depends on Matters Pending, He Indicates.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 16.—Charles Beecher Warren, United States Ambassador to Mexico, has not tendered his resignation to President Coolidge, as intimated in Washington despatches, he declared at his home at Grosse Point Farms today.

The Ambassador, who returned from Mexico City at the request of the President, is now Chairman-elect of the Resolutions Committee to the Republican National Convention, admitted, however, that his retirement as Ambassador might develop later, being dependent upon matters yet pending, and that he probably would retire as soon as the President felt he could be spared.

As now planned, the Executive Committee will be instructed to endorse La Follette if he is nominated at the Conference for Progressive Political Action at Cleveland, July 4.

DETROIT, June 16.—Charles Beecher Warren, United States Ambassador to Mexico, has not tendered his resignation to President Coolidge, as intimated in Washington despatches, he declared at his home at Grosse Point Farms today.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Reports that Charles Beecher Warren, Chairman of the Platform Committee at the Cleveland convention, will resign in the near future as American Ambassador to Mexico were met at the State Department today with declaration that he had not communicated such intentions to Secretary Hughes.

Officials stated that they had not heard of any such plan on the part of Mr. Warren to resign until they read newspaper reports to that effect. It had been assumed, it was stated at the department, that Mr. Warren would take a brief rest from his labor at Cleveland, spending a short time with his family at Detroit, and would then proceed to Mexico City.

Close friends of Mr. Warren said that he went to Mexico City with the announced intention of remaining only a short time. He wished, it was stated, to complete the work he began, when as Special Commissioner, with Judge John Barton Payne, he cleared the way for recognition of Mexico through the two claims conventions.

Flannels Have Come Back
Knickerbockers are still indispensable in their place, but there is an increasing realization on the part of well-dressed men that for certain uses flannel trousers are more serviceable and appropriate. A complete wardrobe today will include both knickerbockers and flannels for sports wear.
Sensing this tendency, D'Andrea Brothers have made their line of Ready to Wear flannel trousers unusually varied and complete this season. Materials are particularly handsome. Designed and finished with characteristic D'Andrea thoroughness and care.

around the country a good deal and I hear lots of fellows talking about Al Smith and his chances to be President and I'm telling you that most everybody I talk to is with him. I heard it down in Louisville—the 'Solid South'—as well as up in Chicago.

"I thank you again for putting me on the committee. You know I have met Governor Smith and shook hands with him, too, at the ball game. I have also met his kids at the game."

Smith Claims in Iowa Disputed.

Clyde L. Herring, Democratic National Committeeman-elect from Iowa and McAdoo leader in that State, denied yesterday claims of supporters of Governor Smith that they would control the Iowa delegation and declared that its twenty-six votes would be cast under the unit rule for Mr. McAdoo.

"The claim that Iowa was for Smith, which has been circulated in the East, is ridiculous," Mr. Herring said. "There are three Smith delegates with two and one-half votes on the Iowa delegation. Eighteen of the delegates, or five more than a majority, are for McAdoo, first, last and all the time, and the rest of the delegation are divided in their personal preferences between John W. Davis and Samuel M. Ralston.

"The eighteen McAdoo delegates will control the delegation and will cast the twenty-six votes of the State for Mr. McAdoo. They are all personal friends of mine and I was responsible for placing them on the ticket."

Mr. Herring added that his defeat of Wilbur W. Marsh, present National Committeeman, who is supporting Governor Smith, indicated clearly that the McAdoo forces were in control in Iowa. Mr. Marsh, he said, carried only one Congressional District in Iowa for Smith.

Mr. Herring said Iowa probably would favor E. T. Meredith, former Secretary of Agriculture, if Mr. McAdoo could not be nominated, and would never support Governor Smith.

Judge Rockwell Returns.

Judge David Ladd Rockwell, national campaign manager for McAdoo, returned here yesterday to stay until after the convention. Mr. Rockwell conferred with McAdoo supporters from other States, including Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, J. Bruce Kremer of Montana, Colonel Thomas B. Love of Texas, E. T. Meredith of Iowa, former Secretary of Agriculture, and Isadore Dockweiler of California.

The McAdoo leaders continued to express complete confidence in McAdoo's nomination. One of them said McAdoo had 623 delegates, and predicted his nomination on the fifth ballot.

ADVISORY BOARD TO DIRECT CAMPAIGN

the decision by the President to entrust his campaign to an Advisory Committee, which will represent the group of leaders who nominated him. Butler will remedy this condition remains to be seen.

Coolidge Determined on Committee.

It was suggested that Charles B. Warren might resign as Ambassador to Mexico and with Senator Reed of Pennsylvania be named on the Advisory Committee with Mr. Slemp. Two Western men will be named. It is also stated that a Far Western man will be appointed as Western manager of the campaign, with headquarters at Chicago. The naming of these managers and all the important moves in the campaign are to be put in the hands of the Advisory Committee, it is said. While the President hopes to preserve cordial relations with his campaign manager, yet it is said tonight that he is determined that the committee shall be appointed, no matter what the National Chairman may think of it.

Mr. Slemp disagreed with Mr. Butler at Cleveland. He sought unsuccessfully to stop the humiliation Mr. Butler put upon

KING MAY REPLACE FASCISTI CABINET

ANOTHER FASCISTA FLEES

GENERAL STRIKE THREAT

ROME, June 16 (Associated Press).—A special edition of the Giornale d'Italia this afternoon states that the members of the Italian Cabinet have placed their portfolios at the disposal of Premier Mussolini in order to leave him free either to present the resignation of the Cabinet for its reconstruction or maintain it as at present.

A rumor was current tonight that members of the Order of the Annunziata have been summoned to a conference with King Victor Emmanuel for the purpose of forming "a great concentration ministry" to include, besides Premier Mussolini, several former Prime Ministers, among them Signor Giolitti and Signor Orlando.

The King this morning received Premier Mussolini, who made a full report to the monarch on the details concerning the disappearance of the Socialist Deputy Matteotti, whose whereabouts has not yet been ascertained.

On the suggestion of Signor Mussolini, the King appointed Signor Federzoni to succeed Signor Finzi, who resigned as Minister of the Interior last Saturday in order to defend himself, as he expressed it, "against the libelous accusations spread against me by the Opposition in their allusions to me when they speak of the investigation of the Matteotti case."

Signor Mussolini will take up the duties of Minister of the Colonies which Signor Federzoni relinquished to take the Interior portfolio.

Crispo Moncada, Prefect of Trieste, has been appointed Director General of Public Security in succession to Senator Debono who, however, remains first commandant of the national militia.

A "Directory of the Fascist Movement" composed of eleven members has been appointed by Premier Mussolini, it was announced by the semi-official Stefani Agency this afternoon.

The creation of the directory, the announcement explains, is "to ensure that the strength of Fascism shall be used in close accordance with the direction of its leaders."

Another Fascist Leader Flees.

A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Cesare Rossi (former head of the Press Bureau of the Interior Department), but it was impossible to execute it as he apparently has fled the city.

The home of Signor Finzi is being closely watched by the police authorities.

Rossi began his career as a printer's apprentice. Later he joined the subversive elements in Rome, but still later became one of the most loyal followers of Mussolini. He was a member of the Municipal Council of Milan. When the Fascist move on Rome was decided on Rossi was one of the prominent organizers of the movement.

The police of Genoa have arrested Signor Filippelli, former editor of the Corriere Italiano, who is wanted by the authorities in connection with the disappearance of Deputy Matteotti, according to the Stefani Agency.

The Genoa police charged Filippelli with attempting, with others, to deprive Signor Matteotti of his liberty.

The news agency also says Filippo Naldi has been taken into custody in Rome on an accusation that he aided Filippelli in his flight; that Signor Volpi has been arrested at Lecco and that Filippelli's chauffeur, Colini, has surrendered to the police in Rome.

Premier Mussolini today received Deputy Matteotti's mother. She made a pathetic plea that the body of her son be given to her if it were found. Signor Mussolini told her that the body had not been found. He added that the Government was doing everything possible to locate her son, dead or alive, and that it was determined to punish whoever was guilty of connection with his disappearance.

The Communists and Socialists attempted to organize a general strike today in protest against the Matteotti affair, but the police maintained order. They prevented demonstrations and seized numerous leaflets inciting workmen to strike.

Signor Bertini, head of the Rome police and an appointee of Premier Mussolini, has been removed from his post and placed on the retired list. His place has been taken by Signor Angelucci, assistant head of the department.

Fascist Editor's Flight.

ROME, June 16.—The escape of Filippelli, editor of the Corriere Italiano, who is under charges in connection with the kidnapping of Signor Matteotti, Socialist Deputy, from the police, was most dramatic. On Saturday the editor was warned by the police not to leave Rome, though no warrant had been issued for his arrest.

However, Filippelli succeeded in eluding the police surveillance and took a room at the hotel. From there he slipped away in an automobile, meeting a Milan train at Civitavecchia, where a friend, Naldi, formerly the editor of a Rome paper, had taken a berth for him under an assumed name.

At Piacenza, Filippelli stepped out to buy newspapers. He was recognized by fellow passengers, who informed the Milan police by telephone. But Filippelli left his belongings on the train at Piacenza and has not been seen since. It is believed that he made his escape in an automobile.

It is now reported that Naldi, who aided in the flight, has been arrested at Bologna.

Attempts by certain sections of the Socialist and Communist parties to organize strikes as a result of the Matteotti affair have failed, only a few of the workers having failed to show up today. The leaders of the Socialist Party opposed the attempt.

Protest Meeting in France.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 16.—The situation arising in Italy over the kidnapping of Signor Matteotti, Italian Socialist Deputy, has aroused the keenest interest here, and the Communist party of France has called a mass meeting for Tuesday at which Socialists, Communists and all the trade unionists of France will be asked to demand justice.

Influential newspapers of the conservative type here are highly uneasy over the situation, which, according to best informed political circles, contains the gravest danger which Fascism has ever faced.

Specifically, those friendly to Premier Mussolini here believe that he has made his first drastic mistake in mobilising the Fascist militia against a possible uprising of the population. The next fortnight, according to the most enthusiastic supporters of the Fascisti, will try the Italian dictatorship to the limit if not place it in grave danger of destruction.

LONDON, June 16.—The fate of Giacomo Matteotti, Italian Deputy, mysteriously missing since last Tuesday, is exciting much interest here because of the effect it may have on the stability of Fascism as the governing power in Italy.

A section of the British press regards the incident and other assaults upon opponents of Fascism as a natural outcome of that movement which is bound to bring it into discredit. The Daily Express, noting Premier Mussolini's efforts to bring the offenders to justice, thinks he may find difficulty, and adds: "He himself is not without responsibility now. He mounted to power by a display of force, and a régime of violence is easier to inaugurate than to end."

LINK CASE TO BANK FAILURE.

Paris Accounts Say Matteotti Was About to Accuse Government.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 16.—An explanation of the remarkable affair of the kidnapping and possible murder of Matteotti, the Italian Socialist Deputy, reached Paris tonight through confidential Italian sources.

Signor Matteotti, when he left his home in Rome, carried a portfolio containing full details of the failure of the Banco Italiano di Sconto two years ago —a great crash in which the savings of hundreds of thousands of Italian citizens were lost. The Fascist chieftains, Aldo Finzi, who just resigned as Under-Secretary of the Interior, and Cesare Rossi, who has just given up the post of Director of Publicity of the Interior Department, were closely allied with the bank and participated in the reorganization which followed the bankruptcy.

Signor Matteotti left his house with a dossier containing material for a slashing exposure of this gigantic scandal involving scores of millions of dollars. He was on the way to Parliament to deliver the greatest speech of his career, in which he intended directly to accuse the Government. Then in broad daylight he was kidnapped in a Rome street and now certainly has been killed, according even to Governmental circles.

Rossi and Finzi have been close friends of Premier Mussolini. They lived with the Premier in Milan, shared his poverty and entered Rome with him at the head of his Black Shirts on Oct. 19, 1922. Now they have been openly accused of the crime and have been obliged to resign from their posts.

Dispatches which are allowed to escape from Rome give no idea of the popular ferment and the general indignation from one end of Italy to the other. Mussolini still disclaims all knowledge of anything which might shed light on the crime, and asserts that Finzi and Rossi are innocent, but it is hardly likely that he will escape all responsibility now.

It is believed here that the crisis can only be solved without violence by immediate abandonment of the Fascist dictatorship, such as the calling of former Premier Giolitti, Italy's "Grand Old Man," to enter the Ministry and restore popular confidence.

HERRIOT'S WARNING ROUSES GERMANS

NATIONALISTS ARE ENRAGED

By T. R. YBARRA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 16.—Germany has been thrown into a ferment by M. Herriot's appointment of General Nollet as War Minister and his warning that he will adopt measures against Germany severer than any yet adopted unless the Germans cease their preparations for a war of revenge against France.

The German Nationalists are raging against the French Premier; Foreign Minister Stresemann is quoted as calling the French Premier's action an unprecedented interference in German internal affairs, and the German Liberals are busily pouring oil on the troubled waters by seeking to prove that M. Herriot's bark will prove worse than his bite.

Dr. Stresemann is quoted as saying that M. Herriot's avowed intention of cooperation only with the democratic German elements is "an official declaration of a foreign Premier which it is impossible for the German Government quietly to overlook if it makes the slightest pretense to independence. M. Herriot's actions will undoubtedly be the main point of discussion at tomorrow's Cabinet session here.

See Herriot as Second Poincare.

As for the German Nationalists, they profess to see in M. Herriot's threats and his appointment of General Nollet, who headed the commission to disarm Germany, complete corroboration of their belief that M. Herriot is merely a second Poincaré. And they have seized the opportunity for coming out more strongly than ever in opposition to Germany's acceptance of the Dawes report.

At a meeting today of the Prussian State organization of the Nationalist Party a resolution was passed demanding that the present German Government be superseded by another before it signs acceptance of the report, which according to the Nationalists, would ruin Germany economically and politically forever. The above-mentioned Nationalist organization, which practically is spokesman for the entire extreme wing of the German Nationalist Party, calls upon the Nationalist Reichstag delegation to protest immediately and most energetically against the Government's continuing to draft the special laws necessary to carry out the Dawes report.

The Prussian Nationalist organization furthermore instructs its Reichstag delegates to use every effort to drive the present Government from power, for which end they should move a vote of lack of confidence at the earliest opportunity, or even impeach the Government at tomorrow's session of the Reichstag Committee on Foreign affairs. The Nationalist resolution is especially leveled at Foreign Minister Stresemann, who is mentioned several times.

On the other hand, the German Liberals, upholders of the present German Government, who believe in conciliation and above all in carrying out the Dawes report, are busily seeking to show that M. Herriot's admonitions and his appointment of General Nollet, a man who is supposed to know more about German war preparations than anybody else, are mere sops to Frenchmen, who still thoroughly distrust Germany and fear the victory of the French Left parties may mean too much lenfency toward Germany and too little attention to French security against future German aggression.

The Liberals argue that M. Herriot has conciliated the defeated French National Bloc and thus paved the way to accomplish what really lies closest to his heart—the reconstruction of Europe by means of frank international understanding.

Liberals Warn the Nationalists.

Optimists believe that M. Herriot having lulled French fears of German aggression will now show himself tractable regarding the interpretation of the Dawes report and consent to evacuate the Ruhr if Germany honestly tries to carry out the report's provisions. German Liberals warn the Nationalists that continuation of their irreconcilable attitude toward everything French, and above all of the militaristic monument unveiling so much in evidence lately, with fiery speeches, goose-stepping parades and sabre rattling invariably accompanying them, may eventually kill M. Herriot's desire to be conciliatory and bring a resumption of Poincaréism or even the return to power of M. Poincaré himself.

The best statement of German Liberal attitude is made today by the noted writer Heimuth von Gerlach, who recently visited Paris. He writes that France having got rid of Poincaré because his policy was unsuccessful and of Millerand because he committed the sin, unforgivable in French eyes, of seeking personal aggrandizement at the expense of constitutionalism, now stands before Germany in a completely transformed political guise, which transformation the German Nationalists are doing their best to conceal for their own ends from the German people.

"The German press of the Right," says Herr von Gerlach, "speculating on the boundless ignorance of its readers, will do its utmost to falsify the significance of the Versailles vote and make it appear to mean the opposite of what it really means. France has completely faced about.

"Germany will derive advantage from this about-face only if she completely changes her policy toward France. The world awaits from Germany a manifestation of good-will proportionate to what the new France has shown. Is the world to be disappointed? If so, the inevitable result will be that the isolation incurred by France under Poincaré and Millerand will be shifted to Germany."

Koch Also Raps Nationalists.

Similar opinions are expressed by other liberal organs friendly to the Marx-Stresemann Government, notably the Socialist Daily Vorwärts. Also in the same strain was a speech yesterday by former Cabinet Minister Koch, who warned the Nationalists how dangerous it was to "criticise foreign policies without showing how they might be bettered," and sarcastically pointed out the need of publishing in Germany a "Manual for Opposition Leaders," which might prevent them from promising what they could not perform.

But despite everything the extreme Nationalists, irreconcilable foes both of the present German Government and of France, no matter how governed, continue on their road unperturbed. There's no cessation of militaristic unveiling of war monuments, at which the German Princes, Ludendorff, &c., appear in glittering steel helmets and bemedaled uniforms, and fire-eaters breathe hatred of France and the hope of an early revanche.

RUSSIANS TURNING TO LATIN ALPHABET

Change Ordered for Subordinate Languages and Is Favored by Some for Russian Also.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 16. — The Bolsheviki have achieved another revolution in Russia—the conversion of the script of the minor nationalities to Latin, that is English, lettering. The reform is to go into effect not later than the end of the year and will chiefly concern the republics of Georgia, Azerbadjan, the Tartar Republic and semi or wholly Mongol tribes of the Far East.

Caucasia today has a whirligig alphabet of loops and curves that resembles nothing on earth. The Tartars use a scrip something like the Arabic and the Mongols a type of Chinese lettering. In addition there are scores of tribes with their own variations of these three, up to the primitive clans in the extreme north whose only script is reputed to be a phonetic shorthand on a modified Pitman model introduced by foreign missionaries for translation of the Bible. Henceforth all will use their own language and grammar, but English letters which it is suggested here is preparing the way for the wholesale conversion of Russia from the Cyrillic—that is semi-Greek script of the Constantinople priests who first converted the Scythian tribes of Russia to Christianity —to Latin alphabet. Rumania actually changed from the Cyrillic to Latin as late as the final quarter of the nineteenth century, and there is a strong current of opinion here in favor of the same change in Russia.

TWO TRIED IN GERMANY FOR SLAYING A BELGIAN

Confessions Are Reported in Crime for Which Belgian Court Sentenced Six Germans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 16.—At the Stettin Criminal Court today began the trial of two men accused of the murder of the Belgian, Lieutenant Graff, in Hamborn, Westphalia.

Unusual interest attaches to the case because a Belgian court in the Ruhr district has already sentenced to death for the same crime the Prussian Police Lieutenant Reinhardt and five other German policemen. The sentence was afterward commuted to life imprisonment.

Now the Germans have got hold of two men named Kaws and Schirrat, who, "to assuage the pangs of conscience," confessed that with the aid of one Engeler they killed Lieutenant Graff by mistake.

On March 20, 1920, a Belgian police agent name Schmitz, in Hamborn in an altercation with a German policeman named Chmilewski, shot and killed the latter. For this crime, assuming he acted in self-defense, a Belgian court sentenced Schmitz to two years' imprisonment, which afterward was reduced to six months.

Two days afterward the Belgian Lieutenant, Graff, was killed, as presumed, for revenge and the German Lieutenant, Reinhardt, and five of his men were convicted of the crime. Three months later Kaws and Schirrat confessed that they had mistaken Graff for Schmitz and killed him.

Reports to League on Hungary.

GENEVA, June 16.—Jeremiah Smith of Boston, League of Nations Commissioner for Hungary's financial reconstruction, has returned to Budapest, after rendering a report of conditions to the League of Nations Council here.

WANT LEAGUE ISSUE IN COMING ELECTION

PREDICT WE WILL JOIN IT

"Leaguephobia," Created by Propaganda, Blamed by Frederic R. Coudert for Keeping Us Out.

Plans to press the League of Nations as a Presidential campaign issue were applauded at the annual meeting and dinner of the Greater New York branch of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association in the Hotel Brevoort last night. The suggestion, made by Frederic R. Coudert, an officer of the association, met with enthusiastic support, and Mr. Coudert said that while the Republican Party had pronounced the League dead, time would show that it was not dead at all.

Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the association, presided.

Mr. Fosdick, who spoke first, described how the League was functioning and contrasted its present-day activities with the absence of any such machinery in 1914, when "a misunderstanding over a batch of telegrams plunged the world into war without even a conference to see whether the matters at dispute could be settled without bloodshed."

"We who favor the League of Nations have a plan," he said. "Those who oppose it have nothing to propose. You can't get along with negations. I don't know whether the plan can succeed or not, but I do know that it is the only plan suggested by which the nations of the world can get together and if this fails I believe civilizations will go down to disaster."

Mr. Coudert, in his address, said:

"Had we been asked a few years ago whether if fifty-two nations of the world got together and established a world tribunal the United States would join it we would have laughted at the question. We were the first nation, by the Hay treaty, to establish the principle of discussing international disputes, and yet today the League tribunal is functioning without the adherence of the United States. If it were not tragic it would be ridiculous.

"For some reason or other the first organized attempt of nations to get together to substitute law for war has become a great bogy throughout the United States. What is the reason, for there is reason even in unreason? I think I have found out what it is.

"A certain group of intellectual leaders, who for purposes of their own decided to destroy the League, or keep the United States out of it, managed by resorting to crowd psychology to poison the mind of the country and thus was created what I will call Leaguephobia. It was a false picture painted by a small group of wilful, misinformed and selfish men between the years 1919 and 1920. It must be the business of this organization to paint the real picture.

"The League is not ideal, but it is the realization of an ideal. The United States cannot and will not stand out for ever."

He then urged the association to press the issue home in a campaign.

Louis Wiley suggested that an effort be made to have the Council of the League hold a session in Canada as an enlightenment to the Western world. He supported the suggestion of Mr. Coudert that an effort be made to put a League plank in the Democratic National platform.

Officers Are Elected.

The following were chosen at the election of officers: Raymond B. Fosdick, Chairman; the Hon. Frederic R. Coudert, Vice Chairman; Clarence Bishop Smith, Treasurer; Mrs. Winter Russell, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Maximilian Elser, Corresponding Secretary.

Executive Committee — Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, Chairman; Glenn Frank, Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, Arthur Dunn, the Rev. John H. Lathrop, Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, the Rev. Henry V. B. NEW MORGAN PARTNER.

Son of Late Ambassador Sir Michael Herbert Joins London House.

LONDON, June 16.—The London Times announces that Michael George Herbert has become a partner in Messrs. Morgan, Grenfell & Co.

Mr. Herbert is the younger son of the late Sir Michael Herbert, ex-Ambassador to Washington, who married a daughter of Richard Wilson, the New York banker.

Michael George Herbert's father, the late Sir Michael Herbert, was appointed British Ambassador to this country in 1902. His mother, the late Lady Herbert, was formerly Miss Leila Wilson, daughter of the late Richard T. Wilson of New York. Lady Herbert's eldest sister Mary, who married Ogden Goelet, became mother of the Duchess of Roxburghe. Her sister Grace married Cornelius Vanderbilt Sr. She was a sister of M. Orme Wilson and R. T. Wilson, a patron of the American turf.

HERRIOT OPENS RUHR TO 7,000 GERMANS

hopes of revenge combine with hopes to escape paying reparations. Facing this situation, it would be folly to reduce our army. General Nollet knows full well the truth of this statement."

The Matin declares that instead of 100,000 men divided into seven divisions of infantry and three of cavalry Germany has 250,000 men, fully trained and equipped, composed almost entirely of officers and noncoms of the former Imperial Army, and in addition, by virtue of her secret and camouflaged military organizations, an enormous number of men organized by Ludendorff and von Seekt. It estimates that 30,000 of these organizations exist in Germany, comprising at least 3,500,000 men.

Report on War Preparations.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 16.—Germany can undertake a defensive war within six months if the military preparations now under way continue, is the gist of a report of the Interallied Military Commission, stationed at Berlin, which General Nollet, just made Secretary of War, presented to Premier Herriot today.

The statement outlines the entire work of the Disarmament Commission since the armistice and enumerates the war material and munitions surrendered to the Allies or destroyed in accordance with the Versailles Treaty. It also takes up the demobilization of the army and the creation of the Reichswehr which was limited to 100,000 men.

The report shows that terms were violated or evaded by the nation with a huge reservoir of potential soldiers under the form of secret services, boy scouts, police and gymnastic schools.

It is also pointed out how the war factories are still able on short notice to revert to the making of munitions and shells and how the chemical industry is able to begin the production of enormous amounts of deadly gasses at an instant's notice.

Various factories are still able to produce vast quantities of airplanes within a short period, the report adds.

Premier Herriot will submit the report to the Council of Ambassadors and also discuss it with Prime Minister MacDonald.

Herriot to Confer With Theunis.

BRUSSELS, June 16.—M. Herriott, the new French Prime Minister, has informed M. Theunis, the Belgian Prime Minister, that he will be very pleased on his return from London to have a conversation with the Belgian Prime Minister and M. Hymans, the Foreign Minister, on the reparations question.

HERRIOT URGES US TO JOIN THE LEAGUE

French Premier Says It Will Be Reformed, but From Within.

A plea for American cooperation in the League of Nations is voiced by Edouard Herriot, the new French Premier, in an article published yesterday in Foreign Affairs, the American quarterly review, in which he outlines the program of his party.

"It was a great blow to us when the United States refused to become a party to the hopes raised by the formation of the League," says M. Herriot. "I have no intention of judging the actions of good and true friends, much less to complain of them. I merely deplore them. The arguments used against the League are perhaps valid, in view of traditions which have their merit and usefulness. But it was on another plane—on a higher plane—that we wished to place ourselves.

"Though we are ready to defer to the criticisms of our American friends, we nevertheless beg them to sit down with us at the peace table. It is good to succor orphans; it is a finer thing to leave them their fathers. More, far more, than any political duty is the moral duty which calls us to join forces.

"The League of Nations will be reformed. But it is necessary to reform it from within, not attack it from without. I look forward to the day when the democratic people of America will say to the democrats of France, 'We are here!'"

Writing on relations with Germany, M. Herriot says that his party associates itself in the most explicit fashion with the great national claims of France for reparations, and would consider it impossible to tolerate "on the very threshold of this new era, the immoral spectacle of a Germany exonerated from her debts."

"The problem of reparations," he goes on, "seems to us one of morality even more than one of economics or finance. For the economic solution we cheerfully accept the report of the experts. But Germany must carry out its provisions. We should take it in the worst possible part if, by citing misfortunes which she has in large part brought down on her own head, Germany, where imperialism still lingers, should escape from her obligations with the complicity of certain other nations. That would lead directly and inevitably to war.

"This being said, it must be added that we nevertheless will not associate ourselves in any manner with the policies of nationalists and chauvinists. To wish for the destruction of Germany is stupid, from both the moral and political point of view. A people cannot be destroyed. We regret sincerely that the French Government has failed to make a distinction between the Germany of the Junkers—which still lives—and democratic Germany, which is still very weak but which should be encouraged to gather its forces.

"One of the highest laws of intelligence tells us that nothing frees a conquering nation from the necessity of having a policy that takes into consideration the rights of the conquered. Rome understood this. Without sacrificing any of the rights of France, we should have wished to see this example followed. In other words, we wish success to the German Republic, and if she will accept—not hypocritically, but honestly—the report of the experts, we should willingly try to reach a modus vivendi, the application of which would necessitate a more general agreement for peace."

That England and France are two complementary nations "whose mutual accord forms the indispensable adjunct for the establishment of world peace" is the opinion of the Radical leader in regard to Anglo-French relations. "We democrats," he says, "feel that men of lofty purpose should, despite differences in temperament, maintain between France and Great Britain a very necessary 'mariage de raison.' So long as international agencies of arbitration fail to undertake the preservation of world peace, the coalition between the Liberals of England and the Radicals of France appears indispensable, if Europe is to be saved from some of the follies to which she is so often subjected."

The shadow across the picture of European polity in the present situation in Russia, "a country stripped of the last convulsions of communism," declares M. Herriot. "But against communistic provocations, this puerile propaganda, these melodramatic threats, this assault of ignorance, this self-conceit (O the pride of the Russian!), what is to be arrayed? Barriers of troops? The famous curtains of barbed wire, invented by M. Clemenceau, revolutionist turned reactionary? I say no. I have sufficient confidence in the spirit of liberty to be willing to leave the Russian problem to it; it has solved many others.

"On the day when the democrats of the world resume normal relations, or at least commercial relations, with the Bolsheviki, Europe will not have been Bolshevized, but rather the Bolsheviki will have become transformed. On the day when Soviet diplomats are received at Paris and Washington they will not impose on their colleagues the Russian blouse; they will be the most faithful propagandists of the dinner jacket."

tion with the Anglo-Mexican crisis. Mr. MacDonald also received the Mexican Minister to Stockholm, who was recently seeking to negotiate a preliminary convention here, and made strong representations to him on the subject of Mr. Cummins's treatment for transmission to President Obregon's Government." In an editorial article The Daily Telegraph says:

"It is reasonable to hope that the self-defeating imprudence as well as the indefensible discourtesy of the Mexican Government's procedure will by this time have been brought home to it and that there will be no delay in putting an end to a state of things of which every civilized country, by the action of its diplomatic representative in Mexico, has recorded its strong disapproval."

The London Times says editorially:

"Great Britain is almost the only country which has not recognized the Obregon Government. Opinion in business circles is very divided on this point and it is believed to be largely on the advice of Mr. Cummins that recognition hitherto has been withheld. Mr. Cummins has shown himself a fearless advocate of British rights, but, owing to the peculiar relations which long existed between himself and the Obregon Government, he manifestly is not the man to conduct negotiations, which will demand unusual patience and tact.

The Daily News says:

"So far as can be gathered at present, Mr. Cummins's sole crime was too much zeal for British interests, but it is difficult to see what good purpose the British Government can serve by insisting it should be represented by a person so manifestly obnoxious to the Mexican authorities. Probably the underlying motive for this display of personal hostility is official irritation at our inexplicable delay in recognizing the Obregon Administration. A Government which is good enough to pass tests applied by the United States ought to be good enough for us."

MEXICO CITY, June 16.—The Federation of Labor, which has been giving 60,000 pesos monthly with additional supplies of foodstuffs to the Aguila Oil Company strikers, has decided to eliminate these benefits owing to refusal of the strikers to abide by the decision reached between the Federation and the Aguila company, which granted 90 per cent. of the demands of the strikers.

The Federation also has issued orders that any member of the union is at liberty to return to work and strikers who failed to return to work in specified time would be expelled from the Federation.

A second case of discipline was the suspension of the union of street car operators for six months. The union of tramway workers was the first radical union in Mexico, but later became more conservative and joined the Federation.

CUMMINS HOLDS OUT IN BRITISH LEGATION

MEXICO CITY, June 16.—The case of Cunard Cummins remains in statu quo. The police still are guarding the British Legation, refusing entrance to the building except upon presentation of an order signed by the Minister of Foreign Relations. It is reported that water and light have been cut off from the legation, but it is believed that Mr. Cummins has sufficient supplies on hand.

It is believed that efforts of the Minister of Chile, Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, to make an agreement that would enable Mr. Cummins to leave without police escort will bear fruit.

The British colony as a whole has refrained from commenting on the situation.

It is stated that the Mexican Government will refrain from further action except carefully guarding the legation to prevent entrance and in case Mr. Cummins leaves to arrest him.

Comment among Mexicans strongly supports the attitude of the Government, as they believe that the British Government should have removed Mr. Cummins at the first indication of the Mexican Government that the Chargé des Archives was persona non grata.

ASSEMBLY TO PASS ON LIMITING NAVIES

League Council Defers Calling Nations Not Party to Washington Treaty.

KEEPS CONTROL OF AUSTRIA

Warns Her of Need of Further Economies—Branting Named Head of Labor Bureau.

GENEVA, June 16 (Associated Press).—The extension of the principles of the Washington naval treaty to countries which did not participate in the American conference is proving so difficult of accomplishment that the Council of the League of Nations decided today to seek wisdom from the next Assembly of the League. When the representatives of fifty-four powers meet in Geneva in September they will be asked, in view of the differences of opinion arising in the preliminary conference in Rome, to define as clearly as possible the essential principles on which an international conference for the limitation of naval armament should be based.

A resolution to this end was adopted after Dr. Edouard Benes, in his capacity as reporter for the Naval Commission, had made clear the difficulties already encountered and after Dr. Souza Dantas had insisted upon Brazil's fundamental policy of pacifism and had emphasized at the same time Brazil's need of replacing her old warships. Brazil, he said, did not wish to increase her naval strength, but for purposes of self-defense would ask for the right to maintain her present navy in first-class form and renew obsolete units.

There is considerable discussion in Geneva tonight whether it may not be desirable to combine the naval conference now under consideration of the League with the general conference on armament reduction which President Coolidge has suggested for some later date.

Geneva had a day replete with activities; for, in addition to the meeting of the League Council, the annual International Labor Conference inaugurated a program devoted to the amelioration of the lot of the workers.

Hjalmar Branting, Swedish statesman and labor leader, was elected President of the labor conference, and the opening addresses were noteworthy in that they emphasized the fact that conditions in Europe were steadily improving and voiced an abiding faith in the future of the League of Nations International Labor Bureau as a means for attaining the most serviceable peace and the happiness of mankind.

Dr. Branting declared his belief that recent world political changes proved that the people were coming into their own; and this fact, he said, augured well, for the people always wanted peace.

Summarizing the naval situation to the League Council, Dr. Benes explained that certain States, notably Rumania and Portugal, had expressed a desire to participate in the technical work of a new preliminary conference. After the meeting of the experts at Rome, with its diverse opinions, Rumania wrote, advocating another technical conference, "which will take the necessary steps to reconcile the different interests involved as far as practicable."

On the other hand, Dr. Benes explained, several countries, among them Great Britain, Sweden, Denmark and Holland, declared their opposition to further technical meetings. He asserted that the Rome conference revealed the existence of two quite different points of view.

According to one, the question was that of the extension, pure and simple, to non-signatory Powers of two principles of the Washington treaty, the first fixing the tonnage of capital ships on the basis of the status quo, the date for which is still to be named, and the second a naval holiday. According to the other view, the question was one of the limitation of armaments to the figures determined for each of the States concerned, regard being paid to national security and to the intention of Article 8 of the convention.

Dr. Benes believed that it was too much to hope that these two views could be reconciled. In the light of the differences of opinion with regard to principles and also to the procedure to be followed in the matter of the limitation of naval armaments he recommended that the Council lay the whole question before the League Assembly to decide whether the original scope of the international conference should be maintained, or whether it should be enlarged so as to admit of discussion of the two points of view previously outlined.

This recommendation was approved, with the understanding that the Assembly should also be requested to give advice concerning the most suitable date for the proposed international conference.

The Council today refused to release Austria from League control, or fix a date on which the liberation of gold would become effective, but agreed to institute a special inquiry as to whether it would be possible to meet Austria's request to raise her annual figures of expenditure.

The Council warned Austria that further economies were necessary and agreed with the Financial Commissioner that the Austrian loan should be utilized for budget deficits, and that it would be a breach of faith to expend any part of the loan on public works unless authorized by the bondholders.

The Council registered its judgment that the Government Commission in the Sarre Valley was collectively responsible for its acts, and that the members could not reach decisions on their own initiative. It will discuss tomorrow the German petition for the right to increase exports to the Sarre Valley which would be free of duty.

VIENNA IS DISAPPOINTED.

Press Is Bitterly Critical of League's Continuance of Control.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 16.—The events at Geneva have brought greatest disappointment to Austria, where it was hoped that the next few days would settle once and for all the question of the so-called normal budget and the use of the remainder of the international credit.

The decision to send another commission to Austria to investigate the financial situation has stirred the whole country. As the papers point out, this will be the second commission within four months to study Austrian conditions. The Austrians feel that they have made a stupendous effort that has been unappreciated abroad.

The Freie Presse, in bitter criticism, points out that in spite of the obstacles and all limitations created by the Peace Treaty, Austria has saved itself from a debacle and surely deserves a better fate. This paper further argues that sentimentality is not a failing of the League and refers to the harsh decision of the League, with Chancellor Seipel sick in bed and unable to attend the Geneva meeting.

The Sonnmontag Zeitung says that Austria's most modest hopes have not been fulfilled, either in the question of the budget, or in the use of credit, and Austrians must continue their economies. The paper adds that distrust has evidently not yet disappeared and that Austria is to remain like a ward under the control of a guardian.

WOODS BACK HOME, URGES NEW POLICY

SAYS JAPAN IS WILLING

He Thinks Bad Feeling There Will Otherwise Be Lasting—Sees No Danger of War.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 16.—Cyrus E. Woods, who has resigned as Ambassador to Japan, arrived today from Yokohama, en route to Washington to report to Secretary Hughes.

Mr. Woods said at Victoria, B. C., where the transpacific liner President McKinley touched, that he would urge the United States to reconsider the policy of exclusion of immigration from the Far East as recently put into law.

"Japan does not want to force emigrants upon the United States if we do not wish to receive them," he said.

"The Japanese Government, I believe, would be willing to agree to almost any form of restrictive treaty, but the exclusion provision in the immigration bill has struck them a blow to their national pride.

"While there was deep feeling among all classes of Japanese against the passage of the exclusion act, I have seen no action that was not in keeping with the dignity of the people of a great nation."

Anti-American attacks in Japanese newspapers, Mr. Wood said, were not inspired by the Government.

Mr. Woods said there is no immediate ending for an admitted period of bad feeling against America, short of replacing the exclusion act by restrictive treaty.

"The present feeling," he said, "is likely to be lasting."

He said, however, that he does not believe this feeling will grow to the extent of involving the nations in war.

"Both nations have too much good sense," he added.

"The exclusion act," he said, "came into sharp contract with America's attitude of instant relief from all classes when Japan was stricken by earthquake. The people of Japan were and are at a loss to understand what happened, they were surprised and hurt, rather than resentful."

Mr. Woods commented on the reception that had been acorded the visiting American around-the-world fliers in Japan.

"They were so flooded with invitations that it became virtually necessary for me to order them to accept some of them," he said. "The Military Attaché of the embassy and the advance officer of the flight came to me when the fliers arrived with the announcement that the aviators said they would have to devote all their available time to the care of their planes and engines. I called the fliers in and told them that I was 100 per cent. for their idea of putting the business of the flight ahead of pleasure, but that it would be necessary for them to accept official entertainment from the Government. So they accepted invitations from Prince Kan-In of the royal house, from the President of the aeronautical society and from the Minister of War, and then put in the rest of their time tuning up their planes."

Mr. Woods insisted that his resignation was not on account of the enactment of exclusion, but was solely due to the critical health of Mrs. Mary T. Marchand, Mrs. Woods's mother, who was injured in the earthquake that wrecked Tokio and Yokohama in September.

"I am not so thin-skinned that I would have resigned on account of the exclusion act," he declared.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Marchand left today for Washington. He said that he intended to return to his home in Greensburg, Pa., and might be active in the current political campaign.

In the steerage of the McKinley were 288 Japanese, many being girls who did not seem over 12 years old. Most of the Japanese were hurrying to enter the United States before exclusion becomes effective, on July 1.

LABORITES LOSE AGAIN IN VOTE IN COMMONS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—The Labor Government suffered another defeat in the House of Commons tonight on a minor measure. Even members of their own front bench voted against them, the figures being 189 against the Government and 126 in their favor.

J. H. Clynes, the Lord Privy Seal, who was leading the House, made it immediately clear, however, that the Government did not regard the reverse as a defeat of first-class importance.

It was a motion by P. Harris, a Liberal member, which brought about the Ministry's disconcerting experience. His motion sought to prevent the traffic combination from extending its control over London traffic by working through a number of small omnibus companies.

The Government opposed the measure and put its whips on, but the Conservatives joined the Liberals to carry it by sixty-three majority.

REPLY TO JAPANESE ON THE WAY TO TOKIO

It Was Handed to Hanihara Yesterday and Will Be Made Public Thursday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The American reply to the Japanese protest against the exclusion provisions of the new immigration law were handed to Ambassador Hanihara by Secretary Hughes at the State Department shortly before noon today. At the same time it was announced that by an agreement between the American and Japanese Governments, the reply will be made public simultaneously in Tokio and Washington in the morning papers of Thursday, June 19.

Pending such publication, the State Department feels that it would be discourteous for this Government to indicate the nature of its reply, and especially in advance of its receipt in Tokio.

The note was taken to the Japanese Embassy, where code experts began the work of putting it into cipher for transmission. As the communication is lengthy, it was stated that the coding could not be completed before 10 o'clock tonight, but its text should be in Tokio some time tomorrow.

Meanwhile, State Department officials asked that no attempt be made by speculative reports to forecast its contents.

Ambassador Hanihara will probably leave for Tokio about July 10.

JAPANESE BOYCOTT FAILS.

Agitation by a Native Firm Against Films Is Ignored.

TOKIO, June 16 (Associated Press).—While anti-American agitation is showing definite signs of subsidence in Tokio, it is continuing very actively in other cities.

In Yokohama 2,000 longshoremen have agreed not to handle goods from the United States. Barbers have agreed not to deal with Americans, and school children, including those in institutions maintained by American mission workers, are agitating against exclusion.

American motion picture films and foreign styles of dancing are targets for attacks in Kobe and Osaka by self-styled "patriots." The boycott of American films, launched by some Tokio theatre owners, has broken down in Tokio and in western cities. Native producers here are continuing their agitation, but two of the largest local theatres will show American-made films after July 1.

In Kobe and Osaka efforts by producers against the boycott have failed. A marked increase in sales of anti-American literature is reported by Japanese bookdealers, according to the vernacular newspapers. Among books which are said to have had a large sale since the exclusion agitation began are: "Shall Japan and America Fight?" "Our Enemy Across the Pacific," and "The Future Japanese-American War."

MEXICO BARS JAPANESE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CTY, June 16.—It is reported that the Japanese Government will protest against the action of the Immigration Inspector at the port of Manzanillo who ordered the re-embarking of sixty Japanese subjects who had landed from a Japanese steamer. The Japanese, it is said, carried papers in perfect order with the visa of the Mexican Consul in Tokio. They had $50,000 among them.

The Immigration Inspector stated he was obeying instructions from Mexico.

MAMMALS OF ASIA FOR MUSEUM HERE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—A successful big game shooting trip through Burma and Siam has been made by Arthur S. Vernay of New York and Lieut.-Col. Percy Smith, Indian Army, retired, who was lately Deputy Inspector General of Military Police at Rangoon. They were accompanied on their exploration of the little known Tauk Plateau—partly in Burma and partly in Siam—by Willoughby Lowe of the British museum.

The main object of the expedition was the collection of specimens of mammal bird and reptile life to be housed in the American Museum of Natural History in New York, each in its natural surroundings.

Altogether 200 specimens of animals and more than 1,000 specimens of birds and reptiles were obtained, and cinematograph pictures were taken, illustrating the specimens and their haunts. These pictures will be used for the purpose of lectures in the museum.

Mr. Vernay says they found mammal life somewhat scarce in Siam, but had good fortune to shoot a tapir at latitude 15 degrees, a point much further north than any had ever before been found in Siam.

The expedition had great good luck to get a specimen of the smallest mammal in the world, a pigmy shrew, about 2½ miles southeast of Umpang. These little animals, half an inch at the shoulder, are so cunning and small that even a mouse trap is too big for them.

The Siamese Government, on hearing that the hunting expedition had crossed their border, furnished a police escort to Bangkok, where the hunters were very hospitably entertained and given every assistance in their work. By the time they reached Bangkok they had some wonderful specimens of birds, including many species of hornbill. From Bangkok they proceeded to India, where they spent a few days with the British envoy at Nepal, Colonel O'Connor.

In Assam they bagged two superb specimens of buffalo, a bull which measured, around the outside curve of the horn and across the forehead to the other tip, 110 inches. They also got a cow a little later with a spread of 109 inches, tip to tip. Both specimens have been shipped to America.

The New York museum particularly wanted a specimen of rhinoceros sumatraensis, as they had none, though they posses a specimen of the great Indian one-horned rhinoceros. As the rhinoceros sumatraensis was said to inhabit a certain part of Burma, Sir Harcourt Butler, Govefnor of Burma, was again approached for permission to visit Burma and obtain this specimen in the cause of science, as it is now a protected animal in Burma. He gave permission for one specimen to be shot. Mr. Vernay has now proceeded to Nairobi, East Africa, on another expedition.

TRY LILLY RESIDENT ON MURDER CHARGE

Witnesses Testify He Threw Missile in Affray With Klansmen.

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 16.—Witnesses called by the State today in the trial of William Monahan of Lilly, charged with murder and manslaughter in connection with the death of three men at Lilly in the fight last April between members of the Ku Klux Klan and residents of the town, testified that Monahan hurled a missile into the crowd soon after the disturbance began. A physician testified that he was unable to tell what caused the death of Cloyd Paul, named in the indictment as one of the victims.

Monahan, who is a coal miner and will be 18 years old tomorrow, is the first resident of Lilly to be tried on a murder indictment in connection with the affray. Samuel Evans, an alleged member of the Ku Klux Klan, was acquitted of a murder charge Saturday. Besides Monahan seventeen other alleged Klansmen and twelve more residents of Lilly are under similar indictments.

Paul was hit by a bullet coming fom the Lilly side according to Tine Walker, a Lilly resident, who said he was standing by Paul when the latter fell. He and Paul were watching Klansmen marching to the railroad station. He saw the flash of a pistol behind them. Howard Paul, a brother, was called to testify that Cloyd Paul was killed in the affray. He stated that his brother was not a Klansman.

George Summers, an assistant passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and G. H. Rosenberry and Wilbur Sharrets, members of the crew of the special train that carried the Klansmen from Johnstown and other places to Lilly and return, testified that the first two shots came from the Lilly side and that then the firing became general. Summers said a Klansman he failed to identify fired four or five shots over his shoulder.

CLEGG WINS 5TH AV. PRIZE.

Designs Cover for Book Marking Thoroughfare's Centennial.

The Fifth Avenue Association announced yesterday that Ernest Clegg, artist and illuminator, had won a prize of $500 for the best cover design for its centennial book, "Fifth Avenue, Old and New—1824 to 1924."

The centre of Mr. Clegg's design is an old map of New York showing Fifth Avenue, around which are inserts of certain points as they looked long ago and as they look today. One pair shows Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street in 1858, the year before the Croton Reservoir was built at that point, and the same spot as it looks today. The modern traffic-directing tower and the coach-and-pair congestion of the middle of the last century also are contrasted.

LUNCHEON FOR E. L. DOHENY

Nelson O'Shaughnessy and Judge Richard Campell the Hosts.

A luncheon was given in honor of Edward L. Doheny at the University Club yesterday by Nelson O'Shaughnessy and Judge Richard Campbell. Patrick Francis Murphy was Chairman, and other speakers included Judge Campbell and Thomas Woodlock. It was announced that the guests present had commissioned Edmund T. Quinn, who also was present, to make a portrait bust in marble of Mr. Doheny, to be presented to Mrs. Doheny.

Among those present were W. C. Larkin, T. J. Maloney, Eugene Kincaid, R. H. Kohlsaat, James Reeves, W. F. Kenny, Joseph Grace, Francis J. McCann, Edward Kenny, Fire Chief John Kenlon, the Rev. E. H. Tierney, Martin T. Martin, and Edward J. Gavigan.

RICH BACHELOR SUED FOR $1,750 A MONTH

SAYS HE MADE LIFE PLEDGE

Young Woman Asserts It Was to Prevent Breach of Promise Proceeding—He Denies Her Claims.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 16.—Jefferson Livingston, a well-known horseman, who is rated at several million dollars, is the defendant in a suit begun here today by Miss Muriel Buell of Shore Acres, Mamaroneck, in which she seeks to obtain $1,750 a month for life from him. She says that he made a written agreement with her in March, 1923, in which he promised to give her this sum monthly if she agreed not to sue for breach of promise to marry. She alleges that the money was paid up to the first of the year, but that the payments then ceased.

Samuel Untermyer, appearing before Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser today in behalf of Mr. Livingston, denied the existence of such a contract, either written or verbal.

Miss Buell, through Counsel Frederick Klein of Manhattan, moved before Justice Morschauser today, for an examination of the defendant before trial, and the Justice reserved decision, directing that all papers be filed with him at a later date.

The plaintiff is a pretty auburn haired woman of 28, and she contends that she met Livingston, who is a bachelor, 62 years old, through a mutual friend, Matt J. Winn, at the Hotel Belmont in 1922. Soon afterward, she says, Livingston invited her to racing events on Long Island, golf matches, theatres and dinners. On one occassion, she says, he took her to Chicago to meet his sisters, Mrs. Louis Pierce, Mrs. Clara Sweet and Miss Minnie Livingston. Seeking to win their approval of her as a sister-in-law, Later he proposed marriage, she asserts.

In March of 1923, Miss Buell told reporters today, Livingston discovered that he and Miss Buell had religious differences, and to prevent her suing him for breach of promise he signed an agreement to pay $1,750 a month to her for life. She says the money came to her each month until the first of this year.

"The suit is an attempt at blackmail," Mr. Untermyer told Justice Morschauser today. "Livingston met Miss Buell over the telephone in 1922, and the next day he saw her at the Hotel Belmont. Later she started modestly to spend his money. At first she spent $2,000 a month of it, but later the sum grew to $8,000 a month, and that was too rich for his blood. She was learning too fast."

In addition to having Mr. Untermyer as counsel today, Livingston was represented by Judge Robet S. Johnstone of New York, and several other attorneys.

Livingston lives at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

Mrs. Martha M. Stone's Will Is Filed in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 16.—Bequests of $200,000 each were made to the Widows and Old Men's Home and the Children's Home by the will of Mrs. Martha M. Stone, which was filed in Probate Court today by Attorney William J. Rielly. Mrs. Stone was the widow of Captain George Stone, once an official of the Cincinnati & Suburban Bell Telephone Company.

Mary Stone Stout of Cairo, Egypt, a stepdaughter, gets the pearl and diamond rings of the deceased and $20,000 in cash. Martha Evelyn Stout, a daughter, will receive certain jewels and $20,000 in cash when she becomes of age. Eleanore M. Versein of Paris, France, will receive jewelry and $20,000 in cash. George Stone Carey, a step-grandson, will receive silverware, furniture and $20,000 in cash.

Amelia Icard, Mrs. Stone's maid, is given $10,000 in cash and some jewelry. Molly Kennedy Troy of Cincinnati, formerly a maid, is given $5 000 in cash.

No official estimate of the estate was given.

ting ahead and I wanted my own business. That's all up now, but you've got to give me credit for one thing—I wrote my way out of Elmira."

Taken before a Magistrate in New City for a perfunctory arraignment, De Pascal was brought back to New York by Larkin and Marron, and the complaint to which he pleaded guilty was read in Yorkville Court. Magistrate McQuade held him in $3,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

Stole When He Was 14.

The lad's record, according to the police, dates back to when he was 14 years of age. He was then accused of grand larceny and sent to the House of Refuge. He did one term in Elmira in 1919 for burglary and twice later sentence was suspended, but in 1922 he violated his parole and went back to the reformatory. It was while he was there that Pascal wrote the essays that won him his freedom. He entered these in a contest promoted by the Advertising Club of New York. Although not eligible, as competitors were restricted to college and high school students, De Pascal received a watch as a special prize. He presented his essays in printed form, and a copy, found by the police among his effects, had this notation:

"With time cheap as it is in a place of this kind I was able to put more time into the thing than one on the outside who has many other things to attend to."

De Pascal previously had attracted the attention of Dr. Frank L. Christian, Superintendent of the reformatory. He had been taught stenography and typewriting. When he won the advertising prize he was released in the belief that he would be able to find a job on the strength of the award and would go straight.

De Pascal did find a job, Charles Manschel, President of the International Ticket Company of 50 Grafton Avenue, Newark, took an interest in him and gave him employment. He was found to be highly imaginative and wrote form letters. It was said at the offices of the company, however, that he had no business ability and his ideas, while valuable, had to be worked over. Still, it was admitted that he was getting along well. He was industrious, never missed a day, and officials of the company were getting more and more confidence in him each week.

A week ago Friday a man who said he was a Deputy Sheriff from Essex Fells, N. J., called at the office of the company and asked for De Pascal. He did not give the nature of his business, but when De Pascal heard he was there he left the building hurriedly by another door. He never returned.

Mr. Manschel was out of town yesterday, but another official, when informed of De Pascal's arrest, supposed at first that it was in connection with the matter that the Essex Fells deputy called about. He expressed himself as surprised and shocked when told the story of the impersonation and the arrest.

"Remarkable Service"

The New York Times:

After attending the theater near Times Square, my wife discovered that her wrist watch had slipped off. We telephoned an advertisement to The New York Times for insertion in the Lost and Found columns. About 1 P. M. on the day the announcement appeared we received a telephone call from the finder of the watch, who had picked it up near 42nd Street and Broadway. We consider this a very remarkable instance of service.

WALL STREET FUNDS IN GAS BANDIT LOOT

Chicago Officials Admit Train Robbery Plunder Is More Than $3,000,000.

CONDUCTOR'S WIFE DEAD

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—More than $3,000,000 was the amount of the plunder in currency and negotiable securities, part of it from Wall Street, obtained by the automobile bandits who last Thursday held up a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train at Rondout, Ill., and forced the mail clerks and guards in charge of the registered mail pouches to surrender under a bombardment of formaldehyde gas bombs.

Police Chief Collins admitted today that a check-up of the missing pouches proved they had contained the millions which make the robbery the most outstanding one in the history of the Railway Mail Service.

The robbed train was delayed for fifteen minutes at Chicago to receive money shipments from the East. It became known today, currency and securities from Wall Street banks for banks in the Northwest being included in the pouches.

One death has been attributed indirectly to the robbery. Mrs. Bertram Sweeney, aged 24, wife of James Sweeney, conductor of the train, died suddenly on another train near Fond du Lac, Wis. Death was pronounced due to heart disease, aggravated by shock upon being informed of the robbery and the danger her husband had been in.

The theory now is that the stolen mail sacks were first buried in the dense forest in Lake County. Later the money and bonds were transferred to other receptacles, the mail sacks were burned and the stolen treasure was carried away to some distant point by fast motor boat, traveling only at night. Murray, the alleged leader of the band, owns several high power automobiles and power boats and several homes at remote points along the Great Lakes.

Several squads of police and Deputy Sheriffs have been put to work searching for likely hiding places in Lake County adjacent to some of the hundreds of small lakes and Summer resorts.

One report said a squad under Lieutenant Norton already had found the hiding place and was keeping it under constant guard in the hope that members of the bandit gang would walk into the trap.

With the reported admissions of J. H. Watson, one of the three women and seven men held as part of the robber band, the police say they expect momentarily to learn the whereabouts of the secret cache in which the money and bonds are hidden, if they have not already done so.

Watson had $20,000 when he was arrested in the raid on the house in which J. E. Wayne, the wounded and identified bandit, and James Murray, former Nineteenth Ward political boss and a beer millionaire, were found hiding under the same bed. None of this money nor any of that carried by the other prisoners has been proved to be part of that taken from the train, but Watson seems to be amply provided with funds. He last night offered $20,000 cash and a "hot tip" as to the whereabouts of the loot for unconditional release. The police pretended to consider his offer and he telephoned to a woman friend in Milwaukee, who drew $20,000 from a safety vault and came immediately to Chicago.

Post Office officials are chafing under alleged "covering-up" tactics of the police. Federal officials say they cannot understand the extreme activity of Chicago police in Lake County, the scene of the robbery, in which the Post Office agents have no jurisdiction. The tremendous political power of Murray is believed to be at work.

A NEW SCHOOL OF ART.

Americans Organize It and Intend to Equal Europe's Best.

A group of American artists whose aim is to give instruction in painting, sculpture and drawing "the equal of any foreign school" have organized the Grand Central School of Art, which will be in the Grand Central Terminal, according to Edmund Greacen, A. N. A., one of the leaders of the movement. In announcing the plans of the school Mr. Greacen says:

"It is to be conducted along American lines, giving students an opportunity for the development of individual expression as opposed to the existent 'follow-the-master' fallacy.

"This plan is based on the fact that a real independence of American art students from European schools and methods has been achieved, and that the students themselves have shown they no longer need to repair to foreign lands for knowledge and practice already in the hands of the artists of their own country.

"The instructors of the new school are strongly representative of the best productivity in painting, sculpture illustration, drawing and design.

"The school will occupy more than 7,000 square feet of floor space and embody six large teaching studios with top skylights, according to the plans of the architect, Julius Gregory of 49 West Forty-fifth Street.

"An initial campaign has just begun, and enrolments are being made at the Grand Central Art Galleries under the direction of the Secretary, Julian Bowes."

14 FIREMEN BURNED IN GASOLINE BLAST

MURTHA, THOMAS, Acting Battalion Chief of the Eighteenth Battalion; severe burns about hands and face; inhaled flames; to Bellevue Hospital.

There were eight injured firemen and an employe of the gas company in Bellevue Hospital last night. One of these was Capt. Frederick. He is a 20 years old. It was his first day as a member of the Fire Department. He lives at 1,249 Fourth Avenue, Astoria, is a son of William F. Frederick, an Engineer of Engine Company 21, the same apparatus to which his son is assigned.

The explosion did little damage to the garage, which is a three-story brick building. It is believed the explosion was caused by gas fumes and heat generated by the fire. Assistant Chief "Smoky Joe" Martin and Inspectors from the Fire Marshal's office are investigating a report that there was a leak in the gasoline tank.

DEAD MAN'S HAND FIRED WARSHIP GUN

Inquiry on Mississippi Disaster Hears of Strange Accident After First Explosion.

SAN PEDRO FEARS OUTBURST

Tension Continues Following Raid on I. W. W.—Four Men Tarred and Feathered.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 16.—But two major theories to explain the tragedy aboard the dreadnought Mississippi, in which forty-eight officers and men sacrificed their lives, remained at the conclusion of today's session of the Naval Board of Inquiry.

One was that the rifle that caused the blast was defective, the other that a portion of one of the index tags attached to each bag of powder, still smoldering, set off the powder before the breech could be closed.

But the cause of the second explosion, which occurred after the stricken fighter had raced into port with its dead and dying, was definitely determined today. George C. I. Ogletree, seaman, first class, a member of the rescue party which found its way into Turret 2, testified that the stiffened and swaying arm of Ensign Marcos Erwin Jr., one of dead victims of the first blast, came into cnotact with the firing switch of Gun 5 as the body was being carried out. The second explosion followed instantly,taking a toll of four more lives.

Ogletree said that he and a comrade were carrying the officer from the turret at the time. They had lifted the body of the officer from the floor and had taken but a few steps forward to the entrance of the death chamber when the arm of the dead officer swayed outward and struck the switch, throwing it on the battery and discharging the gun.

The two major theories, though they are all that remain from the contradictory evidence, statements and accounts of the tragedy, were considerably weakened during the day, but one of them is expected finally to prove correct and to hold the explanation of the tragedy.

The possibility that insufficient air pressure may have been the cause of one of the blasts was virtually dispelled by the testimony of Lieut. Commander W. R. Carter, senior engineer officer of the Mississippi. He introduced his records to show that all the air-compressors on the battleship were running full blast at the time of the explosion. The air pressure, at that time, he said, was shown by the gauges to have been 140 pounds. Just before the final salvo was fired, he declared, the safety valve lifted and fell five or six times, and these valves were set at 140 pounds pressure each.

Conflicting Evidence on Air Pressure.

The compressors are located on the lower deck of the dreadnought, he said, and the air is pumped to the guns for use in opening and closing the breech and blowing out the barrels of the rifle after it has been fired. It was the theory advanced originally that the air compressors failed to work at the critical moment and the smoke and burning fragments therefore remained in the barrel of the rifle to set off the next charge of powder after it had been tamped home.

The testimony of Lieut. Commander Carter was contradicted in part, however, by Turret Captain Wilbur E. Ebel of Turret No. 3. He testified that before his battery commenced firing he noticed that the air pressure was but 120 pounds. Normally, he said, the pressure was maintained at 150 pounds. He immediately ordered that the pressure be brought up to 150 pounds, he said, but after the first salvo the pressure decreased so that only 110 pounds of pressure remained when his battery ceased firing. He deemed this sufficient, however.

Captain Ebel also intimated that the gauges showing the pressure could not always be depended upon. The gauges may show a pressure of 150 pounds, he indicated, though the concentration may be less. As far as he knew, he said, the gauges had never been tested, though they were removed from the dreadnought at Bremerton in October last year.

Ensign F. W. Parsons was the next witness. He stated that after Rifle 5 had gone off in the harbor he noticed that the electric switch was thrown on the storage battery and that he threw it into a neutral or "off" position.

Testimony given previously by Lieut. Commander Reinicke, gunnery officer of the ill-fated fighter, to the effect that all index tags had been removed from the powder bags before they reached the guns, was strengthened by Lieutenant John F. Kennedy, turret officer of No. 1 turret. He declared that he had found all the tags removed from the left and centre cars transporting the powder bags to the guns. Testimony flatly contradicting this, however, had been given by several men who had been in the turret. They had handled the bags, and declared that the tags were attached to them just before they were tamped home in the guns.

Move to Halt San Pedro Trouble.

A drastic order to end the reign of lawlessness on the San Pedro Harbor and to control the dangerous situation developed there by the riots against the I. W. W. and threats of reprisal were issued by Chief of Police Vollmer today.

The first step taken by Chief Vollmer was to send to the harbor a detachment of twenty-five picked men from the Detective Bureau, with orders to clean up regardless of the individuals or organizations.

The second step was the ultimatum issued by the Chief to Captain Hagenbaugh, commanding the Harbor District, that unless he took steps to control the situation in his precinct and saw to it that no violations of the law were permitted, no matter by whom, he would be transferred out of the harbor and another captain who could handle the work sent there.

In the original attack on the I. W. W. hall two children were scalded with hot coffee, a number of men and women were injured and six I. W. W. members were reported kidnapped. The raiders then wrecked the inside of the hall, piled the furniture outside on a vacant lot, and set it on fire.

FIND TRACE OF FOUR TARRED AFTER RIOTS

Investigator Believes They Were Kidnapped in San Pedro Raid Against the I. W. W.

SANTA ANA, Cal., June 16.—Four men are believed to have been tarred and feathered in Santa Ana Canyon, near here, Saturday night, according to Ed McClellan, chief criminal investigator for the Sheriff's office. One of the victims is believed to have been a member of the I. W. W. from San Pedro.

McClellan said a party of upward of 300 men in automobiles passed up the canyon about 11 o'clock Saturday night. He says he came to a spot in the woods where parts of four outfits of clothing were lying about among loose feathers, while close by was one five-gallon tar container, empty, a second partly filled, and two tar brushes. He found an I. W. W. membership card, dated San Pedro.

McClellan said his find led him to believe that the reports of the kidnapping of four men during the riot at the I. W. W. hall at San Pedro Saturday night were correct.

He said he followed a trail of tar, apparently that which had dripped from the men who had been painted with it, and saw it go down into the bed of the Santa Ana River.

SENATORS LISTEN TO DAUGHERTY'S AID

PARDON CASES DISCUSSED

Assistant Attorney General Seymour Tells of Jess Smith's Activities in Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The special Senate committee investigating former Attorney General Daugherty's administration of the Department of Justice, began today a series of hearings to permit officials of the department, who were suggested by Attorney General Stone, to be heard.

The witness today was Assistant Attorney General Augustus A. Seymour. There were no fireworks. Senator Wheeler, the committee's "prosecutor," accorded Mr. Seymour every courtesy and the widest latitude in explaining the course taken by the department in the handling of various cases which have figured in the investigation.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant in charge of prohibition cases, will be heard tomorrow. The Attorney General, it is stated, instructed his subordinates to give the committee all the facts and not to attempt to shield any official, past or present.

Mr. Seymour stated that it was a fact that Jess W. Smith was much in evidence about the department in the Daugherty administration, and added that on five occasions Mr. Smith called on him. On one visit, Mr. Smith, he said, wanted him to waive objection to certain appointments to be recommended to President Harding, but he refused to do so.

Says Smith Discussed Pardons.

Another time Mr. Smith saw Mr. Seymour with reference to certain pardons awaiting the action of the department. There were twenty pardons pending at the time, and of these Mr. Seymour approved three and disapproved seventeen. Mr. Smith, the witness said, asked for a different decision on some of these pardons, but his request was refused.

On another occasion Mr. Smith went to Mr. Seymour to get certain papers for Mr. Daugherty. The witness said he knew Mr. Daugherty got them because they were acted on a day or two later.

"Mr. Smith," said Mr. Seymour, "was very proud of his official closeness to Mr. Daugherty—even more proud than of his intimate friendship with him. But Mr. Smith never gave me any orders."

Mr. Seymour discussed a score of anti-trust cases which it has been alleged Mr. Daugherty failed to prosecute. He gave considerable time to explaining the "yellow pine" case which Huston Thompson, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, testified the commission had submitted to the Department of Justice for action. The Trade Commission contended that a case had been established involving price-fixing, but the department, Mr. Thompson declared, took no action.

Mr. Seymour insisted that the department had handled the case properly, and that the evidence was not nearly as strong as the Trade Commission said it was. The Government, he added, had interviewed every member of the Southern Pine Association, and every one of them had made an affidavit that the members had never even discussed a price-fixing agreement.

Tells of Grossman Pardon.

Mr. Seymour was asked if he could throw any light on the pardon of Grossman, the Chicago saloonkeeper who was convicted of violating the liquor laws and then pardoned without having to serve a day in prison.

"I approved the pardon for Grossman," said Mr. Seymour, "and I was the first to handle the case. I acted on a letter from C. W. Middlekauff, an assistant of the department in Chicago. Some weeks after I approved the pardon, Mr. Martin, who was Mr. Daugherty's confidential secretary, asked if I still held the same view. I said 'yes,' and again signed an approval.

"That was Dec. 20, last year. Two days later I learned Grossman had never even been in jail. I wouldn't have approved his pardon had I known that. And I tell you I raised some rumpus around the department about it, but it was no use."

There were many other cases—the United Gas Light Improvement case in New York among them—not prosecuted, Mr. Seymour said, because thorough investigation showed the first facts misrepresented. He said it sometimes took two years to investigate a case and more years to try it.

Senator Wheeler discussed with Mr. Seymour ways of improving the Department of Justice.

"Relieve the Federal Judges," said Mr. Seymour. "Their courts are just police courts now—with prohibition cases and such. Turn all the petty cases over to a special tribunal, and the real Federal courts will be many times as effective."

Senator Jones asked Mr. Seymour to draw a report of recommended Legislative changes, that the committee might submit it to Congress in the Fall.

As for District Attorneys, Mr. Seymour wanted them taken from politics, given more responsibility, and forced to function.

Include Names of the Mayor and Guggenheim Donors.

The band concerts on the Mall of Central Park, financed by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim and Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim will not be interrupted by the substitution of programs distributed by the Park Department last Wednesday, when Daniel Guggenheim made it clear that the Guggenheim families would not support the concerts by the Goldman band if they were to be brought into politics.

"Everything has been settled satisfactorily to everybody," said Mr. Guggenheim last night.

When asked whether that meant that the Park Department programs praising Mayor Hylan would be discarded, he said he did not wish to be quoted further, and added that at last night's concert music lovers would note that the difficulty had been ironed out. The programs given out last night are headed "City of New York, John F. Hylan, Mayor," followed by the statement that "this concert is one of a series of sixty concerts made possible by the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim and Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim." The Guggenheim names are printed in heavy black type.

At the City Hall it was said that Mayor Hylan would issue a statement regarding the substitution of his name for that of members of the Guggenheim families, and would explain that the trouble was due to a misunderstanding. John J. Ryan, Secretary to Park Commissioner Francis D. Galiatin, it was said, was willing to assume responsibility for having ordered the printing of the Mayor's name more conspicuously than the names of the Guggenheim families.

The Goldman concert on the Mall last evening was attended by a large crowd. Features were the andante from the Fifth Symphony of Beethoven, an excerpt from "Lohengrin" and Miss Lotta Madden's singing of two of Mr. Goldman's compositions.

NAMES STATE OFFICIALS.

Governor Smith Reappoints Incumbents in Most Instances.

Manager of the State Agricultural and Industrial School, James M. Dwyer, Geneseeo, to succeed James Lockington, deceased.

Members of the Board of Governors of the New York State Nautical School: Marcus Hs Tracy, New York; Reginald Fay, New York; Charles H. Bissikummer, Albany, all reappointed.

ATTACKS BONUS RULING.

William Tapley Wants Benefits of State Law Extended.

The ruling by the State Bonus Commission that no relative or heir of any survivor of the World War who died prior to Feb. 28 last, when the New York bonus law was approved, can share in the bonus was attacked yesterday in certiorari proceedings brought in the Supreme Court by State Commander William Tapley of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He got an order from Justice Tierney directing the commission to certify to the Court in twenty days all its proceedings in the case of Isabella Mulligan of 500 Manhattan Avenue, daughter of Patrick T. Mulligan, war veteran, who died April 25, 1923.

Mr. Tapley said that 50,000 veterans have died since the armistice, and that the ruling of the commission in the Mulligan case will exclude all heirs of these veterans from the benefits of the bonus law if it is upheld. He contends that the Legislature in passing the law did not contemplate such a construction. The question will be passed on by the Appellate Division in the Fall.

FREED IN MAIL GEM THEFT.

Held without bail since last Friday, when he was arrested as a suspect in the $100,000 mail jewelry robbery at Eighth Avenue and Twelfth Street last Tuesday morning, Edward Doyle, a laborer, of 157 West Seventy-second Street, was discharged in Jefferson Market Court yesterday when police failed to identify a $1,000 diamond studded platinum watch found on him as part of the stolen jewelry.

The cases of three others who have been held without bail with him since their arrests last week were adjourned at the request of the police until Wednesday. None of the four who were placed in a "line-up" with the spectators in the court was identified by the two men who had charge of the robbed truck.

The three held are Edward Diamond of the Penn Post Hotel, Thirty-second Street and Seventh Avenue; his brother, John Diamond, of 593 East 136th Street, and John Monforte of Corona, L. I.

Reparation Board Head to Stay.

PARIS, June 16.—Louis Barthou announced today that he would remain as head of the Reparation Commission. This was in answer to a report published by a French newspaper that Louis Loucheur was slated for the position now held by M. Barthou and that the latter was to succeed Marshal Louis Lyautey as Resident General in Morocco. "The post I occupy has nothing to do with the political changes of any country," said M. Barthou.

SOUTH DAKOTA STORM CAUSES MANY DEATHS

Eight Fatalities Verified, With 11 Others Reported—Tornado Sweeps Wessington Springs.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 16 (Associated Press).—A storm which swept the State of South Dakota late Saturday, assuming tornadic proportions in a score of localities, took a toll of at least eight lives and caused property damage too great to be estimated until communication is restored. Growing crops were greatly damaged.

The known dead include two at Salem, killed when a barn collapsed; one at Pierre, killed in a similar accident; a woman at Canton, killed by a live wire, and one killed at Miller, Faulkton, Highmore and Eagle Butte each.

Reports of casualties which could not be verified told of a family of eight killed at Bijou Hills, two persons at White Lake, and another at Blunt.

From west of the Missouri River reports during the day told of thousands of sheep and cattle dead, buildings laid low and flax and wheat crops battered by hail, wind and rain.

Mitchell was cut off from wire communication, but overland reports said that many business blocks of the town suffered from the storm.

The area which was the scene of the most extensive damage was in the south central section of the State, where nine counties accounted for four known deaths and from which came the unconfirmed reports of eleven other fatalities.

Telegraph and telephone companies hope to have communication restored in the State east of the Missouri River by tomorrow.

WESSINGTON SPRINGS, S. D., June 16.—Extensive property damage was caused in Wessington Springs and over the countryside for a radius of twenty miles by a tornado which struck this city at 7 P. M. Saturday. Estimates of damage range from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

While no fatalities have been reported, many families were made homeless, as the tornado unroofed many residences and business buildings. A torrential rain added to the damage and suffering. Many business stocks were ruined.

WOMAN IS SWEPT OVER NIAGARA FALLS

Body Is Recovered by Pushing Ladder to Rock Near Cave of the Winds.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 16.—The body of a woman lodged on a rock near the Cave of the Winds, after going over the Falls, was recovered by State Reservation employes this afternoon.

The workmen placed a ladder over the rocks and one of them crawled out on the ladder and lashed the body to it. Efforts were made to reach the body by a rowboat, but the men were compelled to give up this plan because of the jagged rocks.

Later the body was picked up by the steamer Maid of the Mist and brought to the American dock, where it was viewed by the Coroner. The body was that of a woman about 55 years old, with gray hair, clothed in a dark skirt and a light waist.

Authorities believe the body floated down the river and passed over the Falls last night. It was cast on a small rock near the Rock of Ages in the Gorge, between the Horseshoe and American Falls on the American side.

PREDICTS IMPROVED TRADE

Wm. M. Wood Says This Is No Time to Talk of Wage Cuts.

The business outlook should improve "as political prospects for a business administration advance," in the opinion of William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company. At a meeting of the directors of the company he said that the country's consumption of textiles must be tremendous and although delayed in reaching the mills the demand "must show in renewed orders to the mills in due time." It was not the proper time to wish to see any reduction in wages or in the general purchasing and consuming power of the country, he said.

A Common Interest

Buy your mortgages from a company that guarantees the repayment of your money. Then you will get a good mortgage as no responsible company wishes to guarantee anything else.

Be sure that the Guaranteeing Company has enough experience and enough money behind it to make its guarantee a real one.

Our mortgages are passed upon by the Mortgage Committee of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and then by the Mortgage Committee of the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company. The latter company guarantees the payment of principal and interest. Its guarantee fund is over $13,000,000.

COURT WON'T ACCEPT FALLON'S SECURITY

touch with Mr. Curtin. But he had gone to Rochester on a case. When I tried later to get in touch with my partner, I learned he was in the West. It is impossible for me to go to trial unless I have a fair chance in this involved situation. This case goes back to the bucketing by Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, which took in trials in the State courts and actions in the Federal court and which was very complicated. It goes back several years beyond that, too. It also goes into the Rendigs cases, which are much complicated. I have no reluctance in meeting the charges against me at a trial, but I cannot prepare my case properly and with fairness to myself if I am incarcerated. I had no intention of running away and making of myself an exile for life!"

Mr. Millard took up the fight, saying: "On May 27 Judge Henry W. Goddard issued a bench warrant for this defendant's arrest. It was common knowledge around town that he was wanted. He failed to appear for trial June 2. I received no word from any source whatever in behalf of Fallon."

"My partner, McGee, has been trying for a week to get bond for my release. The case was set for trial suddenly. It was not noticed for trial," protested Fallon.

"Ernest Eidlitz, then an essential witness, had disappeared," Mr. Millard reminded the Court.

Bail Fixed at $35,000.

"Bail will remain at $35,000," decided Judge Knox. "It must be furnished in cash or its equivalent. The Court and the Federal attorney must be advised as to who puts up the bail. If they are relatives and close friends, that is one thing. If they are persons who might profit by the defendant's departure, that is another thing. There must be a full disclosure as to who furnishes every dollar.

"If you take a surety company's bail," asked Curtin, "[illegible] who indemnify the company," said the Court.

As the principals in the proceedings were stepping from the courtroom to go before another Judge for setting of date for trial, McGee was approached by Colonel Hayward, the latter saying: "If I thought at the time Fallon was away that you knew his whereabouts, I would have put you in jail."

Judge W. S. Smith set July 7 for trial.

Fallon was taken to Colonel Hayward's office. His brother, Joseph of Mamaroneck, arrived there, prepared to offer the deed to his home as part of the surety. More than a dozen surety company agents visited Fallon during the day. In another office of the Federal Attorney's suite Eidlitz spent a number of hours. Fallon and Eidlitz did not meet. Eidlitz was questioned as to whether he had become reconciled to Fallon, his former employer, against whom he had been a Federal witness, and whether Fallon had arranged for his departure to Montreal shortly before he was to have been called as a witness in General Sessions in the perjury trial in which Rendigs was convicted.

Brother Raises $20,000.

Fallon seemed confident throughout the day that he would be able to raise bail. Shortly after 5 o'clock he had at his command $20,000 promised by his brother and $15,000 arranged for with an indemnity surety company. Fallon and his attorneys immediately repaired to Judge Knox's chambers in the Woolworth Building. The Court, however, said the explanations as to the source of the additional money were not satisfactory and did not meet requirements that had been put forward by the Court earlier in the day.

When told he would have to spend at least another night in the Tombs, Fallon seemed undisturbed. He went away in custody of two deputy marshals, jesting with them.

Meanwhile Eidlitz had been arraigned formally before Judge Smith, and his bail of $10,000 as a material witness was continued. After he had been questioned by the prosecutor's office he was escorted back to Ludlow Street Jail, handcuffed to a deputy marshal.

Rendigs was brought before Judge Alfred J. Talley in General Sessions to be sentenced on his conviction of perjury. Sentence was deferred again, however, at request of the Federal authorities, conveyed by Assistant District Attorney Hugo Wintner.

What are your prospects for summer business?

A man seated behind you on the "Twentieth Century" turns to a friend—a manufacturer—and says, "Well, what are your prospects for summer business?"

You hear it everywhere. At the office. On the train. In New York, Chicago or Philadelphia. In Detroit—Boston—Cleveland—or St. Louis.

You heard it yesterday—again today—and you'll hear it tomorrow: "What are your prospects for summer business?"

It's the St. Louis market!

Good prospects are here for manufacturers and advertisers ready to take advantage of conditions favorable to intensive sales effort. Fundamental trade factors are sound.

You can make increased sales in this market offset a seasonal decline in other markets where summer sales efforts are unproductive.

There's business here for those who will go after it. Profitable business for those who know that a "summer slump" exists only in the minds of those who think they cannot sell in June, July and August. It's a mental hazard that can't face "daylight" and facts.

And These Are the Facts

—the average June is 3% above normal.

The average for the three months of June, July and August (99⅓% normal) is higher than the individual monthly averages for February, March, April, May, September and November.

St. Louis bank debits to individual accounts show a higher average for the three summer months of June, July and August than the average for these months of the 141 clearing house centers in the United States, comprising the Federal Reserve Bank districts.

Postal receipts for St. Louis during April, 1924, show a gain of 12.28% over April, 1923. Babson advises consideration of cities where postal receipts show favorable activity.

Summer business is good in the St. Louis market!

Retail Stocks Are Low

Even though unseasonable weather retarded spring sales at retail, retail stocks are low. Late buying will boost summer business—will stimulate orders at wholesale, and, in turn, at factories.

Sales effort concentrated on this one territory to increase consumer demand will be felt quickly all along the line. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat can make the effort yield highest returns.

Good Prospects for Summer Business in the St. Louis Market

Economic authorities point to this market as one of unusual stability. One in which the wealth is based upon a wider variety of natural resources and industry than any other big metropolitan market can show.

It has the buyers. They have the money. Purchasing power remains high. Employment and earnings hold up. Retail sales in many lines are practically normal. Much above normal in others. Crop conditions and prices look favorable. General activity continues practically normal through the summer—as shown by records of street car traffic, telephone calls and other indices. Selling costs are low!

Four million dollars' worth of new automobiles were sold in St. Louis alone during May, with the summer peak still to come.

Incoming railroad and motor travel in summer is heavy. Every month more than a million people come to St. Louis from out of town and their average purchases during an ordinary month amount to $101.99. Thousands come for the famous outdoor Municipal Opera and for the Fashion Show.

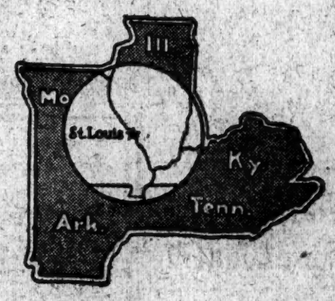
Concentrate on the St. Louis Market—the Globe-Democrat market—known as the 49th State, that great naturally concentrated area defined by a circle, radius 150 miles, with St. Louis the natural trading center and only big metropolis. An area with 374 thriving towns of more than 1,000 population.



Here more than 4,500,000 people buy from more than 54,000 progressive dealers. The list of products of which they buy the most reads like a roll call of the products advertised in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat—the "Largest Daily in One of America's Greatest Markets."

Here are real prospects for summer business! The Sales and Promotion Department and Research Division of the Globe-Democrat are prepared to give valuable assistance in helping you to get it.

SECOND VICTIM DIES IN BRENNAN KILLING

CROWD JEERS THE ACCUSED

Prisoners Shot Cabaret Owner, Police Say, Because He Had Ejected One for Rowdiness.

James Cullen, the State Trooper who pursued two men who had mortally wounded "Bill" Brennan, the pugilist, early Sunday morning, died yesterday in Columbus Hospital from a bullet wound in the neck.

The two men captured after an automobile race that followed their attempt to kill Brennan's sister and their attack on a Police Lieutenant whom they beat unconscious were held without bail yesterday in Homicide Court, outside which a jeering crowd of hundreds had gathered. Both prisoners have criminal records and one of them has been sought for the murder of his brother, the wounding of his mother and other crimes.

Brennan's murder brought scores of telegrams and other messages to his widow at 651 West 171st Street. Among the telegrams was one from Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world and a close friend of "Bill" Brennan. It was Brennan's exploit of keeping on his feet almost twelve rounds under Dempsey's blows that brought him his greatest pugilistic fame.

The prisoners denied that they had committed the murders, but they told conflicting stories to Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones and Police Captain Arthur Carey of the Homicide Squad. From the mass of conflicting details, taken together with the testimony of witnesses, the officials gathered that Brennan was killed because he had ejected one of the men from his Club Tia Juana at 600 West 171st Street for using abusive language to a woman.

Both Have Criminal Records.

The captured men admitted yesterday that they had at first given false names. The man who had first declared himself to be James Hughes, said yesterday he was really Terence O'Neill, 35 years old, a clerk, living at 115 West Forty-fifth Street, and formerly a pugilist. The police characterized him as a race track tout. The second prisoner, who previously had given his name as Frank Rassi, admitted yesterday that he was Joseph Pioli of 334 East Sixty-fifth Street. He said he operated taxicabs. He is 27 years old.

Pioli was indicted March 7 last for the murder on New Year's Eve of his brother, Santo Pioli. At the time that he mortally shot his brother he also wounded their mother. He was a fugitive on this charge when he was arrested yesterday. Police records showed that Pioli had committed many crimes under his own name and under the aliases of Babe Iola and Joe Venello. Three days before he shot his mother and brother because they ordered him from their home he had been released from Sing Sing after serving four years and six months for grand larceny.

Since the shooting of his mother and brother, the police had sought Pioli also for a jewelry robbery and the stabbing of a worker in the yards of the Standard Oil Company in Brooklyn.

O'Neill admitted yesterday that he had served five years in the State Prison at Trenton, N. J., for attacking a girl at Guttenberg.

The prisoners were placed before a line-up of 200 detectives yesterday morning. Then they were questioned by Inspector John D. Coughlin, Captain Carey and, later in the day, Assistant District Attorney Jones.

Admitted Visiting Cabaret.

To Coughlin and Carey, Pioli admitted that he and O'Neill had been in the cabaret a few hours before the shooting and that, after becoming intoxicated, he had engaged in a dispute with Brennan and had been thrown out of the place by the pugilist. His admission upset the story of O'Neill, who had maintained that he had never been in the place, had never met Brennan and never before had seen Pioli. Pioli said neither he nor O'Neill had returned to the Club Tia Juana after their ejection.

However, from what they told and from what could be learned from Brennan's sister, a singer known on the stage as Shirley Sherman, Mr. Jones was of the belief that earlier in the night Pioli, O'Neill, another man and three women had been patrons of the cabaret. Witnesses said that when they left, at 2:30 o'clock in the morning, Brennan heard Pioli in the hallway talking abusively to a woman. The pugilist went to the hallway and upbraided him. "Cut it out and get out," he warned Pioli.

Pioli thrust his hand on an object in a coat pocket and growled at Brennan, "There's other ways of getting a guy than with fists. You look out for yourself, kid." Thereupon Brennan forced him toward the rear stairway that wound to the Broadway exit.

Two hours later, according to the prosecutor, Pioli and O'Neill returned. O'Neill, according to the detective, was the man who asked Brennan to step out and who shot him behind a pair of heavy dark curtains separating the cabaret from the hallway. The police said that O'Neill also was the man who shot at Miss Brennan when she tried to prevent their escape and who shot Cullen in the neck.

After questioning Pioli Assistant District Attorney Jones said of him, "I have seen many men who were charged with murder and almost always there was a feeling that the killing was the result of a sudden outburst of passion and that the killer was deeply remorseful, but in Pioli we have a killer who would shoot you for the fun of it. He is the meanest looking man I ever talked to."

Brennan's Funeral Tomorrow.

Scores visited Brennan's home yesterday. Funeral services will be held there tomorrow morning, to be followed by a requiem mass at the Church of St. Rose of Lima, 165th Street and Broadway. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Many friends of Brennan thought yesterday that the second victim of the shooting was his old manager, James Cullen, who at present is manager of the Cameo Dancing Academy, at Stillwell and Surf Avenues, Coney Island. The latter received many telephone calls from friends yesterday, and his wife got more than a hundred telegrams of condolence.

Colonial Line Moves to New Pier.

The agents of the Colonial Line, which operates a passenger and freight service from New York to Providence and Boston, announced yesterday that it would move from Pier 38, North River, foot of West Houston Street, to Pier 14, at the foot of Christopher Street. This change of location will enable passengers to reach the steamboats more conveniently because of the Christopher Street surface cars, the Hudson Tubes station and the Christopher Street Ferry.

Held for Stabbing, Hangs Himself.

TROY, N. Y., June 16.—Samuel Lascala hanged himself early today in his cell in the Fourth Precinct Police Station, with a noose fashioned from his shirt. He was arrested after Frank Cassino had been stabbed with a pair of shears during a quarrel over possession of a house in Lansingburgh. Cassino was probably fatally wounded.

A NEW MACMILLAN BOOK

Willard Straight

By HERBERT CROLY

THE career of a man of action who by his sheer energy, his quick wit, and his compelling and pleasing personality won for himself a conspicuous place in the drama of world politics and Far Eastern affairs. From a daring, lovable youth, we follow him through the thrilling days of his work in the Orient to his last and significant service in the Great War.

"Noteworthy partly for the history of Willard Straight's activity as a diplomatist and financial agent in China, but mainly as a study of an unusual combination of shrewdness and idealism."

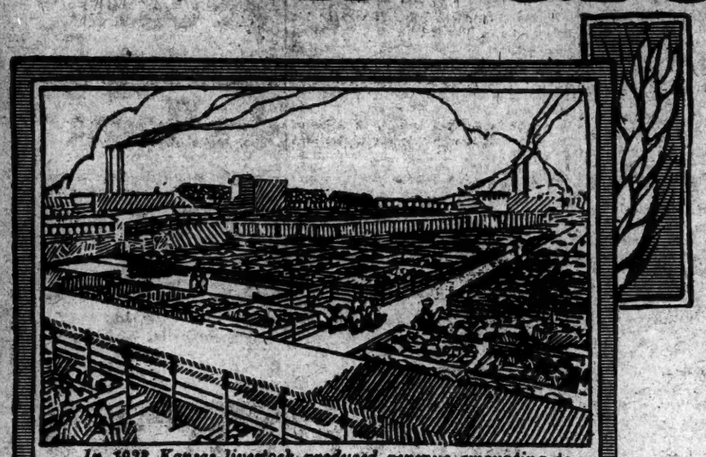
KANSAS
the Greatest Wheat State



In 1923 Kansas livestock produced revenue amounting to $173,451,875. Bountifully endowed with nature's gifts—rich soil and ideal climate—Kansas is one of the outstanding states agriculturally.

Kansas' mineral resources approximate $164,035,997 annually. Oil and gas, lead, zinc, salt and other mineral products have become an amazing source of income to the people of the Sunflower State.

Large and varied are the manufacturing industries of Kansas. From this source alone there is an annual income of over a billion dollars. And development along this line is progressing at a rapid rate.

Kansas is modern. Her cities, towns, schools and homes compare with the best. Kansas folks live well.

~and Wheat is only 9% of Its Income

SOON the whir and click of the binder will be heard the length and breadth of Kansas. In a few short weeks the golden harvest in the world's greatest wheat state will start. Wheat—famous Kansas wheat—will be harvested to the extent of 135 millions of bushels! Flour by the millions of barrels! Bread for the nations!

—Yet wheat is but one of the sources of Kansas wealth; it produces only 9% of the state's annual income!

Widely diversified are Kansas' channels of revenue. Corn, alfalfa, and other agricultural products; livestock; mines; oil and gas wells and manufacturing industries large and varied, pour the bulk of dollars and cents into the pockets of these Mid-West folks who want the things you have to sell. True it is that wheat has made Kansas famous, but her other agricultural products, her mineral stores and her industries have made her rich! Without considering wheat, these "backbone" resources produce over a Billion Dollars annually in the Sunflower State.

What a market this great state offers! 1,700,000 prosperous persons who live well—who want necessities and luxuries—who want everything from shoes to steam shovels.

How to Reach this Market

Literate Kansas folks—and 98 of every 100 are literate—are readers of Kansas Daily Newspapers. Daily newspapers go into nearly every Kansas home—and are read! Twenty-three of the leading dailies of Kansas, with a combined circulation of 306,841, are ready to tell all Kansas about your products—at a much lower cost than by any other media. With these twenty-three papers you also reach virtually every jobber and dealer in the state. And behind this vast coverage is the sincere, enthusiastic, unified merchandising cooperation by these newspapers. Think of such an extensive, dominating influence at a cost of only $1.03 a line. The market is here, the means of reaching it is here, the money's here. It will pay you to investigate.

Manufacturers, Sales and Advertising Managers —Get these FACTS!

To manufacturers, jobbers, sales and advertising executives seeking profitable sales channels we have prepared a booklet entitled "Kansas Facts." It analyzes the tremendous buying power of this wealthy state. It gives eye-opening facts that will convince you that Kansas offers a ready and fertile market for every commodity under the sun that thrifty, modern, literate persons have use for. And Kansas is not only "the great wheat state" but great in many other things as well. We will gladly send you this book free. Write for it today!

CREWS AWAIT START OF COLLEGE REGATTA

Fifteen Eights From Six Universities Assembled for Three Races Today.

LAST-MINUTE SHIFTS MADE

WASHINGTON IS FAVORED

Penn Appears as Most Formidable Rival—50,000 Expected—Weather Forecast Clear and Warm.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 16.—Fifteen crews, representing six universities, are waiting tonight for the signals which will send them thrashing down the Hudson in the three races of the twenty-seventh annual intercollegiate rowing regatta tomorrow. All the crews were on the water today for the last time as training. The next time they man the boats it will be for the acid test. That means for the six varsity eights the heart-breaking three-mile struggle for the cup now held by Washington.

Fair weather and favoring winds are expected to bring 50,000 persons to the bluffs overlooking the Hudson by the time the first race is rowed. The orange-tipped oars of Syracuse will flash in the lane nearest the west shore when the starter's signal sends the varsities on their way. Next will come Washington, the perennial champions of the Pacific Coast, the title holders and the favorites. Pennsylvania, the hope of the East, will be in the third lane, Cornell in the fourth, Columbia in the fifth and the cardinal-clad oarsmen of Wisconsin will round out the field in the lane nearest the centre of the river.

Washington, besides being the overwhelming favorite in what little pre-race betting that has taken place here, has drawn the rabbit's foot also. With what little advantage, it gives, an advantage that the Huskies are not expected to need in order to retain their championship. Tonight the betting odds between the Callow-coached crew and Pennsylvania, its most formidable rival, were 2 to 1 in favor of the far-Westerners. Against Washington's chances of finishing ahead of the other starters those who like long odds could find most any figure they desired.

Crews in Final Drills.

Coach Callow sent his men down the river twice today, as did all the other coaches, and the power of the visitors from Seattle was the thing that most impressed the critics. If Washington does not repeat its victory of 1923 tomorrow, it will be one of the biggest upsets in the recent history of the national regatta.

The replacing of Luft has not materially weakened the Huskies' first boat, although Callow is inclined to believe it has harmed his junior varsity's chance in the secondary event. At Vassar Hospital today it was said that Luft had an extremely high fever and was seriously, though not critically, ill.

Poughkeepsie began to take on the aspect of a town which was to be the scene of a national sporting event for the first time today. Many of the buildings along the main street were flag-draped, and pennant and souvenir venders got busy with their wares in every corner. The crowd also began to come in, but not in large numbers.

All the officials, including Referee Charles Sheafs of Howard, arrived during the day, and in the afternoon the coaches were instructed on the rules and methods of procedure in the various races. After some debate it was decided that the races would be started by word of mouth rather than by the firing of a pistol, as it was pointed out that the voice carried better over the water than the report of a gun. Coach Miller of Columbia, particularly, was in favor of the method of starting that was finally decided on, as the Columbia crew did not catch the pistol signal which started the Childs Cup race recently.

Columbia Varsity Ready.

Miller still declined today to make any predictions as to how any of his crews would finish. It was evident at the Columbia boathouse, however, that the Blue and White varsity crew is in excellent condition and ready to give a good account of itself. The Columbia freshmen, on the other hand, are in a bad way, Leonard Schlude, stroke of the yearling eight, has an infected hand, which he had to have operated on today and would not row except for the fact that Coach Sydney Waldecker has no one to put in his place. The Blue and White freshman boat has been completely shifted about twice this Spring, and Waldecker has an entirely new crew from that with which he began the year.

Only the four members of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association will take part in the freshman race, and Syracuse and Pennsylvania loom up as the most formidable contenders. Head Coach Joe Wright of Penn said today that all the Quaker crews were in fine shape and ready to give a good account of themselves.

This same sentiment was echoed up and down the river. Callow was confident of the victory of his varsity, and thought his junior varsity boat still had a chance. Coach Dad Vail said the lone boat from Wisconsin was as good as it would ever be, notwithstanding the fact that he was pessimistic about its chances. The veteran Jim Ten Eyck of Syracuse said that his oarsmen were ready, and Hoyle of Cornell reported the three Ithaca eights in shape to do their best. Only Washington is stripped, and still it looms as the strongest crew on the river.

For Coach Callow of the Westerners and Jim Rice, who will control the destinies of Penn's crews in tomorrow's races, the contests loom up as something more than just crew races. It was learned on excellent authority here today that a delegation from one of the leading Eastern universities will be here to witness the regatta, and that the showing of the crews will go far toward determining the coach at that institution next year.

No changes were made in the boatings of any of the varsity crews today, but last-minute shifts were announced in the Cornell and Columbia junior varsity boats and in the Cornell freshman eight. In the Cornell junior varsity Procter and Purcell replaced Krouse and Strong at Nos. 6 and 7, respectively, and in Hoyle's freshman eight Hynes was sent to bow in place of Davies, and Speiden took Hynes's old seat at No. 5. Hugo Olsted went to bow in the Columbia junior varsity, Griswold was moved up from stroke to No. 2 and Hallenor Van Wyck was put at stroke.

This changing about in the junior varsity boats indicates that all the coaches who will send crews into that contest have hopes of winning and are going to make every effort to do it. This looks to be the most open race of the three, and the winner may turn up in any one of the five starters. Opinion among the best informed rowing men tonight seemed to be pretty evenly divided between Washington and Penn, although Syracuse and Columbia were not wanting for supporters.

Yachts and river craft of all sorts began to dot the river late tonight, and among them was a Government revenue cutter, the officers of which will allot anchorage to the visiting vessels.

The ferries will run continuously from Poughkeepsie to the west bank of the river and there also will be launches to help take the crowd to the observation train which arrived from New London late this evening.

Train Tickets Available

On the Highlands bank of the river a special detail of State troopers will supervise the handling of the big crowd. They will pay particular attention to the parking of automobiles and will endeavor to handle the cars at the ferry slips so that there will be no congestion. Policemen of the New York Central will be in charge of the crowd on the observation. Tickets for the train were still available in Poughkeepsie tonight, despite the fact that there was a brisk sale during the day. The demand for tickets at Cornell and Columbia has not been so great this year as in years past and that has made more space available for late comers. There probably will still be good seats on the observation train available tomorrow morning, but the officials expect it to be sold out by the time it leaves Highlands at 2:30 o'clock.

Special effort will be made this year to flash the results and times to all spectators immediately after the races. After each event bombs will be fired corresponding to the lane of the winning crew and banners indicating the order of finish will be suspended from the bridge which spans the river at the two-mile mark with the banner of the winning crew at the top. The official colors of the crews will be the college colors as follows: Syracuse, orange; Washington, purple and gold; Pennsylvania, red and blue; Cornell, red and white; Columbia, blue and white, and Wisconsin, cardinal.

A single bomb will be fired to indicate the start of each race and the times will be announced by megaphone from the judges' boat.

Yachts Begin to Arrive.

Among the yachts which arrived here this evening were the Cinitra, the property of Sidney E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia, and the Canvas Back, which belongs to Charles Myers of New York. The Cinitra flies the Red and Blue of Pennsylvania and the Canvas Back the Blue and White of Columbia. Several of the regatta officials came in on the latter yacht. More yachts are expected during the night and early tomorrow morning, and the Hudson river boats will also bring their quota if the weather is favorable.

Local forecasters today predicted a clear, warm day for the regatta, and if they are right the crowd and the contests should be among the best in the long series which began away back in 1895.

YALE PICKS OLYMPIC SQUAD

Nineteen Selected, Including Crew That Won at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 16.—Yale's rowing delegation to the Olympics in Paris was tonight announced as including nineteen. The make-up of the regular eight will be unchanged and is as follows:

Bow, Carpenter; No. 2, Sheffield; No. 3, Wilson; No. 4, Captain Rockefeller; No. 5, Miller; No. 6, Kingsbury; No. 7, Spock; stroke, Lindey; coxswain, Stoddard.

The Yale party will sail Saturday morning on the Homeric and will return during August.

DUNDEE MUST REPLY TODAY

Commission Will Suspend Boxer if He Refuses Challenge.

Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion and holder of the 130-pound championship belt, will be compelled, under the time limit established with extensions, to notify the State Athletic Commission today that he has accepted the challenge of Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., for a featherweight title bout, or suffer suspension.

The time limit for Dundee to accept or reject Kaplan's challenge originally expired a week ago, but the commission granted the titleholder an extension to last Friday and then renewed the extension to today. Several promoters are seeking this bout, among them being Tex Rickard, who is desirous of arranging the contest as an attraction for the Velodrome. Promoters of Waterbury and New Haven also are seeking the match.

BRITTON STOPS PALMER.

Kansas Boxer Scores Knockout in First Round at Oakland A. A.

Andy (Kid) Palmer of Philadelphia was knocked out by Billy Britton of Columbus, Kan., in the first round of the main bout at the Oakland A. A., Jersey City, last night. The bout was scheduled for twelve rounds. The knockout came in the first minute. Britton dropped Palmer twice and then put him down for the count with a left hook and right cross. Palmer weighed 162, Britton 160.

YALE VARSITY EIGHT IN MOONLIGHT TRIAL

Ell Adherent Divulges Fast Time of Rival Crew—Leader Praises Performance.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 16.—Yale's senior varsity crew boarded one of the coaching launches at 7:30 o'clock this evening and went down to the railroad bridge to paddle up the four-mile course. The Pocock shell in which the crew broke the one and one-quarter mile record at Philadelphia last Saturday, was towed down to the starting point, and after ten minutes' delay the varsity men were in their respective seats and soon on their way up the Thames River. There was little tide and no wind to help the boat and the eight was soon covering the course at a steady thirty gait. The time was not made public.

Harvard's watches reported Yale's time as 22 minutes 50 seconds. The crew finished the course at 9:45, by moonlight.

It was divulged today that Harvard's time row late Saturday night over the four miles, downstream, with the tide and a stiff northerly breeze astern, was caught at 19 minutes 53 seconds by one of Yale's scouts. This is considered phenomenal speed over the Thames course. Coach Leader, in commenting on Harvard's wonderful performance, said: "It makes no difference whether the wind was helping Harvard's shell or not Saturday night. Any crew that can row downstream four miles in the neighborhood of twenty minutes is a mighty fast eight and that crew will certainly bear watching. Yale's best time over in the course last year was a little better than twenty-three minutes."

All of Harvard's crews were given light work today, the respective crews working in the vicinity of the submarine base, mid-distance of the course. This evening the Crimson varsity crews were drilled in racing starts. Coach Stevens is endeavoring to impress on the oarsmen that a quick getaway counts for a great deal, especially in the two-mile events.

Yale's freshman and combination eights had a rattling good race for two miles on the upper two miles of the course this evening. The two shells were nip and tuck for more than a mile, when the yearlings gradually forged ahead and won by about two boat lengths. Coach Murphy would not give out the time, but the last mile rowed by the freshmen in the brush was clocked at 5 minutes 5 seconds by a scout.

Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of Harvard's Athletic Committee, was a visitor at Red Top this evening, stopping off for the night while on his way to New Haven to attend the Harvard-Yale baseball game tomorrow.

YACHTS IN CONTEST TO BERMUDA NAMED

A preliminary list of the yachts, with their masters, navigators and crew members, that will take part in the ocean race to Bermuda, which will be started on Saturday off New London, was given out yesterday by Herbert L. Stone, Chairman of the Bermuda Race Committee. Mr. Stone explained that complete crew lists of the twenty-one yachts expected to start in the 660-mile ocean test will not be available until the fleet gathers at New London on Friday.

Schmader to Box Erntioch Instead of Renault at Velodrome.

Because the State Athletic Commission declined to sanction a match between Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, and Andy Schmader, Omaha heavyweight, on the ground that Schmader was over-matched, Promoter Tex Rickard yesterday announced a revision of his boxing card for tomorrow night at the New York Velodrome. Schmader has been matched against George Eratioch of Yonkers, in a six round bout, while the final bout will be between Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight, and Joe Stoessel, local Italian. Renault will not appear on the card because he is scheduled to act as pall bearer for the late Bill Brennan, it was announced.

Al Roberts, Staten Island heavyweight, and Jack McDonnell, San Francisco boxer who is under the management of Frank Churchill, will clash in an added six-round bout.

TUNNEY SIGNS FOR BOUT.

Will Meet Carpentier at the Polo Grounds During Week of July 20.

The proposed bout between Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, and Georges Carpentier, French light-heavyweight, yesterday was signed to be held at the Polo Grounds during the week of July 20. Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, who declared the match would be conducted under his direction, announced the signed articles called for a bout of fifteen rounds at 175 pounds.

JOHNSON KNOCKS OUT BALSA IN THE THIRD

LOSER GOES TO HOSPITAL

Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, burst another foreign boxer's championship bubble last night in the ring of the Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City, where before a crowd of about 6,000 he stopped Andreas Balsa, Spanish heavyweight, in the third round of a scheduled ten-round bout. Referee Tommy Sheridan stopped the contest after two minutes and thirty-five seconds of the third round had passed, when Balsa was bleeding freely from a cut in the forehead half an inch above the left eye, indicating that Johnson's blows may have burst an artery. The action of the referee was justified. Johnson completely outclassed his rival.

Johnson, without seriously endangering himself at any time, accomplished the downfall of his rival through the use of repeated right-hand uppercuts as Balsa tore in blindly. The Spaniard, a bull-necked, heavy-bodied individual, built on the lines of a heavyweight wrestler, showed no boxing ability at all. His only recommendation was gameness. Nobody who saw him stand up under the terrific hammering of Johnson could question the Spanish gladiator's courage. But he was crude, a novice in boxing, without even a rudimentary knowledge of what he was expected to do inside the hempen square.

All Balsa did last night from the first bell until the battle was stopped was to rush blindly at Johnson, head down and with his gloved hands folded across his jaw. In this style of action Balsa was easy for the Iowan.

Balsa Rushes Johnson.

Johnson met Balsa's opening rush with a terrific right-hand upper-cut which almost upset the Spaniard in the first thirty seconds. Balsa careened toward the ropes, but came right back and again rushed Johnson. Balsa rushed and rushed and Johnson just stood still and hammered his rival without variation with successive right-hand uppercuts. In the last minute Johnson lifted Balsa off the floor with an uppercut, and the round ended without Balsa having struck a clean blow. A right near the bell opened a small cut over Balsa's left eye, and Johnson made this injury the target for his punches thereafter.

The second round was a duplicate of the first, save that Johnson left himself open for two body blows which Balsa sent him with his left and then with the right, and the bell found the Iowan weary as he went to his corner from the effects of these body blows and his own frantic exertions in an effort to score a knock-out.

Balsa, however, took all of Johnson's blows without showing any effects. That injury over the left eye, however, was increased, it was noted, as Balsa went to his corner. Through the third round Johnson directed his fire to the injury in Balsa's forehead, while the Spaniard, with the blood streaming down his face and blinding his left eye, fought doggedly on.

Finally one clean, terrific right started the blood to spouting profusely from the forehead injury, and Referee Sheridan stepped between the pair, stopping the bout and waving Johnson to his corner, the victor.

Johnson's terrific right hand uppercuts opened a cut more than an inch long in Balsa's left eyebrow, examination of the Spaniard in his dressing room after the bout disclosed. The flow of blood from the injury was stopped by Balsa's seconds in the dressing room but the Spaniard was sent to St. John's Hospital in Long Island City to have the wounds stitched.

Johnson weighed 195 pounds and Balsa 192.

His experience and cleverness gave Benny Valger, east side junior lightweight, a victor over Harry Kabakoff, a St. Louis youngster, in the ten-round semi-final bout. Valger won the decision by clearly outboxing his younger rival through every round. It was a comparatively uninteresting bout, and the crowd cheered the final bell.

De Foe Beats Lombardo.

Billy De Foe, veteran St. Paul featherweight, battered his way to victory over José Lombardo, Panama boxer, in the first of the three ten-round bouts. Staggered when he received a terrific right to the jaw which dazed him just before the bell sounded in the third round, De Foe came back strong in the fourth round and pounded Lombardo relentlessly about the ring. At the finish the decision was awarded to De Foe. He earned the decision by beating Lombardo clearly in nine of the ten rounds.

Lombardo showed gameness by standing up under De Foe's fierce assault and fighting back in flashes during the bout. Right up to the final bell Lombardo tried desperately to land with the right to the jaw again, but De Foe's cleverness and speed made Lombardo miss the majority of these punches. When they did land the blows lacked sufficient force to hurt De Foe because the latter's consistent body fire had robbed Lombardo of much of his punching strength.

Jackie Marlow, Rockaway bantamweight, won the decision over Frankie Fasano, local boxer, in a six-round bout. The opening four-round bout saw Jackie Gordon of Brooklyn winning the decision over Tommy Lynch, west side featherweight.

COLUMBIA WILL SEEK COLLEGE TENNIS TITLE

Anderson, Lang, Marshall and Kong Are Entered in Tourney at Merion Club.

Frank T. Anderson, captain of the Columbia University tennis team, sent in the entry yesterday of the Blue and White for the intercollegiate championships which begin at the Merion Cricket Club, Havertord, Pa. on Monday. Columbia will be represented by Anderson, Jerry Lang, Richard Marshall and Paul Kong. All four will compete for the singles title and Anderson and Lang will play together in the doubles.

Among the colleges and universities that have entered teams are the University of Washington and the University of California on the Pacific Coast; Oklahoma University, the University of Chicago, the University of Kansas and Butler College from the Middle West, and Princeton, Yale and Williams in the East.

University of Washington, Bruce Hesketh and Wallace Scott; University of California, Irving Weinstein, Ed Chandler and Phil Bettens; Oklahoma University, Ben K. Parks and John Harrington; University of Chicago, Edward W. Wilson and Kimball Valentine; University of Kansas, George Glaskin and Rogers; Williams College, Mills Baker; Princeton, Howard, Hicks, Holm-Smith and Paton; Yale, A. W. Jones, A. L. Hopkins, C. G. Hubbell and A. H. Sheridan.

ORSER ADVANCES IN JUNIOR TENNIS

Triumphs in Three Matches and Reaches Semi-Finals in Met. Title Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNTAIN STATION, N. J., June 16.—Play in the metropolitan junior lawn tennis championship began this morning on the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club with twenty-nine players competing for the title. Horace Orser of Stuyvesant High School and Kenneth Appel of East Orange, the national junior indoor champion, are the two ranking players in the tournament.

Orser reached the semi-final round today by playing and winning three matches. He defeated A. Trumbull, R. Rutan and Wood Ivins in order. He won the first match at 6—2, 6—3, the second at 6—1, 6—3 and then defeated Ivins, who is from the Hoboken Tennis Club, at 6—0, 6—2. The New York youth played splendid tennis in all three matches and was never in trouble.

Under the direction of Louis B. Dailey Jr. play was conducted in smooth fashion throughout the day, with the result that by late afternoon the first and second round matches had been completed. Appel disposed of B. Scott in easy fashion at 6—0, 6—1, but against Louis Watson he encountered the stiffest sort of opposition for one set. After each player had won a set and the issue was in doubt, Appel broke through and took the set at 11—9. He had things all his own way in the second set, which he won at 6—1. John Millen of Newtown High School, L. J. Heuser, E. Remington, A. E. Bicket and Charles Hodge are the other survivors.

The summaries:

First Round—Wood Ivins won from G. M. Fulerson by default; Horace Orser defeated A. Trumbull, 6—3, 6—2; R. Rutan defeated J. Farrand, 6—2, 6—1; John A. Millen defeated L. J. Kohler, 6—0, 6—3; Myron Raymond defeated Leigh Owen, 6—0, 6—2; Muller defeated Everitt Schmehl, 7—5, 7—5; L. J. Heuser won from Lester H. Watson by default; G. Kearney won from H. J. Lawrence by default; E. Remington defeated Hoyer, 6—1, 2—0, 6—0; A. B. Bicket defeated H. F. Moore, 6—3, 6—1; J. G. Waldron Jr. won from S. Kinderman by default; Kenneth Appel defeated B. Scott, 6—0, 6—1; Louis Watson defeated J. MacWatty, 6—1, 6—4.

Second Round—Ivins won from P. McGonigal by default; Orser defeated Rutan, 6—1, 6—2; Millen defeated Raymond, 6—1, 6—1; Heuser defeated Muller, 6—1, 2—6, 6—1; Remington defeated Kearney, 6—4, 7—5; Bicket defeated Waldron, 6—3, 6—2; Appel defeated Watson, 11—9, 6—1; Charles Hodge defeated D. E. Jenkins, 7—5, 6—2.

KING AND HALL WIN IN MET. TENNIS PLAY

OTHER FAVORITES ADVANCE

Lang, Anderson, Bowman, Binzen and Feibleman Take Third Round Contests.

Dr. George King of the New York Athletic Club and Walter Merrill Hall reached the round before the semi-final in the metropolitan clay court championship yesterday on the courts of the New York Tennis Club, and will meet this afternoon at 6 o'clock in the feature match of the day. Dr. King, who is the defending titleholder, defeated I. Biltchik in the fourth round yesterday, but only after a struggle in which Biltchik gave the other all sorts of trouble. The score was 6—4, 6—3. Hall advanced by putting out L. Blecher at 6—4, 6—2.

Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Centre, the fourth seeded player in the tourney, notified Maskell E. Fox, Chairman of the Tournament Committee, that he defaulted his first-round match with J. A. McHollan. With his default and William Fischer's defeat of F. M. Gale, all the matches were completed in the first round. All the brackets were filled also in the third round, and only one match remains to be played to bring the entire field down to the fourth round.

Favorites All Win.

There were no casualties to depiete the ranks of the seeded players, with the exception of Kynaston's elimination. Jerry Lang, Fred Anderson, Herbert Bowman, Elliott Binzen and Edward Feibleman, the other ranking favorites with King and Hall, all came through the third day of play successfully, although Dr. King was not the only one who had his hands full. Anderson was put to the severest test of them all. His opponent was Jack Wright, Canadian Davis Cup player. Wright took the first set after it had gone to deuce twice, and Anderson had his hands full throughout the two other sets, winning finally by the score of 7—5, 6—2, 7—5.

Lang's two matches with the Columbia youth, who won the Brooklyn championship on Sunday, played impressive tennis in defeating William Fischer and L. C. Haff in succession. Both of these were worthy opponents. Fischer is one of the best known players in this section and Haff has come to the front this season with his fine showing against some of the better known players who were expected to dispose of him in short fashion. Lang allowed Fischer only two games in each of two sets and defeated Haff at 6—0, 6—1. Binzen, holder of two local titles, played the same fine tennis against Philip Bodkin that he did in the North Side and Eastern New York State championships, both of which he won. He won by the score of 6—1, 6—2.

Bowman, New York State title holder, won easily from G. A. Zabriskie, dropping only one game in each of two sets. Feibleman, former intercollegiate doubles champion from Harvard, was another double winner. His first opponent was John Neely, veteran squash tennis captain of the Princeton Club, whom he defeated at 6—2, 6—1. J. F. Nikonow, another veteran well known to metropolitan courts, gave him stiffer opposition, yielding at 6—1, 6—4. Among the other players to advance were A. G. Cann of State Island, Morton Bernstein and Ernest Kuhn.

Dr. King did not show to good advantage against Biltchik. His net game was very much off. So thoroughly did Biltchik cover court that the titleholder had to use all his ingenuity to force an opening, and usually he was able to score placements only by stroking for the lines. Eight of the ten games went to deuce, most of them more than once.

Biltchik at His Best.

In the second set Biltchik was at his best and ran into a lead of 3—0. With the prospect of another set staring him in the face, Dr. King pulled himself together, and from then on held command of the play. Biltchik worked hard and managed to carry the score to deuce in several games, in spite of the fact that it was a losing battle that he was waging. The last game went to deuce nine times before Dr. King was able to make his service effective and bring the set to an end at 6—3 for the match.

First Round—William M. Fischer defeated F. M. Gale, 6—3, 6—0; J. A. McMollan won from Percy L. Kynaston by default.

Second Round—Edward W. Feibleman defeated John C. Neely, 6—2, 6—1; Jerry Lang defeated William Fischer, 6—2, 6—4; Maskell E. Fox defeated R. J. Penn, 6—3, 6—2; R. Phillips defeated J. A. McHollan, 6—4, 6—3.

Third Round—Feibleman defeated J. F. Nikonow, 6—1, 6—4; Walter Pennaluna defeated Henry Steinkamp, 6—4, 6—3; Elliott M. Binzen defeated Philip Bodkin, 6—1, 6—2; Fred C. Anderson defeated Jack Wright, 7—5, 6—2, 7—5; A. J. Cawes defeated Herbert M. Manchester, 6—1, 6—3; Lang defeated L. C. Haff, 6—0, 6—1; Morton Bernstein defeated Fred Hebbel, 6—1, 6—2; Bowman defeated G. A. Zabriskie, 6—1, 6—1; Ernest Kuhn defeated Dr. D. F. Drake, 7—5, 6—4.

TENNIS DRAW MADE FOR U. S.-BRITISH PLAY

Miss Wills to Face Mrs. Covell and Miss McKane in Single Matches.

LONDON, June 16 (Associated Press).—The draw for play in the seven tennis matches to be contested at Wimbledon on Wednesday and Thursday between the American and British women's teams was made today. On the first day Miss Helen Wills, the American champion, will meet Mrs. Covell in the singles, and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallery will have as an opponent Miss Kathleen McKane. In the doubles Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, America, will play Mrs. Shepherd-Barron and Mrs. Covell, England.

On the second day Miss Wills will face Miss McKane, the ranking British woman player; Mrs. Mallory will play Mrs. Covell, and Miss Goss will meet Mrs. Beamish. The doubles match on this day will be Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman against Miss McKane and Miss Evelyn Colyer.

Mlle. Lenglen Will Defend Title.

PARIS, June 16.—Mlle. Susanne Lenglen, who will defend her singles championship at Wimbledon, arrived here today from Nice fully recovered from an attack of jaundice. She said she would play in both the ladies' singles and doubles.

Denmark Defeats Italy, 3-2, In Davis Cup Tennis Play

COPENHAGEN, June 16 (Associated Press).—Denmark today defeated Italy in the third round of the Davis Cup competition by three matches to two, and will meet Czechoslovakia in the fourth round. Denmark had previously taken one singles match and the doubles. Today Erik Tegner of Denmark won his match with Baron Colombo, 6—0, 3—6, 3—6, 6—4, thus giving his nation three matches and the victory. The remaining singles match was won by Baron de Marpurgo of Italy from Axel Petersen of Denmark by 7—5, 6—2, 6—2.

U. S. WOMEN STARS ADVANCE IN TENNIS

Mrs. Mallory, Miss Sigourney, Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Wightman Gain Two Rounds.

MISS WILLS ALSO SCORES

ROEHAMPTON, England, June 16 (Associated Press).—The entire squad of American women tennis players who have invaded England to compete in the various tournaments this season today swept their way through the first round of the Roehampton Club's invitation tournament. They did not lose a single set in the first round. Four of the invaders won their second-round matches, only one falling by the wayside—Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston, who succumbed to Miss E. M. Beckingham.

Mrs. Molla B. Mallory defeated Miss H. L. Eddis in the first round, 6—4, 6—4, and then eliminated Miss C. Beckingham, 6—1, 4—6, 6—4, in the second. Miss Edith Sigourney conquered Mrs. E. F. Maxwell in her opening engagement, 6—1, 6—2, and then advanced at the expense of Mrs. R. H. Wyckoff, 6—2, 6—2. Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup reached the third round by beating Miss D. Mleville, 6—0, 6—0, and Mrs. J. F. Tayler, 6—0, 6—1. Mrs. Wightman advanced two rounds by eliminating in turn Mrs. Wyville, 6—2, 6—2, and Miss E. Bull, 6—0, 6—0. Miss Eleanor Goss and Miss Scharman both came through their first round matches with little trouble, Miss Goss defeating Mrs. Eddington, 6—4, 6—2, while Miss Scharman put out Miss L. Letts at 6—2, 6—3. Before Miss Sears was eliminated by Miss E. M. Beckingham in the second round, she won her first round match from Miss Betty Nuthall, the

BAND PLAYS ON THE PIER

ROBERTSON HAS HIGH HOPES

Coach Says Quarter-Milers and Sprinters Are Fastest Ever to Compete in World Games.

The strains of the Star Spangled Banner and the war-time song of "Over There" mingled yesterday with the shrieking sirens of ocean liners, the deafening blasts of river steamers, ferryboats and tugs in a farewell salvo which sped the United States liner America, bearing the American Olympic team, on its way to France and the Olympic Games.

Promptly at one o'clock the liner backed from its berth at Pier 4, Hoboken, and pointed its nose to the ocean. As the stout lines of the ship were cast off and the America was being nudged into position by a collection of tugs which appeared all too small for the task they had undertaken, there was a cheer from the dock and a fluttering of American flags and handkerchiefs from the hundreds of friends and relatives of the crack athletes crowding the rail for a last farewell shout and a final wave of the hand. This demonstration, however, was drowned in the terrific uproar set up by the harbor craft scurrying about the unruffled surface of the Hudson as the America pointed for the ocean.

It was a farewell long to be remembered as the crowds and the craft, in their own different ways, wished Godspeed, success and a safe return to the men and women who are soon to struggle against the athletes of the world in a bid for another illustration of American athletic supremacy. Not since the days after the armistice when Uncle Sam's troops came straggling back flushed with victory has the harbor of New York witnessed such a demonstration.

Steams Down the Bay.

Not until the America sped past the Statue of Liberty did the demonstration subside. With "American Olympic Teams" painted in large white letters on her sides, the America steamed down the bay trailed by the municipal tug Service No. 1, formerly the John F. Hylan. This craft carried men and women friends, relatives and admirers of the departing athletes and newspapermen and photographers, all shouting until the America swept out of range.

Sailing on the America was a total of about 400 athletic competitors and officials. The competitive passenger list consisted of about 320 individuals comprising the track and field, boxing, wrestling, men's and women's swimming, fencing, gymnastic and modern pentathlon teams. The whole represented the greatest athletic talent of the nation.

By Lawson Robertson, veteran University of Pennsylvania coach who is Head Coach of the Olympic team, the track and field team was described as one of the strongest America ever has sent to an Olympic Games renewal.

"This team is the greatest we could muster and one of the strongest America ever has entered in the Olympic Games," said Coach Robertson on shipboard before the America pulled out into the stream. "Individually it does not quite come up to other teams of the past. By that I mean it has not outstanding stars other American Olympic teams have boasted. But the combined strength of the team is as good as that of any other team we have ever sent across.

"The sprinters are better than ever. The quarter-milers are better than the men we had at Antwerp in 1920. The half-milers are good, but, frankly, not up to the standard of 1912 at Stockholm, when we had Meredith, Sheppard and Davenport. For the 1,500 meters I expect we will have Joie Ray. If he trains well, I think we will enter him for this event in preference to the 3,000-meter run in which he qualified.

"The distance men furnish one of our weakest points. In the field events, too, we are weak, save in the pole vault, where I expect good things of Spero, who, by the way, will be chaplain for the team on the ship. In the shot-put and the broad jump also, we have something to look forward to.

"Our team can expect a hard struggle. It will not be a walk-over by any means. Certainly it will not be another Antwerp. Rival nations are better prepared now than they ever were. Athletics in France, Finland and Great Britain, and among the smaller countries, suffered through the war and there were no new athletes to come up in time for the Antwerp games. But this year these nations are better prepared and better equipped, and it promises to be a hard struggle. We're ready for it, though, and confident of another victory."

Thompson Also Is Pleased.

Colonel Robert M. Thompson, President of the American Olympic Committee, sailing with the team, expressed his satisfaction for the members of the team, his satisfaction over the selections and the manner in which they were made, and confidence in the strength of the squad.

"We are taking over about 350 of the finest specimens of young manhood and womanhood that this country can find," said Colonel Thompson. "They were selected from at least 10,000 contestants by a process of elimination leading up to the finals, during which world's record after world's record was broken. They are animated by one purpose—to do honor to the United States. Our one great object is so to conduct ourselves as to come back on better terms with all the nations against which we will compete. If we win we will win with the proper spirit. If we lose we will lose like gentlemen."

One note of sadness stood out conspicuously in the otherwise joyous occasion. It revolved about Jens Jensen, slim little Danish runner who is a member of the Seventh Field Artillery at Madison Barracks. After qualifying for the team in the steeplechase, Jensen discovered that despite the fact he has served for eighteen months in the United States Army, he is not a citizen, and, therefore, cannot compete for America. The quiet-spoken, solemn-faced youngster was deeply chagrined. Basil Irwin, Newark A. C., replaces Jensen on the team.

ATHLETES RESTING AT SEA.

Reports to Shore State That Workouts Will Start Today.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP AMERICA, June 16 (Associated Press).—The members of the Olympic team this evening were buoyant in spirit and keenly confident of making a triumphant showing in the games in Paris. Except for a few swimmers, who tried out the miniature canvas tank on board the America, all the athletes rested. The coaches, however, plan to give their charges active workouts tomorrow and daily practice during the remainder of the week's journey.

Colonel Thompson announced this evening that the $350,000 Olympic fund goal was in sight, in consequence of an eleventh hour contribution of $10,000 from Boston, handed to him at the gangplank today by Henry Lapham.

Colonel Thompson also announced that he had asked the Navy Department to send the naval officers' eight-oared crew, which was second to Yale in the final trials, to Paris as a reserve entry.

U. S.-Argentine Polo Fours Drawn to Start Olympic Play

PARIS, June 16.—Argentina versus the United States will provide the star bill for the opening match of the Olympic polo competition, now definitely fixed for Saturday, June 28, on the eve of the Grand Prix. "We will have the final on the opening day," Count Jean Pastre, who is organizing the tournament for the French Olympic Committee, informed The Associated Press today. This remark is explained by the fact that the United States and Argentina have been regarded by the experts as likely winners of the competition, and the luck of the draw has pitted them against each other in the very first match.

Other matches thus far drawn are: France vs. United States, June 30; Spain vs. Argentina, July 1; Great Britain vs. the United States, July 3.

ARMY AND MAGPIES FIRST POLO VICTORS

Start Long Island Season by Beating Freebooters and Ramblers, 11-7 and 10-5.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., June 16.—The first polo tournament of the 1924 season on Long Island started today on the historic fields of Meadow Brook Club here, where the international classic against the British horsemen will be played in September, and at the end of two games the Army four and the Meadow Brook Magpies had each advanced a round in the quest for the Meadow Brook Club Cups, the trophies offered annually for teams whose aggregate handicap does not exceed twenty goals.

In the opening game the Army, presenting two new faces in the line-up, defeated the Freebooters by a score of 11 to 7, while in the other contest the Magpies were victorious over the Ramblers, 10 to 5. The turf of the field was firm, and the ponies and players all seemed filled with the energy for competition. The result was that the spectators who watched the games from the clubhouse witnessed two fast battles.

In the first encounter the Army horsemen, with the veterans of last year's international military championship combination, Major A. H. Wilson and Major Louis A. Beard at the No. 1 and back positions, respectively, rolled up a commanding lead over the Freebooters, and clearly demonstrated from the start that they are to be reckoned with again this year when they will defend the junior title for the second time. Captain C. A. Wilkinson was in at No. 2, and Lieutenant J. A. Smith Jr. at No. 3 for the officers, replacing Colonel Lewis Brown, and Major J. K. Herr, who performed in those places last season. The new combination worked well together and completely dominated the play.

The military four started with a one-goal handicap, and it increased this margin by three goals in the first period, while the Freebooters were held scoreless by the same fine defensive work of Major Bard, which marked his play last year. Welson counted twice in the opening chukker, and Beard himself came forward to add another goal.

In the second period Wilkinson sent the ball spinning through the posts while the Freebooters were again held scoreless, the count at that time being 5 to 0, with the Army riding well out in front. Finally Morgan Belmont started the Freebooters on their way with a well-timed backhand in the third period but it was too late to overhaul the flying officers and when the last gong sounded the Army had lost only one point of its early lead and won by 11 to 7.

Devereux Milburn, the veteran internationalist who is practically certain to lead the American four this year, was all over the field in the second game. Although playing his usual position at back, he roamed the field at will against the Ramblers, sending the ball up to his forwards with the long, hurtling strokes that have made him famous wherever polo is played, and then going forward himself to take part in the attack on the goal. Milburn counted four times for the Magpies and found time between goals to keep his own position well protected, holding the Ramblers to four earned points.

Marshall Field, riding his famous Ki Yi and Face Value, did some fine work at the No. 1 position and Robert E. Strawbridge Jr., playing at back for the Ramblers, showed that he must be considered when the American team is selected to defend the international challenge cup, although he was playing in a position where he does not show to the best advantage.

The lineups:

FIRST GAME.

ARMY (11).	FREEBOOTERS (7).
1—Major Wilson.	1—G. M. Heckscher.
2—Capt. Wilkinson.	2—H. B. Blackwell.

U. S. OLYMPIC FOUR LOSES.

Concedes French Team 10-Goal Handicap and Is Beaten, 11-10.

PARIS, June 16.—The American Olympic polo team lined up today with Tommy Hitchcock, Rodman Wanamaker, Fred Roe and E. J. Roeseke Jr. and was defeated in a practice match by a French scrub team composed of Count Jean de Polignac, Charles de Polignac, De Montbrison and J. Macaire. The French team, however, was accorded a ten-goal handicap. The score was: French, 11; Americans 10.

BRYN MAWR FOUR WINS.

Beats Philadelphia Country Club, 16-4—Earle Scores 11 Goals.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—George H. Earle 3d was the scintillating star of polo today at the Philadelphia Country Club oval at Bala, when the country Club and Bryn Mawr crossed mallets. Earle himself getting eleven goals out of the sixteen tallies made by his team. The final score was 16 to 4. The four Country Club goals were handicaps.

The line-up:

BRYN MAWR (16)	COUNTRY CLUB (4)
No. 1—G. Earle 3d.	No. 1—J. W. Converse
No. 2—W. S. Stokes.	No. 2—F. Reeves.

BRAINSTORM IS WINNER

J. S. Cosden's filly Rejected won the honors of the twenty-third running of the Canarsie Claiming Stakes for two-year-olds at the Aqueduct race course yesterday afternoon. Rejected, carrying 104 pounds and well ridden by Jockey J. Shanks, ran the five furlongs out of the chute in 1:00 flat over a fast track, winning $4,650 for her owner. She was little thought of at odds of 10 to 1. The Olambala Handicap at a mile went to H. Waterson's Brainstorm, which carried 126 pounds and was ridden by Jockey J. Malben. The gelding ran the distance in the fine time of 1:37 1-5.

The first really warm day of Summer brought out a large Monday crowd, which had an enjoyable afternoon, as four favorites came home in front. Jockey J. Callahan started the afternoon with a rush, riding the winners of the first two races. He won the first with Delmor and the second with High Commander.

Nine went to the post in the Canarsie Stakes, which was established in 1898, and they made a splendid finish of it, the first three horses running heads apart. Rejected was slow to get under way, Barney Google, Socrates and the favorite, the Greentree Stable's Pocket Mouse, fighting it out in the early stages. The last-named dropped back quickly after making the turn and thereafter was not a factor.

Shanks Rides Well.

Shanks made a brilliant finish on Rejected, getting the filly up just in time to beat W. R. Coe's Dugout. R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Hidalgo came from far back on the outside with a great rush at the end and was nearing the leaders down. William Daniel's Socrates, which finished fourth, was claimed by Mrs. J. A. Coburn for $6,000, while Pocket Mouse was taken by C. R. Anderson for $6,500. The winner opened at 15 to 1 and was backed to 10 to 1 at post time.

In the Olambala Handicap Brainstorm with top weight of 126 gave two pounds each to Horologe and Cherry Pie, nine to Valador and fifteen to Roland. Brainstorm never looked better and broke with speed. Majben rode a good race, holding Brainstorm out in front all the way. He was under restraint until they came into the stretch where Brothers challenged with Valador. The latter threatened dangerously getting his head to Brainstorm's throatlatch, but Brainstorm came away again to win by a length and a quarter from Valador, with Horologe third. The winner was the favorite, backed down to 7 to 5. Cherry Pie, second choice, was outrun and never a factor. The fractional times of the race were: 0:23 1-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12, 1:37 1-5.

Callahan in Form.

Callahan's second race was cleverly won. He had the mount on T. Sarno's gelding High Commander for the mile event, in which eighteen started. It was one of the largest fields of the season, and it took five minutes to get them aligned. J. Diggins's Jaunebar had the early speed and set the pace, Callahan holding High Commander in close attendance. Jaunebar, which set the pace, weakened at the close, and High Commander won going away by a length and a half. The Flamingo Farm's Poor Sport, always well up, took third.

Barnes Is First to Enter 1925 Open Golf Tourney

The first entry for the 1925 national open championship to be received by the United States Golf Association is that of James Barnes, former Pelham professional and winner in 1921. Barnes, previous to sailing for the British open championship after his entry for the 1924 championship at Oakland Hills, had been turned down by officials of the U. S. G. A. and the P. G. A. because it was received after the closing date, made a request for a 1925 entry blank. Upon receipt of the document he filled it out and mailed it in with the request that his name be duly entered. Neither the course nor the date has been named for 1925, nor has Executive Secretary T. J. McMahon of the U. S. G. A. received the 1925 receipt books. Nevertheless a receipt was made out and Barnes assured that he would be permitted to enter next year.

MARSTON CAPTURES MEDAL IN TOURNEY

Sets Course Record at 67 in Morning to Lead Field at Huntingdon Valley.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Maxwell R. Marston, national amateur golf champion, won the medal today in the qualifying round of the Lynnewood Hall Cup golf tournament at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club with a score of 147 for the thirty-six holes. In the morning round Marston lowered the course record, shooting a 67, five under par. The champion had five birdies in this round and was over par only once. This was on the 330-yard second hole. He eased up in the afternoon, taking an 80 for the round.

George V. Rotan of Houston, Texas, and D. Clarke Corkran and C. C. Ingraham, both of the home club, tied for second place with scores of 148.

Others in the first sixteen were W. H. Gardiner, Buffalo, 152; E. D. Leisenring, Philadelphia, 155; Maurice Risley, Atlantic City, 156; G. W. Stevens, Philadelphia, 156; D. A. MRS. LAPHAM'S 89 WINS GOLF MEDAL

MISS MAC MAHON HAS 98

Sleepy Hollow Star Is Off Form and Takes 50 on First Nine Holes at Greenwich Country Club.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 16.—Mrs. John H. Lapham of Woodway was the medalist in the qualifying round of the second annual championship of the Women's Westchester and Fairfield County Golf Association at the Greenwich Country Club today. Mrs. Lapham, in spite of the heavy condition of the course as a result of recent rains, turned in a score of 44, 45—89.

Mrs. George Hite Jr. and Mrs. Elsie Lesher of Apawamis and Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Greenwich, former national champion, finished in a tie for second place, their totals being 91. Mrs. Lesher, with a handicap of 6 strokes, won the low net prize with a score of 85. Miss Elise MacMahon of Sleepy Hollow, who made such an excellent showing in the recent women's metropolitan championship, was unable to get going today, ruining her chances for the medal by taking an even 50 on her outward round and finishing with 49 for a total of 98.

Mrs. Lapham played excellent golf except at two holes, both of them on the outgoing nine, when she took two strokes over the par allowance.

GIANTS BEAT CARDS AND INCREASE LEAD

WILSON LEADS THE ATTACK

Drives in Three Runs and Scores Twice Himself—Nehf Halts St. Louis in Last 5 Frames.

The St. Louis Cardinals made their 1924 début at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon, but failed to check the Giants, and at the conclusion of the festivities the Giants were the winners by 7 to 2. As a result of this victory and a setback for the Cubs by the Phillies, the Giants now are leading the pennant race by a margin of a game and a half. It was the third straight victory for the champions, the winning streak including two triumphs over the Reds.

Art Nehf was the defensive hero, holding St. Louis to seven hits, which were bunched in the second, third and fourth innings. In the last five innings he held the Cards hitless, only fifteen men facing him. Not a man reached first base during that five-inning stretch. Dell pitched six innings for the Cards, and Dickerman, late of the Robins, labored in the seventh and eighth.

On the attack the headliner was Hack Wilson, who has been holding down centrefield in the absence of the injured Billy Southworth. The herculean Hack had a hand in scoring five of the seven runs, and it was through his efforts that the Giants piled up a 4-to-2 lead, which, in view of the brilliant work of Nehf, was sufficient to clinch the game. In the first inning he drove home Frisch with a single; in the third he tripled and scored on Kelly's sacrifice, and in the fifth, with Nehf on third and Frisch on second, he singled, scoring both. Then in the seventh he walked, reached second on a balk and completed the circuit on Meusel's single to right field.

The other two Giant runs were accounted for by Jackson, who singled in the sixth, took second on a fumble and counted on Young's long single to left centre and Young's home run in the eighth.

The Cardinals' only chances to score were in the second, third an dfourth innings. It was in the third that they managed to bunch three hits with a base on balls for two runs that gave them the lead, the only time they enjoyed it in the game. A few minutes later the Giants tied it up, then clinched it in the fifth.

Frisch Gets Three Hits.

Frisch also had a productive afternoon. He turned in a record of two singles and a double and two runs for his part in the offensive. The outstanding field play of the afternoon went to Ray Blades, the Cards' left fielder who robbed Jackson of a triple and possibly a home run when he made a circus catch of Travis's drive near the wall in left centre.

The Cards went out in order in the first inning. Blades and Douthit were thrown out by Frisch, and Hornsby sent a long fly to Wilson. Young opened for the Giants with a grounder to Hornsby but Frisch doubled off the left field wall. Wilson then sent a long single to center and Frisch scored easily. Kelly fouled to Gonzales and Meusel forced Wilson, Hornsby to Cooney.

After Freigau rolled to Jackson in the second, Myers and Gonzales singled. Myers holding second. Mueller then hit into a double play, Nehf to Jackson to Kelly. With Jackson out in the Giants' half Groh and Snyder singled, Groh holding second. Nehf forced Snyder, Hornsby to Cooney, and Young sent a fly to Blades.

Cooney grounded to Nehf to open the third but Bell walked. Blades then tripled to left field wall, being caught at the plate in an effort to stretch the hit into a home run. Douthit followed with a single and stole second. He scored the second and last St. Louis run on Hornsby's hit to center field. The Giants evened the score in their half. Frisch fanned, but Wilson tripled to left center and crossed the plate on Kelly's long fly to Blades. Meusel then grounded to Hornsby.

Cards Held Helpless.

The Cards tried again in the fourth but failed. Myers and Gonzales started with singles. Mueller, in an attempt to sacrifice, forced Myers at third. Cooney flied to center and Bell fanned. In the Giants' half, Jackson and Groh flied out and Snyder grounded to Cooney.

There was not much to the Cards attack in the last five innings. Only two balls were hit out of the infield, both drives going to Wilson for easy chances. But with the Giants it was another story, and they proceeded to bat their way to victory.

DETROIT, June 16.—Lil Stoner pitched Detroit to a 3 to 0 shut-out victory over Boston today, holding the Red Sox to six scattered hits while the Tigers were scoring three runs. Heilmann went hitless, but two of his long flies brought men home from third. Boston missed a chance to score in the eighth, when, with the bases filled, Todt grounded out.

CATCHES FEATURE CONTEST

Stock Gets Walker's Foul Bare-Handed and Griffith Robs Bohne of Extra-Base Blow.

The eighth inning of yesterday's game at Ebbets Field was a fatal one for Eppa Rixey and the Reds. In that session the Robins rallied and scored four runs on four hits and two errors, and the combination enabled them to secure a 5 to 2 victory over Jack Hendrick's aggregation. The costly errors were charged against Pinelli and Caveney.

Burleigh Grimes pitched for the Robins, and although two errors were made behind him, his support was nothing short of spectacular in the pinches. In the second inning Stock made a great bare-handed catch of Walker's foul with the bases filled, and in the eighth Tommy Griffith robbed Bohne of at least a triple when he made a wonderful catch against the right-field fence with two men on the paths.

Andy High started Rixey's downfall in the eighth, when he led off with a single, his third of the game. Olsen fanned, but Wheat bounced a single over Caveney's head. Roush returned the ball to Caveney, who made a wild throw to first base, and High scored. Fournier singled, and Stock followed with another. Wheat scored on Stock's hit. When Pinelli, who took Duncan's relay, threw the ball past Bohne at second base, Fournier scored and Stock went all the way to third. Brown followed with a long fly to Duncan, who made a great one-handed catch in front of the bleachers. The catch robbed Brown of a home run, but Stock scored after the out.

Two Triples for Walker.

Walker found Grimes's shoots to his liking. The former Philly outfielder made a pair of triples, and each one figured in the Red tallies. Walker led off in the opening frame with his first three-bagger. Grimes retired Roush and Bressler, but Duncan drew a pass, and the delayed double steal was attempted. It resulted in Walker scoring.

In the fifth Walker made his second triple, and this time Roush followed with a single that sent him over the plate. Bressler then singled, but Duncan's attempted sacrifice resulted in a double play, and the Reds were unable to score more than one run.

In the first inning the Robins made only two hits, but in the sixth they scored their first run on an error. Grimes singled, and stopped at second when High singled to right. Olson sacrificed, and Wheat grounded to Cueney, who booted the ball, Grimes scoring.

Johnston Out of Game.

Jimmie Johnston will be out of the Robins' batting order for several days as a result of an injury sustained when he slid into the plate in Sunday's game. Olson will play short while Johnston is out. This was the first game Olson has participated in this season.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—The Phillies won the opening game from the Chicago Cubs today, 8 to 3, driving Alexander from the box in the second inning after scoring four runs on four hits. Wheeler, who succeeded Blake in the Sixth, was touched for four hits and three runs in the last two innings. Harper's home run in the second and a running catch of a long liner by Cy Williams in the eighth featured.

YANKS LOSE IN 9TH ON JOHNSON'S ERROR

BUSH FALTERS IN FINAL

Yields Only 3 Hits Up to Last Inning, Then Cleveland Bunches Trio of Safeties—N. Y. Gets Markle.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 16.—The Yankees lost a hard-fought game today by the score of 2 to 1, the Indians scoring all their runs in a ninth inning rally, the winning run coming over when Ernie Johnson fumbled Pitcher Coveleskie's hard grounder. The veteran southpaw held the Yankees to eight hits. The Indians made only six off Joe Bush, who up to the ninth had issued but three scattered safeties.

The final round that delighted 11,000 fans opened with Joie Sewell singling to deep right. Myatt followed by getting a safe hit on a hard grounder to deep short which Scott stopped but could not field in time to make the throw to first. Burns forced Myatt at second. Pitcher Uhle was called upon to bat for Fewster and he forced out Burns, who dived into second so hard that Ernie Johnson was knocked off his feet and was prevented from throwing to first for a double play. Sewell scored from third with the tying run on this play, and the Yankees complained vigorously, claiming deliberate interference, but Umpire Hildebrand could not see it that way.

Winning Run Put Over.

Luke Sewell was sent by Manager Speaker to run for Uhle, and the catching member of the Sewell family reached second when Pfiarbe drove a single into left. Coveleskie came up to win his own game if possible. Only a few weeks ago waivers were asked on him. He hit a sharp grounder to Johnson. The ball bounced twenty feet out of Johnson's glove and before Scott could run and pick up the sphere Luke Sewell was over the plate in a fine burst of speed and being patted on the back by a welcoming delegation of his mates.

The Yankees' lone run was driven over in the seventh by Harvey Hendrick, recruit outfielder, who is filling the crippled Earl Combs's place in left. With one down Bush hit into right and went to second on Johnson's Texas league single to centre. Witt sacrificed. Ruth, who in his previous time up had raised a fly to McNulty for the third out with the bases full, was this time purposely passed by the shrewd Coveleskie. But Hendrick came through with his second hit of the game, scratching a high-bounding single off the pitcher's glove that scored Bush from third. This run looked big enough to win the game until Bush's collapse in the ninth.

Earl Combs, whose right ankle was broken sliding over the plate in the first inning of yesterday's game, will remain in the Huron Road Hospital here for two weeks with a plaster cast on his leg. Several X-rays of the injury were taken last night and this morning, and while the fracture and dislocation of the foot joint are serious it is felt that Combs will lose but little of his speed. He will be moved to New York as soon as advisable and put uner the care of specialists.

Yankees Get Cliff Markle.

Mark Roth, read secretary of the club, announced that the Yankees had closed a deal for Pitcher Clifford Markle of the St. Paul Club of the American Association. Pitcher Oscar Roettger goes to the Saints as part payment. Markle is expected to join the Yankees here tomorrow. Markle was sent to St. Paul by the Cincinnati Reds. He pitched before was with the Yankees. During the 1923 season Markle was the third ranking American Association pitcher.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 16.—Harvard's baseball squad invaded Yale Field this afternoon for drill preliminary to opening the series with Yale tomorrow before a commencement crowd that Harold Woodcock, Yale's athletic manager, estimated tonight would be about 17,000, including nearly 5,000 alumni.

No change in either line-up is expected. Harvard will retain the alignment that swept Princeton twice to defeat and Yale the same which fell in straight games before the Tigers.

SCHOOL EXAMINERS CONTRADICT HYLAN

Six Sign Letter Denying Charges Made in Mayor's Attack on Ettinger.

SAY HE WAS MISINFORMED

In reply to a letter written by Mayor John F. Hylan to the Board of Examiners of the city public school system recently, attacking Dr. William L. Ettinger, former Superintendent of Schools, six of the seven examiners yesterday wrote Mr. Hylan, denying the charges. The seventh member of the Board of Examiners, Joseph M. Sheehan, who has been charged by his colleagues with violating the rules of the board by showing favoritism in an examination to a relative of Mr. Hylan's, did not sign the letter.

The six examiners deny that Dr. Ettinger exercised undue influence over the members of the board, that preference was shown to individuals approved by the Public Education Association and applicants from outside the city, and that a serious shortage of elementary school teachers had existed. The letter follows:

June 6, 1924.

Dear Sir: The Board of Examiners acknowledges the receipt of a letter from you, dated May 26, concerning the reasons for the removal of Dr. William L. Ettinger from the position of Superintendent of Schools.

In this letter you state:

"It was, however, clearly established by the investigation conducted that the Superintendent of Schools did exercise a great influence over the Board of Examiners; that he used this board for the advancement of private purposes; that individuals bearing the stamp of approval of non-official bodies such as the Public Educational Association of Rockefeller affiliation were given unwarranted preferences and that in the licensing of teachers great partiality was shown to those coming from outside the city, notwithstanding that this was in defiance of the rules on that subject.

"Though there has been long and constant shortage of elementary school grade teachers, Superintendent Ettinger did not relieve the situation by permitting the issuance of licenses without an additional examination to applicants after graduation from the Teachers' Training Schools; and this despite the fact that it is a common practice throughout the country for graduates of training schools to teach for a probationary period without further examination. Dr. Ettinger approved the continuance of the practice of the additional examinations conducted by the Board of Examiners, which examinations were practically useless and expensive as well as time-consuming."

Sir, permit us to take this occasion to assure you, with all due respect, that we believe your criticisms of the Board of Examiners to be unjustified, and that you have apparently been misinformed as to the facts you allege.

Improper Influence Denied.

1. Dr. Ettinger during his incumbency exercised no influence over the Board of Examiners other than the properly limited authority which as a supervising officer he was required to exercise under the terms of the rulings of the State Commissioner of Education. It can be unqualifiedly asserted that he did not use "this board for the advancement of private purposes." We respectfully request you to indicate by quotation from or specific reference to the record of the investigation the basis of your statement that the investigation "clearly established" the improper influence you allege. At most it is such an influence not "established" but, as we recall, it is not even hinted at or alluded to by the detractors of the board in any part of the investigation.

2. Your allusion to an alleged preference being given to "individuals bearing the stamp of approval of non-official bodies such as the Public Educational Association" probably narrows down to the case of one individual, a colored visiting teacher, formerly employed by the Public Education Association, who, after passing all examinations and being duly licensed, has been appointed to the public school system by the Board of Education. So far as can be guessed, the alleged impropriety of the board's action in this case seems to have been the inquiry by this board, made in the case of all candidates, into the teacher's past record and the subsequent receipt of a letter from the Director of the Public Education Association certifying to the satisfactoriness of her services. On a previous occasion in a letter to President Ryan of the Board of Education you made the same unwarranted allegation. We accordingly set forth all the facts in the case in full detail in a letter addressed to each of the Commissioners. We are taking the liberty of sending you a copy of this letter. In this connection we call your attention to the following paragraph from the letter in question:

"It is regrettable that the Mayor's letter to President Ryan refers to testimony given in the investigation now being conducted by your committee; that the case is therefore sub judice; and that the Mayor, who appointed the officer acting as judge in the case, has placed himself in the position, before the case has been summed up or a decision rendered, of conveying to the judge a pointed suggestion as to what he thinks the decision should be."

3. We regret that you should think it possible that applicants "coming from outside the city" receive preferential treatment. Such discrimination simply does not exist. What might be our motive in adopting such a silly policy? When examination papers are rated, the identity and residence of the candidate are altogether concealed from the readers by an examination number. In the rating of appeals also candidates from within and outside of the city receive identical treatment. As a matter of fact, the records of almost any of our examinations show that New York City candidates, probably because of their superior training, decidedly outstrip "outsiders" in the percentage of applicants licensed.

5. We wish to correct the impression conveyed in your letter that there has been a serious shortage of elementary school grade teachers. When this shortage was at its worst, according to figures from Dr. O'Shea's office, the number of vacancies did not amount to much more than 200 out of a possible 13,000 License No. 1 positions. The abolition of examinations for training school graduates would not have helped matters, since all but approximately 3 per cent. of these graduates have passed our examinations.

Value of Examinations.

6. This fact, however, does not warrant the assertion that such examinations "were practically useless." We believe them to be both useful and necessary for the following reasons:

(a) A competitive License No. 1 examination is necessary to establish the eligible list required by law, which determines the order of appointment.

(b) A competitive License No. 1 examination is necessary as an incentive to effort on the part of the training school students, to achieve the most thorough professional preparation.

(c) A competitive License No. 1 examination is necessary as the only means of determining the ability of the training school graduates in comparison with that of all other applicants.

(d) A competitive License No. 1 examination is useful as a means by which the professional staffs of the several training schools may measure in comparison with each other the success of their instruction.

(e) A competitive License No. 1 examination is therefore valuable as a means of maintaining the same standards in all training schools.

(f) A competitive License No. 1 examination is useful as a check-up on the judgment of the training school staffs on all doubtful cases.

Your proposal to abolish civil service methods for approximately 1,000 teaching positions annually is not in accordance with the opinions of the training school Principals themselves or the representatives of the local public colleges. (Minutes, Coordination Committee of Representatives of Local Training Schools and Colleges and of the Board of Examiners, May 13, 1924.) Your proposal would almost certainly not meet with the approval of the Supervisors of the elementary schools. Nor would it be likely to meet with the approval of the majority of citizens of this city whose children attend the elementary schools. The elementary schools are the poor man's schools, for only too often the poor man's children never get beyond the elementary schools. These children, of all children, are entitled, in the few years they can attend school, to the best education that the taxes paid by their parents and other citizens can buy. These children, of all children, are to be protected against teachers who by their incompetence often drive such children prematurely out of school into the industrial world and condemn them to lives of menial employment. For the elementary schools, if anywhere in the school system, every safeguard should be set up against the licensing of applicants who are ill prepared to teach, and every incentive should be maintained for the encouragement of aspirants to be well prepared to teach. Such a safeguard and such an incentive exist, we believe, in the License No. 1 examination.

If we considered this examination "unnecessary for training school graduates," we would certainly not continue to require this "time-consuming" examination, burdened as we are with many other exacting duties. Our policy, however, with reference to this matter is based on our conception of our public trust, of our duty to the citizens of this city and to the citizens' children; it is our obligation to them and not our own convenience which we regard ourselves as bound to consult.

In view of the seriousness of the criticisms of our board which you sent to us and to the public press, we hope, now that you have been supplied in this letter with more complete information on the points you refer to, that accordingly you will modify your opinion of the work and character of our board, and will correct the injurious impression given to the public by your published letter, dated May 26, 1924, addressed to us.

THROWS ACID AT HUSBAND.

Woman Also Tries Suicide After Marriage Is Declared Illegal.

After hearing her marriage declared illegal yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Proskauer, Mrs. Lena Goldstein Lang of 215 Manhattan Avenue threw part of the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid upon Harry Lang to whom she was married on May 22, 1922, and drank some of it in an attempt at suicide.

Justice Proskauer had just annulled the marriage of Lang to Miss Goldstein on the ground that his previous common law marriage on April 15, 1910, to Mary Lang, was valid.

The second Mrs. Lang hurried from the courtroom and to an open space in front of the elevator where her husband was standing. As she uncorked the bottle and threw the acid, he raised a newspaper before his face, which caught all but two or three drops that slightly scarred his left cheek. Then she raised the bottle to her lips and succeeded in drinking some of it before it was dashed from her hand by her cousin. She was taken to the Broad Street Hospital and will recover.

Arrested in Fight Film Case.

William H. Rudolph, one of those indicted in New Jersey Federal Court on the charge of transporting films of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight from New York to New Jersey, July 22, 1921, was arrested yesterday by Louis Ellperin, an agent of the Department of Justice. Rudolph was arraigned before United States Commissioner Samuel H. Hitchcock and waived extradition. He was held in $1,500 bail for appearance in Newark. Bail was furnished.

NINE JURORS PICKED FOR TRIAL OF MEANS

CHARGES BIAS AND MALICE

Judge Wolverton Rules That Court Has No Power to Remove Assistant Attorney General Todd.

The trial of Gaston B. Means, former investigator for the Department of Justice, on the charge of conspiracy to transport whisky in violation of the national prohibition act, finally got under way before Judge C. E. Wolverton in the Federal Court yesterday after ten postponements. Elmer W. Jarnecke, who was known as Means's secretary, is a co-defendant.

When court adjourned yesterday nine jurors had been chosen. Colonel Thomas B. Felder, for the defense, excused several when they declared that they could not give Means a fair trial because of what they had read of his activities. Means himself told a Senate investigating body that he has been "accused of every crime on the calendar, but not convicted so far."

Colonel Felder made a vigorous but futile attempt to have Hiram C. Todd disqualified as the Special Assistant Attorney General in charge of the prosecution. He charged that Mr. Todd had called Means a crook and would be "biased and unfair."

"When I was young and honorable," said Colonel Felder, who is himself under indictment with Means on other charges, "I was honored by appointment as prosecuting attorney in my county. Never have I found that a District Attorney, an Attorney General or a Special Attorney General did not voluntarily disqualify himself if he had the malice and vindictiveness toward a defendant as has been manifested in this case."

Todd Gives His Reasons.

Mr. Todd said he felt he was perfectly justified in calling Means "a crook," and he enumerated several reasons upon which he based his justification. He also read from the official records of the Senate committee's hearings and referred also to Means's connection with the Maude King case. While not touching upon the actual slaying, Mr. Todd pointed out that Means had reported finding a will of Mrs. King in 1919 and that two tribunals had rejected it as a forgery.

"Gaston B. Means means nothing to me as an individual," Mr. Todd continued. "I never knew or heard of him before, except what I read about him, before I was asked to prosecute the case. I have been zealous and have done my utmost. I don't feel that by doing the best that is in me I should be insulted in this manner."

Judge Wolverton declared he didn't see "that this Court has any power in displacing the prosecutor," and denied Colonel Felder's motion.

MYTHS ABOUT THE FARMER.

The fiction that the Middle West and the Northwest are filled with millions of enraged and despairing farmers has been sedulously put about for more than a year. The signs are that it has been much overdone. The farmers themselves are beginning to resent it. They don't take to the pictures of the West as a land where the banks are all going broke, the agricultural population is ruined itself and is ruining all the rest and the soil is being left uncultivated. The Western States still like to represent themselves as inviting fields for outside capital. They have not left off desiring to proclaim the opportunities which their rich lands offer to good farming. Latterly they have even begun to advertise their great attractions. People in Iowa and in Nebraska have united to buy space in Eastern newspapers for the purpose of stating the facts about their natural resources, their material and educational progress and the bright hopes which they continue to hold out to newcomers. The Western farmer is by no means a down-and-outer. He protests that he is an up-and-comer.

Naturally, he has been willing to play the political game for all that there was in it. He did not openly object when the politicians in Congress who pretend to speak for him insisted that he was a dispirited bankrupt who must be helped by a dole out of the Treasury. If others were getting Government subsidies, the Western farmers were not averse to getting one for themselves, if it could be worked under some disguise or other. But now that those hopes and devices have turned out to be illusory, the farmers are going back to farming again, and displaying more of the spirit which has made them hitherto the typically independent-minded and self-reliant citizens of the United States.

They have reason to take courage from recent changes in the agricultural outlook. Tricky and insincere politics has failed the farmer, but nature and economic law now promise to do him a good turn. The price of wheat at Chicago has gone up 10 cents within a week. So good an authority as Professor DAVID FRIDAY predicts that by the Autumn wheat will be selling at $1.25. If dollar wheat saved us from BRYAN in 1896, dollar-and-a-quarter wheat ought to save us from the worst consequences of demagogues and disturbers of the peace this year. And the farmers are not so stupid as not to know whence their help came. It was not from humbugging tariff taxes on farm products. It was not from applying the quack remedy of reduced freight rates on agricultural shipments. It was not from the labors or machinations of the farm bloc in Congress. All the bills that were to work the salvation of the farmer fell by the way. The trumpeters of the McNary-Haugen measure cried to all and sundry that no other plan could make the price of wheat budge. But that much-touted nostrum was discarded, yet the price of wheat at once shot up.

There is no secret about the causes. The estimate of the yield this year is that the total wheat crop will be something like 93,000,000 bushels less than 1923. Along with this come indications of a world shortage—at least a great drop from the abnormally large harvests of last year. These facts, translated into terms of the market, mean a smaller supply, a larger demand and a consequent higher price.

One has only to imagine these natural causes continuing in operation till October in order to see what striking political effects they will be bound to have. It may not be long before the Dawes report is put in operation in Europe. That would mean not only greater financial stability abroad, but an industrial quickening and an enlarged purchasing power in the American markets. If this result actually arrives, what could not be done with it by skilled political campaigners? They could point to the Vice Presidential candidate on the Republican ticket as the man who actually had done more for the farmers than all the mouthers and air-beaters in Congress put together. Not Senator CAPPER or MAGNUS JOHNSON, not the McNary-Haugben twins, not even the loud-sounding Senator from Wisconsin did the business, but General DAWES! The changes could be rung on this all through the West in a way to make the prairies quiver like aspens. It would be only a partial truth, of course, but it would be a good enough Morgan until after the election. And it would at least have the delightful effect of dispelling forever the myth, so carefully disseminated for selfish partisan ends, that Western farmers are a feeble race of quitters, a sort of cross between a fool and a fanatic.

THE HEROIC DEAD VILLAGE.

The epitaph which has been written over the site of a French village that once lived its happy simple life in what is now the devastated region is one that SIMONIDES might have composed:

Here was born and lived throughout several centuries the village of Thiepval; dead on the field of honor.

So Thiepval, the least of villages, has been clothed in a shining garment of praise by those who have inherited something of that which gave Greece her glory. Thiepval can never be "one with Nineveh and Tyre"—those great cities of departed fame, cried against by a Jonah or doomed by an Ezekiel. Though even smaller than Zoar, the little city which the archaeologists think they have found near the Dead Sea, Thiepval will need no antiquarian to certify ages hence to her sometime existence, for her name will be on an imperishable roll of honor. The plinth which records her local habitation will keep her name.

When HECUBA saw the smoke climbing above ancient Troy, in which were the "beloved streets of her birth," she consoled herself by saying that if the high things had not been thrust low and the hills shaken to dust:

"We had not been this splendor and our wrong
An everlasting music for the song
Of earth and heaven."

So the very wrong that was done these villages and towns, entirely swept away or mutilated by the enemy's bomb and shell, has come to praise their valor in lasting monument. They will be as landmarks in "Everyman's Land" that was once "No Man's Land."

The ziggurat which has been uncovered in Ur of the Chaldees has a memory of the day when "the earth was divided." Some of the monuments of a divided earth which stretch across France and Belgium should be kept as a reminder of the awful devastation that was, because the earth was once more divided. One of the towers that stood overlooking the peaceful valleys in Northern France, as the Tower of Babel dominated the plain of Shinar, was Coucy-le-Château. Its gigantic ruins should specially be left undisturbed and uninhabited with no other epitaph than one which is written over Thiepval and other villages and which will keep it forever on the world's field of honor.

A "DOLLAR STANDARD" FOR GERMANY.

The positive statement made by Dr. SCHACHT of the German Reichsbank to THE TIMES correspondent at Berlin puts at rest the question whether the German "gold bank," as contemplated under the Dawes plan, will be tied to the dollar standard of value or to the pound sterling. Official statements heretofore made had been somewhat ambiguous, and the public's view of the question had been confused by the fact that the existing gold bank, which in its present organization is recognized as an "interim expedient," was based avowedly on sterling values. The statement made by the Federal Reserve Board's Advisory Council a month ago was evidently prompted by doubt whether the new bank would not base its fiduciary operations and note issues similarly on a sterling valuation. The council said of the plan for that institution:

> It provides for a German note-issuing bank on a gold basis but leaves the door open on a sterling basis, and it cannot be denied that there is no small probability of the latter basis being chosen.
> The council's comment was that this possibility involved a "momentous alternative in the organization of the new note-issuing bank," and urged that the Federal Reserve use all its influence toward the selection of the dollar standard.

To people familiar with the actual purposes of the Dawes plan and of its gold bank provisions, this discussion has all along been somewhat perplexing. It was obvious that while the use of the sterling values for the new gold bank's currency would be practicable, it would not place the bank on a gold basis, for the simple reason that sterling exchange is itself depreciated 10 per cent. from gold parity. The reason why the interim gold bank selected the sterling basis has never been in doubt. It was necessary, in order to put the institution in shape for immediate work, that large advances should be made by the London market in the way of subscription to its capital.

The condition laid down for this prompt assistance was the use of sterling values in the bank's accounts, and they are stated in pounds sterling in its current reports. The plan of subscription to the new bank contemplated by the Dawes plan is of a different nature; it would probably necessitate subscription of funds from America as well as elsewhere. But in any case it was obvious that if the institution were to set itself clearly on the basis of gold values, it would necessarily have to issue its currency and prepare its accounts in dollar values—not because the dollar is the American currency, but because at present the dollar alone among the foreign exchanges represents gold.

It has been said by participants in the Dawes negotiation that some conflict of opinion on this point arose in the conferences at Berlin; the British delegates favoring the sterling basis in principle and the French delegates taking the same position—apparently through dislike to seeing the German currency stabilized at a positive gold value while the French currency was still heavily depreciated. However this may be, the statement of Dr. SCHACHT of the Reichsbank, in whose hands apparently rests the decision of the matter, appears to be decisive. "We propose," he says, as reported in the dispatch to THE TIMES, "to make "the gold mark our new unit, and "that would necessarily anchor the "currency to the dollar and not to "sterling, which is a varying gold "value." This is plain common sense; in particular, it disposes of the notion that the adherents of the American dollar are somehow claiming a privilege to which adherents of the pound sterling are equally entitled. As the Reichsbank President plainly states it, the question is not of the dollar standard versus the sterling standard, but of the gold standard as against a depreciated standard. Dr. SCHACHT's further remark that he has personally "failed to understand the "Federal Reserve Board's discussion "of the problem, because no such "problem exists," would seem to terminate the discussion.

THE BADGER ALNASCHAR.

"I wants to make your flesh creep," said the Fat Boy. That must be the purpose of the political fairy stories set afloat by the friends of Mr. LA FOLLETTE. His ticket is to run second in number of electoral votes! What is still more beautiful, "members of the La Follette group" deem it "within the bounds of probability "that the La Follette Presidential "ticket might poll more electoral "votes than either the Democratic "or the Republican ticket." O milkmaid of Madison! O Alnaschar of Washington! If the bounds of probability shouldn't be sufficiently elastic, the inspired mathematician sees the election thrown into the House, without result; the Vice President chosen by the Senate and installed in the White House. So he is very particular as to his "running mate." It is painful to notice that his falcon eye is not yet fixed upon our own LAGUARDIA.

More grins than flesh will creep on account of these dreams. Mr. LA FOLLETTE's political patrimony has hitherto been strictly limited. Wisconsin is always his. Minnesota may be. But the multiplication and the mystery of Farmer-Labor Parties, State and national, can be understood only by the adept. Give LA FOLLETTE the two Dakotas for good measure. Is it the complimentary vote of the Wisconsin delegation at Cleveland for NORRIS of Nebraska and BROOKHART of Iowa that is to turn those two Senators, who have lately protested their regular Republicanism, or the majority of the Republicans of those States, to LA FOLLETTE? In Montana and Washington he depends upon divagations of Senator WHEELER and Senator DILL. He seems to think that Democrats, who have agreed with him more or less in the Senate, must inevitably "follow his standard."

The Socialist National Convention will be held at Cleveland July 6. Mr. VICTOR BERGER has given notice that the Socialists won't follow a "personally conducted" or "independent" La Follette party. Aside from various little groups and associations, Mr. LA FOLLETTE's party has to please the great railroad unions, the Federation of Labor, the Northwestern farmers. Among his Wisconsin "progressive" policies, submitted at Cleveland, are a revision of the Versailles Treaty and "public referendums on peace and war." The Federation has voted against such referendums. Like the railroad brotherhoods, it accepted the treaty. Moreover, the unions have been as heartily in favor of the League of Nations as Mr. LA FOLLETTE has been against it. On immigration the Western Progressives in the Senate divided. Here, as on so many other questions, the interests of farmer and laborer clash. Mr. LA FOLLETTE wants "public ownership of railroads with "definite safeguards against bureaucratic control." "Government ownership and democratic operation" is still the Federation shibboleth. What interest have the farmers of the Northwest in increasing the power of the railroad, or any other, unions? Little Lafollettian pleasantries, like the proposed constitutional amendment empowering Congress to make effective a statute declared invalid by the Supreme Court, are more likely to frighten than to attract votes.

It is possible that in some great industrial States the La Follette party may hold the balance between Republican and Democratic candidates, but there is no reason to assume that it would hurt one more than the other. Nor is there any reason to believe that the eminent labor leaders who are always willing to take charge of things can control in any wholesale fashion the votes of the unions. Still it is a pleasure to see Mr. LA FOLLETTE, so long our most sombre raven, chirping as happily as a morning sparrow.

ESCAPING THE CITY'S SWELTER.

With the arrival at last of Summer weather, the appeal of the A. I. C. P. for funds for its outdoor relief work should meet with a ready response. Each Summer the association sends to Summer camps hundreds of persons of all ages who are in especial need of getting away from the blistering heat of the city and who have not the means to go by themselves. At Staten Island it has a camp by the seashore for children and mothers. In the Interstate Park it has a boys' camp, and at Saugerties a camp for girls. In North Germantown is its Summer home for old people. The work is limited only by the amount of money raised. For every dollar received a child or a grown-up can be given a day of peace and quiet in the country and a chance to obtain a little reserve of health and good spirits with which to carry on through the rest of the city year.

That all such work benefits the community as well as individuals is sometimes overlooked. The need of it cannot be questioned by any one who has been through the crowded sections of the city on a hot night. The chance to get away, even for a few days, is a veritable godsend. In furnishing this, such an organization as the A. I. C. P. strengthens the spirits as well as the bodies of those who are fortunate enough to be among the chosen to be sent out into the country, and in so doing makes them better citizens. In particular is this true of the children, who, except for such opportunities as this, grow up deprived of one of the principal birthrights of youth—familiarity with the country and with the freedom and adventures which it provides.

To those who visit or live in the country the appeal for these Summer camps should be particularly moving. Even a few dollars will give to the needy poor the opportunity to share the privilege of a country vacation. Checks should be made payable to GEORGE BLAGDEN and mailed to 105 East Twenty-second Street.

THE CHECK ON MOUNT EVEREST.

The British expedition to scale Mount Everest was having the worst of luck on May 26, when Lieut. Col. E. F. NORTON sent his latest dispatch. High had been the hopes that the mountain would be conquered by the end of May, for the party had arrived at the base camp a week earlier than in 1922. Before the advent of June in that year a record of 27,300 feet had been set. This year the last days of May found the adventurers driven back by the elements from Camp 4 at 23,000 feet. At that point the really serious work of climbing Everest begins. The Spring has been late in Tibet. On the night of May 22 there were 56 degrees of frost at an altitude of 21,000 feet. The previous day Camp 4 had been established on the old site, which "was buried deep "under the snows of two Winters "and two monsoons." But the weather turned so bad that HAZARD of the climbing party had to beat a retreat to Camp 3. Four of his twelve porters "lost their nerve" on the way down and returned to Camp 4. A rescue party led by MALLORY brought them down. "The third time we walk up East Rongbuk Glacier," said MALLORY in his story of the rescue, "will be the last, for better or worse." This was written at Camp 1, the base camp, to which the whole expedition had retreated in very poor physical shape.

How backward the siege of the mountain has been appears in Colonel NORTON's statement: "We advanced "for a second time to the attack on "May 17, the day originally planned "for the first assault on the summit." That assault was yet to be made when he sent his dispatch, and no time could be set for it. In fact, he admitted that "our only hope is "largely to modify our plan and "snatch a fleeting chance." This conclusion was forced upon him by signs that the dreaded monsoon was about to break earlier than usual. None of the mountaineers who have twice experienced Mount Everest in Summer weather can have much faith in a "fleeting chance" after the monsoon begins to rage. "It is, of course, the snowfall," says MALLORY, "which has chiefly affected the "mountaineering difficulties between "Camps 3 and 4"—unseasonable and therefore unexpected storms. Before this time, the middle of June, the monsoon with its blizzards generally comes.

If the expedition has failed again, it is through no fault of its own. It was better equipped than in 1922, and with more time for the ascent the odds against achievement seemed to be greatly reduced. But in May that uncertain factor, the weather, dashed hopes. Even if a spell of good climbing weather came, the siege would have to be short and sharp.

NUMBERS AND QUALITY.

Only a few years ago the kind of sentiment evoked by such striking figures of population increase as the National Bureau of Economic Research has just made public would have been in no doubt. The bureau finds that in the four years since the 1920 census the population of the continental United States has increased by 7,115,000, or an annual increase of nearly 1,780,000. From 1890 to 1920 the annual increment by census decades rose from 1,304,686 to 1,597,769 and dropped again to 1,418,100. If the rate for the last four years should be maintained up to 1930, we shall have added more than seventeen millions to our population in ten years. The showing for the last half year of 1923 was unprecedented; population growth was at the rate of more than two millions annually.

Formerly this marvelous growth in the nation's human resources would have been received with almost unanimous gratification. Today we distrust our ability to maintain population quality on a par with population quantity. Quantity is being stressed as in itself an index almost of a poorer breed. The eugenists have been active. So have the bold wanderers in the realm of racial speculation. So have the students of the famous army intelligence tests. Experts who have succeeded in dividing humanity into the desirable and the undesirable, and have ascertained that of the two the undesirables everywhere are breeding much more rapidly, will see in the Economic Bureau's figures only the proof of an accelerated national "degeneration."

Yet there is at least one bit of cheer in the story. The notable increase of last year was due, according to the bureau's experts, to two causes—a large immigration and a death rate as low as at any time in our history. In this conjuncture there is significance. Immigration has apparently not lowered the standard of living. One of the surest signs of a rising standard of living is a falling death rate. However imperfectly the immigrant elements may assimilate other phases of American culture, they would certainly seem to be making a brave try to maintain the habits upon which health and a low mortality rate intimately depend—cleanliness in body and housing, high food standards and parental care. The "undesirable" masses, whether immigrant or native, who are learning to keep their children alive in increasing numbers, would thus appear to be acquiring such desirable qualities as responsibility, forethought and intelligence.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Yesterday were published the British trade figures. They show a doubling of imports compared with 1913, to a new maximum, and an increase of exports by half. French foreign trade for four months shows a favorable balance of 1,483,372,000 francs. Italy's economic situation is known to be improving. German foreign commerce is hand to mouth, waiting for the solution of the reparations question, which is thought approaching. Russia's situation is bad enough, owing to something like economic suicide. Russian agricultural competition does not threaten our farmers this year. All told, there are facts enough to warrant the Commissioner of the United States to the International Chamber at Paris in saying that "the European "peoples have been at work while "their diplomatic representatives "have been talking."

It appears that the foreign trade of the United States for the fiscal year closing this month will show an increase of $600,000,000, with a balance in our favor of $794,000,000. Imports have decreased $200,000,000. Foreign buyers are taking our goods instead of our gold, and we will humor their preference so long as banking sanity saves us from price inflation. The economic foundations are strengthening markedly.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Scattered Days Don't Make a Fortnight.

Cynics will note with amusement—and probably be quite wrong, as cynics usually are—that HENRY FORD again has managed to get his business methods and incidentally his cars on the first pages of the newspapers, and that without paying a cent for "space." He hardly could have had that as an ulterior motive when he decided to have his office forces put on a week of five working days, as his factory hands have been for some time. Possibly he realized that this would be "news," and be so treated, but he was under no obligation to keep the innovation secret, and couldn't have done so if he had tried.

What the members of the office forces think of the change has not yet been revealed, but perhaps that information will come later. Presumably they, like any other toilers except those much admired, but largely imaginary, persons who "love their work," will be content to have two days of leisure a week instead of one. In this case, however, the boon is not gratuitous. Boons rarely are. The free Saturdays are to take the place of the fortnight vacations with pay that they hitherto have had, and it is doubtful if anybody will think them an adequate substitute. What one can do, and where one can go, in one day, or even in two, are different and less things than are among the possibilities of an uninterrupted two weeks.

Then the beneficiaries—or victims—of the new system will note, with a sadness verging on sorrow, that after fourteen Saturdays, equaling the old vacations, salaries will be readjusted, for the rest of the year, to a five-day basis—in other words, cut down a sixth from what they have been.

So viewed, the new plan is simply a reduction of pay, and it may not be wholly unrelated to the stories now current as to the state of the automobile business.

His Protest Does Have Reason.

Fairly well justified impatience is expressed by Commissioner ENRIGHT in answering the people who are finding fault with him and his men for not preventing the banditry which seems to have become a regular and carefully organized profession here as in other parts of the country. Nobody, he says, blames the firemen when fires occur; they only are expected to do their best to put them out, and they are praised for their successes, while their failures are excused as being merely failures to accomplish the impossible. It is not demanded, he continues, that the Street Cleaning Department prevent heavy snowfalls in Winter, or the Board of Health prevent epidemics of infantile paralysis or influenza.

These analogies are not quite perfect, for in at least two of the three some obligation to prevent does exist, and in both that obligation, from the public's standpoint, is growing, not decreasing. But the Commissioner is right in declaring that it is beyond his power to foresee when and where one man or several will attack the driver of a truck loaded with valuable property and drive away with it, and that he cannot know which of many bearers of payroll money will be held up and robbed.

Of necessity, the chief part of the Commissioner's duty, though not quite the whole of it, is to capture the doers of these evil deeds. Even that is hard enough, with only an admittedly inadequate force at his command for the covering of this enormous city, and his critics might have difficulty in proving that anybody else would be more fortunate than he is in catching these particularly evasive villains. They come out of a deep obscurity and plunge back into it, and yet some of them are killed and more are captured.

We always hear of the captures, however, and of the more sensational failures, but of the minor failures a good many escape notice, for, now as always, the police try to persuade the victims of robbery to say nothing about it except to the detectives. The latter claim that silence helps them, but how it does is not nearly as understandable as that it is that silence covers their defeats.

He Should Have More Help.

There is a way in which the Police Commissioner can do something more, and even much more, in the prevention of hold-ups. He can preach, constantly and emphatically, that the owners of valuable property in portable form should guard it more carefully than they do. He has told them again and again that on notification of treasures to be carried through the streets he will have men on hand to look after them.

They can take other precautions that he has suggested—precautions easy for them, but impossible for him. They can avoid the following of routine as to streets and days in the transfer of their treasures, and they can investigate thoroughly the habits and character of those whom they trust. They can rely less on insurance and more on the exercise of reasonable caution in a wicked world.

In some countries the man whose house or shop burns down is held convicted of carelessness and fined; possibly a like responsibility could be laid on the man who sends a girl to the bank for his payroll money, and on him who puts only unarmed men on a load of silk.

He Tells 'Em to Look Near Home.

Utilizing anew his familiar power of giving pain to his fellow-countrymen, GEORGE BERNARD SHAW jeers at them now for expressing horror when a steer's leg is broken in a "rodeo" at Wembley, though they have never a qualm over the hunting of foxes and stags.

As a matter of fact there are Englishmen who have been protesting for years over the cruelty of those ancient sports, and they doubtless are among the people who have been shocked by what seems to them the roughness of our real or pretended cowboys in handling cattle.

That the roped steer suffers much is questionable. Certainly he does not like to have his neck twisted or to be thrown to the ground with no regard whatever for his feelings. Also certain is it that he does not suffer anything like as much as does the fox torn to pieces by dogs after a heart-breaking chase over many fields, and the chase of the carted stag is for sensitive observers a spectacle as sorry as anything that happens in a rodeo.

It is the latter, however, that excites antagonism in England. It is new, not justified by old custom.

Mark Twain's Compromise.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mayor Hylan's boasted triumph over the opponents of his plan for an art centre in Central Park, referred to in your editorial this morning, reminds one of Mark Twain's account of the compromise he made with his wife. She, he tells us, wanted the house painted, and he didn't. So, after a prolonged and acrimonious discussion, they finally agreed to compromise the matter—by having the house painted.

THE DOVES IN MADISON SQUARE

O tiny scarlet feet that trip so fast
Where casual crumbs are cast
From casual passers-by—
O bright, unearthly eyes! Remember you
The turquoise Grecian skies,
And Venus' marble fane, that once you knew?

Here are no worshipers
Of Beauty, save perchance a constant few
Who hide their faith, as martyrs used to do,
And feign to bow before the Calf of Gold—
Selling their real selves where all is bought and sold.

You crowd and flutter to my outstretched hand
In timid agitation: food is here,
But ah, to gain it you must conquer Fear—
Must dare the Unknown, at appetite's command;
Better the clipped wing than the crop unfed;
And I, who scatter crumbs, can understand—
I, too, O doves, risk liberty for bread.

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

INDUSTRIAL PREPAREDNESS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Cleveland platform provides "that in time of war the nation should draft for its defense not only its citizens but also every resource which may contribute to its success."

So far as the writer knows, the first suggestion that in another war dollars as well as men should be conscripted is to be found in the final report of the Chairman of the War Industries Board made to the President soon after the armistice. Mr. Baruch's words that "in a similar emergency there ought to be not alone a mobilization of man power but of things and dollars" did not receive much attention in the emotional reaction of the war's end.

In a historical study of the commanding and decisive power of American industrial forces in the World War, published by the writer in May, 1923, entitled "Industrial America in the World War," the following appears:

> Nothing undermines the will to war so rapidly as the popular conviction of widespread profiteering and exploitation. In learning how to prepare for industrial mobilization for another great war, our military authorities and Congress should not overlook the fact that the selective draft of industry is the logical twin of the selective draft of men. In the next war all industry—the whole economic life of the nation—as well as human life should be conscripted.

At a dinner in Washington in 1921 of the War Industries Board organization, Secretary of War Weeks spoke briefly on the idea, emphasizing chiefly the need of conscripting labor.

The idea was publicly advanced by President Harding.

A number of bills to this end were introduced in Congress. One of the first, if the writer's memory serves, was introduced by Representative McSwain of South Carolina, who served overseas, and there was another sponsored by Representative Royal Johnson. These and similar stirrings of thought finally crystallized in an organized campaign for legislation on the subject by The Christian Science Monitor.

Such measures are, of course, directed against graft in war-making. But they are not enough. There remains profiteering, which is by no means always synonymous with graft.

Modern war is seven-eighths industrial. Soldiers can be improvised, relatively speaking, but huge industrial war dispositions and conversions cannot be, without waste staggering in its proportions and consequent profiteering.

The only cure is a scientific industrial preparedness. It can be had for less than the peace-time annual upkeep of a regiment of cavalry. The writer, seeking official funds, so stated to at least two different sets of Congressional appropriation committees on several occasions after the armistice, and had the figures to prove it.

Industrial preparedness holds no romance. It would pay for itself over and over again by its peace-time benefits to industry, but the people even now do not understand war save in terms of troops and waving flags. That is one reason why we are now paying so heavily for our war-making.

It is unintelligent to blame political parties for unpreparedness. It is the people themselves who have always been responsible. Always believing that we shall have no wars, we have gone on having them without preparation. For years we said that we should never need to fight overseas. Even now it is being said again to applauding audiences, and scarce five years have passed since we had two million fighting men in Europe!

With regard to industrial preparedness a reasonable amount of sound argument by those in authority would help, if such argument be made articulate to the ear of the nation. Adequate industrial preparedness—the organized, synchronized economic power that makes irresistible the cutting edge of the sword—would have saved us possibly $5,000,000,000 in the last war.

MURDER ON THE HIGHWAYS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Second degree murder is the proper term to use in connection with 95 per cent. of the fatal motor accidents. I am dumfounded by the inability of the authorities to analyze the very dangerous conditions existing on our streets. There has been talk and lots of it, parades and suggestions to the public on how to exercise care in daring to step off the sidewalk, and let me say one needs a gun in his hand to get any consideration from drivers of anything on wheels. If the driver could be hurt equally with the one he hits how few "accidents" there would be.

Let the driver of a ten-ton truck come to a railroad crossing and see an engine approaching. Will he blow his whistle frantically and so on? No, he will pull up and let the train go by. He himself might get hurt if he disregarded the heavier vehicle, but when the large truck comes across the light truck what does he do? Why he shrieks his whistle or horn, which says: "You get out of the way or get smashed up," so the light truck pulls up, as its driver fears for his own safety. Now, when that same light truck driver comes across a passenger car at a crossing he blows wildly "Get out of the way or get jammed up." The same passenger car driver has no respect for anything lighter than the car he is driving. Each one threatens the other and they all threaten the public.

This utter disregard for the safety of lives of others is nothing short of murder.

The pedestrian should be protected by the driver whether he is crossing in the middle of the block or not. Of course people would not be expected to wade out in a thickly congested district, such as Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, without police direction.

It is not in such places as Forty-second Street that many accidents occur, although traffic here is thickest; the reason for this is that there are policemen around and the drivers are tame. The so-called accident happens on the side streets and wherever the driver can go about twenty-five miles an hour over crossings and about fifteen around corners and where there are not men in blue watching him.

Let me suggest doing away with horns and whistles or toning them down very low—when loud they aid and abet crime. Also eliminate the front bumpers, for they are there solely to protect the radiator and headlights of the car of the careless driver who runs too close and takes unnecessary chances, feeling that he is protected. Then give the roughneck and the fully insured driver who covers himself so he can do as he pleases the full penalty of the law.

SUBMITS FARE RISE TO TRANSIT BOARD

Court Says Unless Relief Is Granted in Queens He Will Order Service Stopped.

ALLOWS TEN DAYS TO ACT

Trolley Company Asks Service-at-Cost Rate Until Equitable Fare Is Fixed.

Following a declaration by Justice Joseph Aspinall in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday that unless the Transit Commission provides relief for the New York & Queens Railway Company's trolley system by June 26 he would decree the discontinuance of operation and the dissolution of the company, General Lincoln C. Andrews, receiver for the property, filed with the Transit Commission an application for increased fares on all the company's lines in Queens. The petition is upon the calendar of the commission for consideration at its weekly meeting today.

This latest move in the efforts to maintain service for the 40,000 Queens residents who use the lines apparently shifts from the Mayor and the Board of Estimate to the shoulders of the State Transit Commission the burden of responsibility for either sanctioning a fare in excess of 5 cents or accepting the alternative of a wrecked service. It is the contention of some lawyers that where franchises granted prior to 1875 are involved, the Transit Commission retains power to determine rates of fare.

No Specific Rise Asked.

General Andrews's petition names no specific sum for a future fare. The application is general in character. It asks that the Transit Commission authorize immediately a service-at-cost rate and that it determine later what an equitable fare shall be. Emphasizing the need of immediate relief, the petition relates the history of the hearings in the Queens Supreme Court and cites Justice Aspinall's declaration that he will permit the corporation to go out of business in ten days unless relief be afforded.

The petition states that General Andrews has operated at a loss and has managed to continue operation "with the greatest difficulty." Gross revenue from the beginning of the receivership, Jan. 18, 1923, to Jan. 31, 1924, was $705,933.62, while operating expenses were $735,241, a deficit of $26,308.71, with no reservation for surplus and no provision for renewals, replacements or for city paving.

Reconstruction and rehabilitation of certain portions of the line are necessary for continued safe operation, says General Andrews's petition, the cost of which will be at least $155,480; for next year at least $100,000 should be spent for this purpose.

"The only source," says the petition, "from which an increase in revenue can be had for the continuance of operation of this railroad is an increase in fare. There is no other forum from which complainant can obtain relief, and unless this application is granted, complainant will of necessity be compelled to discontinue the operation of the railroad."

As the needed increase is not in any sense to yield a return upon the property, General Andrews contends, no valuation of the property will be required.

Faced $700,000 Paving Claim.

Justice Aspinall's decision yesterday followed an application made by counsel for General Andrews. The company sought permission from the Court to have its franchise revoked, declaring that operating expenses were far in excess of receipts.

Borough President Connolly and Vincent Victory, an Assistant Corporation Counsel, argued against the revocation of the franchise. Mr. Victory said the Executive Committee of the Board of Estimate had approved a proposal for the city to take over the road and run it. Justice Aspinall declared he would not listen to such a proposition, because that could not be done legally and he would repudiate it.

One of the items which puts the receiver in an admittedly embarrassing financial condition is a claim which the city has against the company of $200,000 for paving charges. Borough President Connolly said that if it would assure continued operation of the lines, the city would be willing to waive its claim for paving charges. Colonel William N. Dykeman, representing the receiver, explained that, even if the company did not have to pay paving charges, the road would still be operated at a deficit.

Colonel Dykeman contended that the Transit Commission had the power to increase fares. An increase, he maintained, would be the only solution to the problem.

"I am going to take this situation in hand right now," said Justice Aspinall. "I am firmly convinced that if the proposition were put to a vote, fully 90 per cent. of the 35,000 or 40,000 patrons of this line would vote for a fare increase rather than see the road go out of business. If the Transit Commission does not grant relief by June 26 I will then direct that this road be abandoned."

NEW COURT HOUSE OPENED.

The new Morrisania Court House, at 161st Street and Washington Avenue, the Bronx, was formally opened yesterday. Chief Magistrate William McAdoo presided at the dedication exercises, which were held in the Traffic Court room on the upper floor.

Borough President Henry Bruckner of the Bronx, District Attorney John E. McGeehan, Magistrate William Sweetser and Albert Vitale, the Rev. William Kephart, Chaplain of the 258th Coast Artillery, and Mgr. Joseph Rommel, pastor of the Church of St. Anthony of Padua, were among those who spoke.

The new building cost $320,000. There are three floors. On the first is the regular Magistrate's Court, on the second the Traffic Court.

NEW PAPER OUT THURSDAY.

Announcement Says The Bulletin Will Be Solidly Democratic.

The New York Evening Bulletin, a new Democratic daily newspaper, will make its appearance on Thursday, according to an announcement yesterday by Frederick W. Enwright, owner and publisher, who said:

> "The Bulletin, in politics, will be solidly Democratic, for today the Democratic Party is the political organization of the plain people."

The latest addition to the metropolitan dailies will be published at 350-358 West Thirty-first Street in a new, modern plant.

Mr. Enwright also is owner and publisher of The Boston Telegram and The News-Telegram of Lynn, Mass.

Calve Portrait to Be Sold.

A life-size portrait of Emma Calvé, opera singer, painted by Benjamin Constant is to be offered for sale at public auction next week. It was painted in 1898 and has been in storage here. Mme. Calvé is portrayed standing against a background of dull-toned hangings, wearing a trailing robe of richest deep red, with sleeves of stiff bronze-gold brocade. The picture will be offered at a sale commencing next Monday at the Plaza Art Rooms.

ASHES OF THE CZAR SAID TO BE IN FRANCE

SAYS DE GIERS TOOK THEM

And That Remains of Nicholas II. and His Murdered Family Are in Care of Relatives.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—The statement by General Janin, former head of the French mission to Siberia, that in 1920 he brought to France the ashes of Czar Nicholas and his family has aroused feverish interest among the many thousands of Russian refugees in Paris. It is understood that the Grand Duke Nicholas is guarding them against the day when they may be placed in a monument on Russian soil.

While much of the recital of General Janin, published by the Matin, was already known, he throws an interesting light upon the tragedy in his assertion that on several occasions prior to his murder the German General Staff could have saved the Czar.

General Janin says he brought the ashes of the imperial family from Russia to France in a valise from Harbin, where they were confided to him by General Diederichs and M. Gilliard, tutor of the Czarevitch, and at the direction of Grand Duke Nicholas he entrusted the ashes to M. de Giers, former Russian Ambassador to Rome, at Troncha, near Grenoble, Oct. 16, 1920.

While this valise contains the ashes of those killed at Ekaterinberg, General Janin says that at Alapavesk, twelve miles to the north, were killed other princes and princesses, among them the Grand Duchess Elizabeth, the Grand Duke Serge Michailovitch and two sons of the Grand Duke Constantine, Igor and Dmitri. With the exception of the body of the Grand Duke Serge, which was sent to Belgrade, these bodies, through the intervention of the General, were buried in Peking.

In the second instalment of his statement, to be published tomorrow, General Janin, who was in Russia on the day of the Bolshevist coup d'état, tells of meeting the Czar and Gilliard at imperial headquarters, after which he started on his military mission to Siberia. It was only when he reached Omsk in November, 1918, that he learned of the fate of the imperial family. Going to Ekaterinberg, he again met Gilliard and Judge Sokoloff, who had been charged by Admiral Kolchak to investigate the death of the Emperor. He found Sokoloff wrapped up in the idea that the German General Staff could have prevented the murder of the Czar.

General Janin quotes Sokoloff as saying that he had proofs that the Germans refused to help the Czar after he refused to approve the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk. Some of the documents bearing on this subject, the General says, were in three valises which he took from Sokoloff to the Grand Duke Nicholas.

According to General Janin's account, the valises containing the ashes of the Czar and his family was taken by Sokoloff to Chita, from where, when General Semenoff appeared to be in danger, the valise was taken to Harbin. There Sokoloff made an effort to have the British take charge of the remains, but the Government's reply to a message from the English General Knox was too long delayed.

General Janin says that the revolutionary agitation having reached Harbin in March, 1920, he offered to take charge of the valises, and on the 20th of the month the valises containing the documents were given to him, and the next day Sokoloff and Diederichs took from a bank vault in Harbin the ashes and other remains, including a finger. The General tells how he watched night and day over his charge until on May 9, when sailing from Shanghai, he confided the valises to the captain of the ship.

On his arrival at Marseilles on July 15 he failed to find a messenger from the Grand Duke Nicholas, as he had expected to do, and so took the four valises to his home in Grenoble. In Paris soon afterward he received an oral order to hand the valises over to M. de Giers.

A strange delay appears to have followed the request for a written authorization from the Grand Duke Nicholas, and meanwhile General Janin received a letter from Sokoloff asking that the valises be turned over to General Wrangel, who was then fighting his campaign in South Russia. But after Wrangel's fall Nicholas authorized the transfer of the valises to de Giers.

General Janin says that the French Foreign Office at one stage offered to care for the remains, but the members of the imperial family expressed fear of "the dispositions of future Governments."

The General makes no statement as to the present whereabouts of the valises except to say that they are well guarded by the relatives of Nicholas II.

"Sokoloff," he concludes, "was convinced of the responsibility of Germany for the assassination. Von Mirbach, the German Ambassador to Moscow, was certainly in touch with the Czar. It is possible that the Czar was on his way to see a German emissary when he was arrested at Ekaterinberg by the local Soviet, disturbed by the manoeuvres of von Mirbach. It is of record that at this point the Empress said to the Czar: 'Die rather than owe anything to the Germans.' In the form of a Red Cross organization German emissaries were close to the Czar when he was killed. When he refused to yield to their demands the Germans abandoned Nicholas II. to his death. Sokoloff found among the débris German books and newspapers. Some say they belonged to the Lettish soldiers. I myself saw on the walls of the bloody Maison Ipapiaff verses by Heine."

PLAY TO AID DUG OUT.

"Tracked in His Treachery" to Be Presented Friday Night.

A play entitled "Tracked in His Treachery" will be given under the direction of Mrs. James S. Larkin at the Matinecock Neighborhood House, Locust Valley, on Friday for the benefit of the Dug Out, the club for disabled ex-service men at 18 East Fifty-eighth Street.

CAPT. WARREN WED DEC. 23.

The marriage of Captain Arthur L. Warren, aide-de-camp to Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, and Miss Anne Madeline Penn of Hyde Park, Cincinnati, has been announced. The ceremony took place Dec. 23, 1923, at the Immanuel Baptist Church in Chicago. The couple became engaged last Autumn and were married while Captain Warren was in Chicago on Christmas leave. The wedding was kept secret, as the bride, who has just been graduated from the University of Chicago, did not want her marriage to interfere with her college work.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Julius G. Penn of Cincinnati, and a cousin of Colonel Julius A. Penn, who is stationed at Governors Island. Captain Warren, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Warren of Berkeley, Cal., is a graduate of the University of California, and during the war he served in France with the Eighth Division on the staff of Brig. Gen. Alfred A. Starbird. In 1920 he was aide-de-camp to Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder at Havana, Cuba. At present he and his bride are in Washington, D. C., but will return shortly to make their home on Governors Island.

MRS. BOLTON IS ENGAGED.

She Will Be Married to Harold Fitz Gerald of This City.

The engagement was announced yesterday of Mrs. Helen Johnson Bolton, widow of Harlan K. Bolton of Lake Forest, Ill., and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Otis Johnson of Washington, D. C., to Harold Fitz Gerald of 127 East Fifty-sixth Street. Mrs. Bolton had a house at Southampton last Summer and spent part of the Winter at Palm Beach. Mr. Fitz Gerald is a widower. His wife, who died several years ago, was Miss Eleanor Fitzgerald, daughter of the late General and Mrs. Louis Fitzgerald of New York.

He has a daughter, Miss Eleanor Fitz Gerald, who was graduated this year from Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn., and who will be introduced to society next year, and also a young son, Desmond Fitz Gerald, who is at St. Mark's School. Mr. Fitz Gerald is a brother of Mrs. Charles A. Van Rensselaer of this city and Jericho, L. I. He served in the army during the World War, and is a member of the Union, Racquet and Tennis, Piping Rock, Down Town, Knickerbocker, Rumson Country and Harvard Clubs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Foster to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Deming Davis, of Lakewood, N. J., have announced the engagement of their sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Bowen Foster of 319 Lexington Avenue, to Frederick Denike Gwyer of Philadelphia. Mrs. Foster is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elliot Bowen, of Plainfield, N. J., and a granddaughter of the late Henry Chandler Bowen of Brooklyn. Mrs. Foster is sailing on Saturday, with her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Foster, for a visit of several months.

Miss Carol Grimmell Betrothed.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lawrence Grimmell of Pittsburgh, Pa., have announced the engagement of their sister, Miss Carol Margaret Grimmell, of this city, to Everett Willis Du Vall. Miss Grimmell is the director of girls' and women's work in the Madison Avenue Church, and Mr. Du Vall is also engaged in social service work in this city. The wedding will take place on June 28 in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Miss Douglass to Wed June 28.

Miss Faith Douglass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson L. Douglass of 383 Park Avenue, will be married on June 28 to André Metzanoff of the Hotel Plaza, in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, the Rev. Cranston Brenton officiating. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at Sherry's, and immediately afterward the young couple will sail for Europe for a three months' wedding trip.

Captain H. J. M. Howard to Wed.

LONDON, June 16.—The engagement of Captain H. J. M. Howard, son of the late Henry Howard of New York, and Violet Evelyn, daughter of Major Gen. Sir Frederick Landon, has been announced here.

3 BALLOONS DOWN IN BENNETT RACE

AMERICAN "GOODYEAR" IS UP

BRUSSELS, June 16 (Associated Press.)—Up to midnight safety and sanity seem to be marking the balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett Cup. Three landings have been reported. Captain H. E. Honeywell, piloting the American Uncle Sam, came down near Rouen; the Italian pilot, Major Joseph Valle, in command of the Crampino, reached Fecamp, while the British Banshee III., Major Baldwin, came to the ground at Auboue, near Briey, in the Meurthe-et-Moselle Department, about 6 o'clock tonight.

A rough estimate of the distances made by the Aero Club gives the Banshee III. 130 miles, the Crampino 162, the Uncle Sam 181 and the British Margaret (sigted) 187.

The Aero Club received a message from Rouen tonight from Captain Honeywell, reading:

"Landed nearly eight miles south of Rouen at 3 P. M., owing to proximity of sea."

The American entry, Goodyear, was at an altitude of 1,000 meters when she was reported as passing over Limmerle, which is about seventy miles from Brussels, at 9:10 A. M. today.

Messages from the Prince Leopold (Belgium), received by carrier pigeon, reported that the night was foggy and progress slow, the balloon moving in a zigzag direction.

Most of the seventeen bags which took off from Solbosch Plain yesterday had not been heard from. They were supposed to report to the Belgian Aero Club, Atmospheric conditions were not very favorable and the balloons that were seen aloft were floating lazily over Western European land.

After twenty-four hours in the air none of the balloons reported had traveled as far as every balloon which escaped the lightning in last year's contest had covered in two hours, and as conditions stand there is no likelihood of a broken record. It now becomes a test of endurance and ability to remain aloft and take advantage of every whiff of June wind.

Lieutenant Labrousse of Belgium, in the balloon Ville de Bruxelles, sent a message timed at 10:50 A. M., saying: "We are above Soissons; wind very feeble; direction variable; all well aboard. Holding well."

Two messages have been received by carrier pigeon from the Belgian balloon Prince Leopold, which passed over a small section of Holland and then sailed over Germany. Later it proceeded direct southwest and was over St. Vicie at 12:30.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 16.—Though the result of the experiment will not be known until some of the Gordon Bennett balloon racers are heard from, attempts to communicate with them by radio were made last night from the Springfield broadcasting station of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, WBZ, and were renewed tonight. Because none of the racing balloons has transmitting apparatus, the attempt is limited to an effort to send messages that shall be received by the receiving apparatus carried by some of them. It is understood that the three American balloons are so equipped.

Beginning at 8:08 A. M., Daylight Saving Time, and continuing for half an hour, messages were sent out. The messages included a ten-minute address by Vice President Adams of the Aero Squadron of America, and several telegrams, including one from Commander Lansdowne of the dirigible Shenandoah and one from Mrs. Peek to her husband, Major Peek of the S-12, one of the American balloons.

Messages were broadcast from Station WBZ between 9 and 10:30 o'clock last night.

WAR RECORD SAVES DRIVER.

Sentence for Manslaughter Suspended—License Bureau Attacked.

Judge Gibbs yesterday in the Bronx County Court severely criticized the State Automobile License Bureau for granting a license to John Garrone, 36 years old, of 616 East 180th Street, who had been crippled while serving with the A. E. F. Garrone had just pleaded guilty to second degree manslaughter in connection with the killing of 6-year-old Katherine Veit with his automobile on May 29.

In suspending sentence the Court said: "If you had been in proper condition, Garrone, this accident would never have occurred. This case is another example of the loose methods applied in New York in issuing licenses indiscriminately to drive automobiles. Even a casual physical examination would have disclosed your disability, and you never would have received a license. There are today hundreds of others in your condition—and even worse—driving autos through the city. As a result people are being maimed and killed in the streets daily."

Garrone, while driving a car in congested traffic over the City Island bridge, stepped on the gas instead of the brake and lost control of the automobile. The car mounted the foot passage on the side of the bridge, tore away a section of railing and knocked down the little girl, her parents and two other little girls, who were returning from an outing to their home, 489 East Eighty-fourth Street, Manhattan. Katherine died the next day. Judge Gibbs revoked Garrone's license.

Dinner for Senator Twomey.

State Senator Jeremiah F. Twomey was guest at a dinner given by more than 600 of his constituents and admirers last night at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum. Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn, who made the principal address, appealed to those present to show the out-of-town visitors to the Democratic Convention that New York City was a home of generous and open-handed people. Both Borough President Riegelmann and State Senator William J. Love, who followed him, endorsed Governor Alfred E. Smith for the Presidential nomination.

PLOT TO ESCAPE SEEN IN A CUT BAR IN TOMBS

Detectives Watched Outside the Prison All Day Sunday, but Nothing Happened.

The presence of a dozen detectives on guard outside the Tombs all day Sunday led to the disclosure yesterday that on Friday Warden Hanley had discovered a jail-delivery plot, evidently conceived by a dozen or more hold-up men and burglars quartered in cells on the fourth tier. The Warden, on receiving information of the plot, immediately obtained additional guards from other prisons through Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Correction, and made a cell-to-cell search.

On the Franklin Street side of the fourth tier, where many of the hold-up men and burglars were kept, the Warden found that one bar in a window of the exercise corridor had been cut almost through in two places, about eighteen inches apart, sufficient to have permitted the prisoners to have squeezed through to another corridor running along the Franklin Street wall of the building.

When further investigation revealed that no other windows of the prison had been tampered with, Warden Hanley declared that the plot for the jail delivery was "stupid." He said it would not have been possible for the plotters to have made further progress without severing the bars of a window overlooking the south yard of the prison and dropping four stories, or without cutting the bars of a steel gate on each end of the second corridor, where they would have been confronted by armed guards.

Commissioner Wallis arranged to have detectives stationed around the Tombs all day Sunday. No automobiles parked in the vicinity of the prison, however, and it was the belief of the prison officials that the conspirators by some way had sent word to the outsiders that the plot had been discovered.

LOSES HIS DIAMOND BELT.

Benny Leonard's Ring Trophy Is Stolen From Shop Window.

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, lost his championship belt yesterday when a thief cut a hole in the show window of Leonard's sister's shop, at 1,636 Broadway, and fished out the prize. Leonard valued the diamond-studded belt at far more than its intrinsic worth of $2,500, because he had had to knock out three titleholders to win it.

"I'd have got a kick out of it when I got old," said Benny sorrowfully. "It'd be something I could've handed down to my kid if I was ever lucky enough to have one. But I don't suppose I'll ever see it again. The thief will break it up and sell the diamonds and the gold."

Leonard had lent the belt to his sister, Miss Syd Leonard, who recently opened a lingerie shop in the Winter Garden Building, Fifty-first Street, to help her advertise her business.

DANCE WEEK OPENS.

A PARTICULAR KIND OF CAR
◇ FOR PARTICULAR PEOPLE ◇

Ask any Wills Sainte Claire owner why he is so uncompromisingly "sold" on his car, and in every instance he will tell you, in substance, THIS:

"Because I can do things with it that I was never able to do with any other car.

"Because driving it is not the slightest exertion.

"Because it handles as easy as the smallest car and has all the road comfort of the biggest.

"Because I never have any serious mechanical trouble—it is practically never in a repair shop; and when it does need minor mechanical attention, it is back on duty in no time."

Then he will go on to tell you about how easy it is to get at—how the valves and cams are right on top where they can be got at instantly. He will make a point of the outstanding fact that the Wills Sainte Claire motor is exceedingly simple and accessible. And he will conclude by telling you that he has about forgotten what a repair bill looks like.

Of course, these words of praise are merely the echo of Wills Sainte Claire advanced engineering.

Molybdenum, the most athletic of all alloy steels, is the basis of Wills Sainte Claire construction. This makes the car lighter and more alert, and consequently more delightful to handle. Incidentally, it explains why the car is so seldom in a repair shop.

The Wills Sainte Claire sixty degree, eight cylinder, aviation type engine probably develops more power in proportion to car weight than any engine ever known. Consequently the Wills Sainte Claire owner gets the jump on other cars in traffic and forgets there is such a thing as a hill.

Balloon tires, balanced like the flywheel of a watch, combine with Wills Sainte Claire hydraulic four-wheel brakes to give a most unusual feeling of absolute security and safety—skidding in a Wills Sainte Claire is practically impossible.

Finally, no man can resist the temptation to make his family happy, and a Wills Sainte Claire family is notably a care-free family—a proud group of happy possessors.

They swear by their car. They like the keen, covert looks of admiration they see shot at them from the crowded sidewalks and from the windows of other cars—the quick ejaculation "Look! Another Wills Sainte Claire!"

You can't understand Wills Sainte Claire's firm grip on its owners till you first understand the car itself.

Learn this most discussed car—FIRST HAND.

ROCKEFELLER GIVES HARVARD $500,000

Gift by John D. Jr. Will Be Applied to Fund Being Raised for Fogg Art Museum.

COMMITTEE TELLS PLANS

TO SEEK NEW PIGMENT

Many Modern Paints, Says Announcement, Do Not Stand Test of Time.

A gift of $500,000 has been made by John D. Rockefeller Jr. to the division of fine arts of Harvard University to be applied to the fund of $2,000,000 being raised for the erection and endowment of the new Fogg Art Museum at the university. Announcement of the gift was made last night by Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts, Chairman of the committee in charge of raising $10,000,000 for the extension of the divisions of business administration, fine arts and chemistry of the university.

Mr. Rockefeller's gift brings the total to about $8,725,000. Of this sum $5,000,000 was given outright by George F. Baker for the permanent endowment of the Graduate School of Business Administration. The present gift of $500,000 is the second to be made to Harvard by the Rockefellers in connection with the campaign. On May 29 announcement was made of a gift of $500,000 to the chemistry department by the General Education Board, founded by John D. Rockefeller.

The plan of the Harvard committee is to subdivide the $10,000,000 into $5,000,000 for the school of business administration; $3,000,000 for the chemistry department and $2,000,000 for the division of fine arts. Mr. Baker's gift takes care of the school of business administration.

Tribute to Dr. Eliot.

Of the $3,000,000 apportioned to the chemistry department, $2,080,000 is now in hand. Last year Edward Mallinckrodt of St. Louis gave $500,000 for the erection of a chemical laboratory. Mr. Mallinckrodt is a chemical manufacturer and his son was in the class of 1900. For the division of fine arts $1,445,000 of the $2,000,000 has now been raised.

In a letter to Bishop Lawrence Mr. Rockefeller said that the gift was made because of his high appreciation of the distinguished service of President Emeritus Charles William Eliot, whose nineteth birthday was recently celebrated.

In its appeal for funds for extending the work of the Fogg Art Museum, Harvard University defined the purposes of the division of fine arts as follows:

"1. The training of a limited number of men in the fine arts professionally—that is, to serve as curators and directors of museums and as connoisseurs and teachers of the fine arts.

"2. The education of a large number of men in the appreciation of the fine arts by the development of their critical faculties.

"3. Original research work in the preservation of art treasures and in the exploration of ancient civilizations noted for their achievements in the arts."

New Type of Philanthropy.

This gift and that of $1,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller Jr. for the restoration of Rheims Cathedral represent a new type of philanthropy for the Rockefellers. Hitherto their gifts have been for the most part of a more distinctly utilitarian character, chiefly for research in medicine, for campaigns against disease, for charities and for general education.

In giving to the Fogg Art Museum, John D. Rockefeller Jr. is entering the field of archaeology as well as the fine arts. One of the objects of the museum is to carry on extensive digging expeditions in ancient Greek and other centres. One of the Fogg expeditions, for instance, has been excavating with important results at Colophon in Asia Minor and will continue its researches there. Another expedition in search of ancient treasures of art has been sent by the Fogg Museum to China. In its appeal for funds to carry on the work in the fine arts the committee says:

"The importance of training men to serve as curators and directors of museums arises from the constantly growing number of art museums in this country, of which there are at the present time more than fifty. Furthermore, the need for properly trained museum custodians is rendered acute by the extensive importations of European art treasures in recent years. America has become one of the great storehouses of the art relics of the past.

To Seek New Pigments.

"In research to obtain methods for the preservation of art, the Harvard Division of Fine Arts has taken a leading part, particularly in the field of the chemistry of paintings. Many of the modern pigments will not stand the test of time, while either the inferiority of pigments used by old masters, or varnishes applied to their canvases as preservatives, threaten many well known paintings. With the help of chemistry it is hoped that new pigments of permanent durability may be standardised, and that the chemical treatment may preserve the interior pigments of old masters.

"A portion of the sum raised, approximately $1,000,000, will be used for the endowment of research work in the chemistry of pigments, an entirely new field of research which promises much for the preservation of art treasures and the work in which the division has been the pioneer. A portion will also be used for the endowment of original archaeological and exploration work."

MICHIGAN HONORS BRIDGES.

English Poet Laureate and Orville Wright Receive Degrees.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 16.—Robert Bridges, poet laureate of England; Orville Wright, pioneer inventor of heavier-than-air machines, and Frederick Stock, Director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, were among the twelve persons who received honorary degrees from the University of Michigan today.

The poet laureate, who has spent the last three months on the campus here, received the degree Doctor of Laws. A Doctor of Engineering degree was conferred upon Mr. Wright and a Doctor of Music degree on Mr. Stock.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, June 16.—New Rochelle awoke this morning to find a demijohn of whisky and a blazing red light decorating the top of the pole on City Hall, where the American flag usually floats.

Michael Kerwin, City Hall custodian, discovered the obstacle when he tried to hoist the flag shortly after 8 o'clock. He notified the police. A detective failed to clear the halyards. He notified the Fire Department. Ten firemen under Chief Jones worked for an hour with hook and ladder. They removed the red light, but couldn't budge the demijohn. So they called upon a steeplejack. He will attempt to take down the "little brown jug" today at a cost to the city of $75.

Meanwhile the excitement attracted a huge crowd. It blocked the sidewalks and all the near-by streets. So every police reserve was called out to clear the traffic jam.

While the community looked upon the incident as a joke, the prosecutor is seeking the joker.

879 MEN AND WOMEN GRADUATE AT CORNELL

Advanced Degrees for 193 Others and Honors for Six War Alumni.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, June 16.—A total of 879 young men and women marched out into the world here today to take their places in world affairs when Cornell University granted diplomas to that number at its fifty-sixth annual commencement and conferred advanced degrees on 193 others. In addition it designated six war alumni whose studies were interrupted by the war and never returned to the campus. They received all the rights and privileges of regular graduates.

The ceremonies attending the event were marked by an address by Dr. Livingston Farrand, President of the university, who told the graduates they were needed to fill a want of ten years' standing for clear, constructive thinkers who would work to solve the present unrest and become leaders in national and world affairs.

"Unless I am much mistaken," he said, "we are witnessing today certain unforeseen and disquieting menaces of an overspecialization in nearly every activity of life. While it is easy to charge a contemporary era with conspicuous faults, it is certain that we have never seen such a wave of prejudice and loose and perverted thinking as seems to be sweeping the land now. No democracy can develop or survive except upon a foundation of sympathy, tolerance and intelligence, and I wish to emphasize the need of a realization that you are just beginning your education and the hope that you will so conduct yourselves that others will gain some measure of inspiration toward higher ends."

HOBART CONFERS DEGREES.

Educators, Clergymen and New York Editor Are Honored.

GENEVA, N. Y., June 16.—Five honorary degrees were conferred by Hobart College at its 101st commencement today. Following precedent set last year, when the Hobart centennial was celebrated, commencement exercises for Hobart and William Smith Colleges were held as one. Seventeen men and seventeen women students received bachelor degrees.

Honorary degree of LL. D. was conferred upon the Right Rev. Frank William Sterrett, D. D., Bishop Coadjutor of Bethlehem, and upon Benjamin Ficklin Finney, President and Vice Chancellor of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

Howard R. Patch, Ph. D., professor of English at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., received the honorary degree of Litt. D., and the honorary degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology was conferred upon the Rev. Roelif Brooks, rector of St. Paul's Church, Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Swope delivered the Phi Beta Kappa oration, touching upon the service of the modern newspaper.

FORCE FOR GODDARD ROCKET

WORCESTER, Mass., June 16.—President Wallace W. Atwood of Clark University, at commencement exercises this afternoon announced the solution of the problem of an explosive for the Goddard rocket. A liquid will be used to give propelling force without overheating the projectile, a model of which is completed and will be sent up this Summer near this city.

This is the rocket which, it is asserted, built on a large scale, could reach the moon.

Dr. Atwood also announced the establishment of a course of lectures on psychology at Clark, made possible through the generosity of Dr. E. B. Powell of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Three of the lecturers will be Dr. Knight Dunlap of Johns Hopkins, Dr. E. B. Titchener of Cornell and Dr. John B. Watson of New York.

LL. D. FOR OWEN D. YOUNG.

Associate of Dawes Among Those Honored by Tufts College.

MEDFORD, Mass., June 16.—Owen D. Young of New York, who helped to frame the Dawes plan of German reparations, received the honory degree of Doctor of Laws at the commencement of Tufts College here today. Other recipients of honorary degrees were the Revs. Herbert E. Benton of Philadelphia and Carl F. Henry of Pasadena, Cal.; D. D., James H. Robinson of New York (L. H. D.); Dr. Edward O. Otis of Boston and Edward R. Weidlein of Pittsburgh (Sc. D.); Dean Henry W. Holmes of Harvard University and Austin E. Peterson of New York (Litt. D.); Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney of New York and Dr. Norman F. Wood of Northfield (A. M.).

President John A. Cousens introduced the speakers and awarded 214 degrees in course to undergraduates and eight to graduates.

Seven Others Are Recipients of Honorary Degrees.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 16.—Ninety-six degrees in course and seven honorary degrees were conferred at the eighty-second annual commencement at Wesleyan University today.

Recipients of honorary degrees were:

BIG GIFTS FOR NEW CHAPEL

More Than a Million Now Subscribed—Seniors Hold Class Day and Rule University.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 16.—The Princeton Board of Trustees, at its commencement meeting here today, announced that of the $14,000,000 sought for the endowment fund $8,230,212 has been paid. Since the last meeting of the Finance Committee gifts amounting to $133,000 have been received. There also have been contributions to the fund for the new chapel, bringing the total amount subscribed to $1,120,000, leaving a balance of $400,000 to be raised.

It was announced also that, through the generosity of Miss Eleanor De Graff Cuyler, Princeton is to receive a complete set of the films of the Chronicles of America, prepared by the Yale University Press. This set consists of thirty-three complete motion pictures. The gift is in memory of Miss Cuyler's brother, the late C. C. Cuyler, '79, who was a trustee of the university for many years. A like gift is being made to Yale in honor of another brother, Thomas De Witt Cuyler, of Yale '74.

Information was received from the War Department that Captain Zip E. Lawhow, now stationed at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, has been transferred as Assistant Professor of Military Science at Princeton. Henry W. Green of Trenton, whose continued ill health forced him to withdraw from the Board of Trustees, retired after twenty-six years' service. Malcom Oakland Young, assistant librarian at Amherst, has been appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Howard S. L. Leach. Leaves of absence were granted to Assistant Professor Murch of the English Department for the first term of next year, and to Professor Howard Crosby Spalding of the Department of Philosophy and Professor Alan W. C. Menzies of the Department of Chemistry for the second term. Associate Professor Gilbert Van Ingen of the Department of Geology is retiring because of ill health.

The seniors held their annual class day exercises today. President Hibben turned the college completely over to John N. Hopkinson of New York, the master of ceremonies elected by the class.

Gale F. Johnston of St. Louis delivered the class oration and Edward Steese of New York read the class poem. At noon the class ivy was planted in front of Nassau Hall. David Trimble of Baltimore delivering the ivy oration. The cannon exercises were held in the afternoon, with the presentation address by Wallace Smith of St. Louis, the class history by Alexander Leitch and the class prophecy by Frederick H. Osborne of Newark.

Five seniors, Alfred George Henry Schwalm of Weehawken, N. J.; Park Lloyd Smith of New York, Roland Milton Stonebank of Springtown, Pa.; Henry Randolph Sutphen of New York and James Alfred Wadsworth of Springfield Gardens, L. I., were elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society. A graduate student, Philip Wheelwright of Elizabeth, N. J., and an alumnus, George Shearer of the Class of '90 of New York, also received the right to wear the key.

$320,000 for Princeton Choir.

A gift of $320,000 to Princeton University was announced yesterday by the Milbank Memorial Fund, 49 Wall Street, following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the fund. This sum will cover the entire cost of construction of the choir planned as a memorial to Elizabeth Milbank Anderson, a pioneer in modern philanthropy, who before her death in 1921 founded the Milbank Memorial Fund to "improve the physical, mental and moral condition of humanity and generally to advance charitable and benevolent objects."

The President of the Milbank Memorial Fund is Edward W. Sheldon, President of the United States Trust Company of New York. The committee is Albert G. Milbank, and the other directors include Elihu Root, John G. Milburn, Thomas Cochran, George L. Nichols and Dr. Charles M. Cauldwell. Its Secretary is John A. Kingsbury.

TRINITY SENDS OUT 47.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 16.—Forty-seven degrees in course were conferred by Trinity College at its ninety-eighth commencement, held this morning.

BIG CROWD AT AMHERST.

Hughes, Gillett and Stone Among Guests for Commencement Week.

AMHERST, Mass., June 16.—The largest gathering of Amherst College alumni since the centennial year, 1921, gathered today for the commencement events. Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, who will speak Wednesday at the alumni luncheon, is a guest at the college, as are also Speaker Frederick H. Gillett of the House of Representatives, an Amherst alumnus of the class of 1874, and Attorney General Harlan F. Stone of the class of 1894.

The class of 1914 has the largest number of members present, thirty-six, and will receive the Alumni Cup at the luncheon Wednesday. The largest alumni party present is that of the class of 1899, whose 104 include not only the old graduates, but their wives and children.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, June 14, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.00 cents to 13.00 cents per pound and averaged 11.42 cents per pound.—Advt.

Our Three Fliers Hop 300 Miles to Saigon; Plans Proceed for Flight Across Europe

HONGKONG, June 16 (Associated Press).—The three American Army airplanes flying around the world landed safely at Saigon, the capital of French Cochin China, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Today's hop from Tourane, a port of Nannain, French Indo-China, was about 300 miles.

Information to this effect was contained in news dispatches from Saigon this evening.

Dispatches earlier today from Tourane said that the engine of Lieutenant Lowell Smith's air cruiser Chicago, which had made a forced landing between Hue and Tourane necessary, had been replaced and that Lieutenant Smith, with Lieutenants Wood and Nelson, intended to leave there this morning.

SIMLA, India, June 16.—The Viceroy of India last Thursday sent the following telegram to the Governor of Burma:

"Please convey a very hearty welcome from me to the American air units which are expected at Rangoon between the 12th and 14th, and congratulate them for me on their success in their progress on their journey."

VIENNA, June 16.—Major Carlisle H. Wash, Air Attaché of the American Embassy at Paris, who arrived here Saturday, has now completed all arrangements for the arrival of the army's round-the-world flyers, who are expected to arrive in Vienna between July 10 and 15.

Major Wash proceeded today to Budapest, Belgrade and Constantinople to complete arrangements for the flight from Constantinople, where he will meet the flyers and probably fly with them to Vienna, where they expect to stay one day.

The flyers will stay one day in Belgrade, and may land at Budapest, but this depends entirely on weather conditions. Although the Austrian authorities are cooperating in the work to facilitate the flight, there will be no special festivities. Spare parts from the United States have already arrived and arrangements for landing have been made with the Franco-Rumanian Air Line for the use of the Aspang Aerodrome.

$500,000 PRESENTED TO YALE LAW SCHOOL

Harold Depew of Elizabeth (N. J.) Makes Gift — School Will Be Reorganized.

MEMORIALS ARE UNVEILED

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 16.—A promise that immediate plans for reorganization of the Yale Law School, plant, courses and Faculty, will be put into effect was made by Dean Thomas Walter Swan at today's centennial celebration exercises of that institution.

A group of new buildings, including recitation and dormitory and a large common meeting room where the future lawyers can be brought together, will be erected and, while the exact location is not ready for announcement, it is being considered as a part of the century development plan which Yale announced recently.

The gift of $500,000 from Harold Depew of Elizabeth, N. J., a graduate of the class of 1906, was announced. Ganson Goodhue Depew of Buffalo, a younger member of the same family who died recently, left $25,000 to Yale, and his father has added $50,000 to that sum.

Details of the plan to honor the memory of the late President Woolsey of Yale and his son, Professor Theodore Dwight Woolsey, who has just retired after nearly forty years' service as Professor of International Law, were announced as consisting of the creation of a Woolsey Professorship of International Law.

Dean Swan said it was planned to establish chairs bearing the names of two former members of the Law School and Faculty—of Simeon E. Baldwin, formerly Governor and Chief Justice of Connecticut, and William Howard Taft.

At today's exercises Professor Woolsey sketched the history of the school during its first century and cited as one of the shortcomings of the institution its iron-bound rule requiring an academic degree for entrance. He insisted that no school of the rating of Yale realized its destiny unless it could admit highly desirable students into special classes, though they might be deficient in their collegiate attendance, but not in their intellectual qualifications.

Yale Heroes Commemorated.

Two memorial tablets to Yale heroes were unveiled today, when, following their class exercises, the members of the graduating class of the academic department dedicated a slab in Memorial Hall to Allen Keith of Chicago, who died when a sophomore from severe injuries received in the Rialto Theatre fire in this city, at which he saved the lives of several people. The tablet was presented to the university by Herbert Francis Sturdy of Los Angeles, and was accepted by Provost Henry Graves.

The sexennial class of 1918 dedicated a tablet in memory of fourteen members who perished in World War service. The memorial has been placed in the east side of the vaulted archway leading from Branford Court in the Harkness Memorial Quadrangle. The tablet, carved in stone, is surmounted by an American eagle and a sword flanked on each side by the names of fourteen war heroes. It was designed by James Gamble Rogers of New York, architect of the Quadrangle.

Members of the class to whom the memorial was dedicated were

Coleman Tileston Clark, aspirant Twenty-eighth Regiment, French Field Artillery, son of Salter Storrs Clark, Westfield, N. J.

George Lane Edwards Jr., First Lieutenant Motor Transport Corps, son of George Lane Edwards, Mount Vernon, Mo.

Kenneth MacLeish, Lieutenant U. S. N. R. F. (aviation), attached to British Royal Air Force, son of Andrew MacLeish, Glencoe, Ill.

Leslie Malcolm MacNaughton, Ensign, U. S. N. R. F. (aviation), son of Fred MacNaughton, Port Edward, N. Y.

Holmes Mallory, Sergeant, First Class, Army Intelligence Police, son of Robert Mallory, Port Chester, N. Y.

Frank Stuart Patterson, First Lieutenant, Air Service, son of the late Frank Jeffersen Patterson, Dayton, Ohio.

Glenn Dickenson Wicks, First Lieutenant, Air Service (attached to British Royal Air Force), son of Charles Welles Wicks, Utica, N. Y.

Dr. William W. Herrick, a graduate of the Yale School of Medicine and of Yale College in 1902, was elected President of the Association of Yale Alumni in Medicine at the annual meeting of the association tonight. Dr. Herrick is Professor of Clinical Medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University.

Graduating Exercises.

The seniors in Yale College held their class day exercises this afternoon on the historic college campus. The exercises were followed by the planting of the class ivy.

Clifford Samuel Thomson of New York City delivered the class oration, and Walter Edwards Houston Jr. of New York City read the class poem.

Otis Livingstone Hubbard of Middletown, Conn., voted the most original member of the class, was the author of the class history. The committee in charge of the class day exercises was headed by Edwin Foster Blair of Dallas, Texas, and included Henry Ellsha Allen of Colebrook, Conn., Derick Algerson Jannary of St. Louis, Mo., William Neely Mallory of Memphis, Tenn., Charles Merville Spofford of Evanston, Ill., and Charles Morton Stewart Jr. of Baltimore, Md.

BEGIN GRAFT TRIALS OF NASSAU OFFICERS

Jury Is Completed in Cases Against Mayor and Treasurer of Long Beach.

Vickers Haslin, hosiery, Port Washington; Harry M. Hale, house painter, Merrick, and William L. Sloan, superintendent, Central Park.

Charles J. McDermott, Special Deputy Attorney General, in presenting the case to the jury said that Reynolds, having heavy interests in Long Beach on the Ocean, Inc., and in the Elmohar Company, real estate concerns, was anxious that good prices be realized from an auction of Long Beach land from July 1 to 4, 1922. For this purpose, he said, Reynolds made a verbal agreement with Samuel Rosoff, contractor, whereby Rosoff began the improvement of Long Beach streets on June 27, 1922. The prosecutor said that Rosoff formed a partnership with Michael Dollard, an Albany contractor, for the completion of this job.

About the time Rosoff started work, according to Mr. McDermott, the newly organized City Council of Long Beach approved a $484,000 bond issue to be dated Sept. 1, 1922, and to be put on sale Sept. 15, 1922. He said he would try to prove that Reynolds was familiar with a State law prohibiting the sale of municipal bonds under par.

Henry A. Uterhart, of counsel for the defense, interjected that there was no evidence the bonds were sold below par, and that he did not think the law would prevent such a sale in any event. The prosecutor then said that on one occasion, when Dollard was supervising street construction work, Reynolds drove up in an automobile with others and told Dollard that as the city could not sell a bond issue at less than par he wished Dollard and Rosoff to bid for a certain issue at par, with the understanding that they would be guaranteed against loss.

When bids for the issue were opened, the prosecutor said, it was found that Dollard and Rosoff had bid for them at par and that notwithstanding bona fide bids were made for the bonds they were sold by Watkins & Co. of New York at 98, or a loss of $19,360, or 4 per cent. of the total issue. He declared that the $19,360 was later paid to Dollard and Rosoff by a series of checks, the first dated Oct. 2, 1922, and the last Jan. 2, 1923, on the oral understanding that the work started would be officially confirmed.

Mr. McDermott charged that the bond transaction, as far as Rosoff and Dollard were concerned, was a fake, and that the sale to Watkins & Co. was actually made by Reynolds and Gracy.

The indictment on which they are being tried charges Reynolds and Gracy with larceny, embezzlement, misappropriation and conversion of Long Beach funds.

That the principal defense would be a denial of criminal intent was indicated by Mr. Uterhart's examination of talesmen. He asked the talesmen if they would convict the defendants on a legal technicality in the absence of proof of criminal intent.

Harold Andarson, a Lynbrook contractor, who was indicted last week with Reynolds, Gracy and City Engineer George S. Vanderwerken of Long Beach, on the charge of conspiring to defraud the city out of $25,000, was arraigned before Justice Cropsey today. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $2,500 bail.

Hamilton Graduates a Big Class.

Special to The New York Times.

CLINTON, N. Y., June 16.—The 112th commencement of Hamilton College, held this morning in the college chapel, witnessed the graduation of the largest class in its history. Sixty-six men received diplomas, fifty-seven receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and nine the degree Bachelor of Science. Among them was the first negro to receive a degree from the college. Honorary degrees were awarded to four men and one woman. Miss Ruth Draper received the honorary Master of Arts degree; Alexander Woollcot, '09, dramatic critic, was made a Doctor of Literature, and Anthony N. Petersen, '95, and Philip S. Bird received the Doctor of Divinity degree.

$1,500,000 SEIZURE OF SMUGGLED DRUGS

CONSIGNED TO BARBADOS

Other Similar Shipments Turned Out to Be Stones When They Reached Their Destination.

The arraignment of two alleged smugglers before a Federal Commissioner yesterday disclosed what Treasury Department officials called the largest seizure of smuggled narcotics ever made in the history of the customs service. According to the officials, the seizure was a big step toward breaking up an international ring that has been sending millions of dollars' worth of drugs from Europe and Asia to this country and South America.

The present shipment was valued at $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 at retail rates for illicit drug sales. It consisted of 500 pounds of crude optium, wrapped in red packages with the seal of Persia; 800 ounces of cocaine, 1,600 ounces of morphine, 1,500 ounces of heroin and several hundred ounces of other narcotics.

Shipped from Bremen concealed under layers of scrubbing brushes and consigned to Barbados, in the British West Indies, the drugs were seized in Hoboken last Saturday, just after they had been unloaded from the President Roosevelt of the United States Line and placed in a licensed customs truck for transfer to a Brooklyn pier, where they were to be reshipped to Barbados.

Abraham Polowitz of 121 West 110th Street, owner of the truck, and Otto A. Anderson of 702 East 138th Street, his helper, described as a "confidence man," were arrested when the drugs were seized. Each was held in $25,000 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Stanley in Hoboken.

Howard D. Esterbrook, chief of the special agents of the Treasury Department in New York, said that the smuggling syndicate had been operating successfully for many months and that it had used an ingenious trick to get the contraband goods past the customs officials and to keep them here in New York instead of sending them on to the consignees in Barbadoes.

The drugs were shipped from Germany in large packing cases, about five feet in each dimension. Cheap scrubbing brushes were laid in three rows in the bottom of each case. On top of these were placed packages of drugs, wrapped up just as they came from manufacturing chemical plants. A space was left at each side of the layer of drugs, and another space was left at the top.

Taking advantage of the customs regulations that bonded goods can be transferred from a vessel from one foreign country to a ship for another country without undergoing the usual inspection, the German shippers consigned the cases to Barbados. That destination was chosen because the pier from which ships leave for Barbados is in Brooklyn and the transfer of the cases from Hoboken to Brooklyn would give the maximum time for the substitution of other cases for those which had been shipped from Germany.

That is exactly what has been going on for many months, according to the Treasury officials. Instead of taking the bonded goods direct to the Brooklyn pier, the officials say, the truckmen have been taking them to a garage, where they have been replaced by other cases, identical in appearance, weight and markings, but containing nothing but stones wrapped in paper.

While the smuggled goods were distributed among drug addicts in this country, the officials went on, the duplicate cases were shipped to Barbados. The agent of the smuggling ring in Barbados, upon returning the boxes to Germany and after a while they were reconsigned to Barbados. They were sent back to this country in the same way as before, and this performance went on and on until a Treasury Department agent got wind of the conspiracy.

Special agents of the department have been investigating here and in Germany for about eight weeks. In Bremen an agent discovered that one of the packing boxes returned from Barbados contained stones instead of scrubbing brushes. In New York it was found that although Polowits had obtained a customs license to transfer bonded goods from one ship to another he had handled only three cargoes during the seven months in which he had had the license.

Polowitz has been followed everywhere he has gone during the last month. On Saturday evening several special agents trailed him in his truck to Pier 4, Hoboken. The agents already knew that three cases, consigned as brushes to Barbados, had arrived on the President Roosevelt and were waiting at the pier for transfer to the steamer Guiana in Brooklyn.

When Polowitz claimed the cases and drove off the pier he was stopped and he and Anderson were arrested. A Hoboken policeman who saw the incident thought it was a holdup and was about to arrest the Treasury Department men when they showed their credentials.

READY TO FLY TO PACIFIC.

Maughan Announces Plans for Dawn-to-Dusk Flight.

Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, army flier, speaking over the radio from Station WJZ last night, announced that he would be ready Thursday to attempt to make a dawn-to-dusk flight from New York to San Francisco. Whether he will actually start on Thursday will depend entirely on atmospheric conditions, he asserted. He will not fly if it rains, he says.

He hopes to start at 3:22 A. M., Daylight Saving Time, in a regular army pursuit plane and arrive in San Francisco, 2,650 miles distant "as the crow flies," seventeen hours later. He said he will stop for a fresh supply of gasoline at Dayton, Ohio; St. Joseph, Mo.; Cheyenne, Wyo., and Salduro, Utah. Lieutenant Maughan will take the same route he took last year, when he failed in his attempt to make the dawn-to-dusk transcontinental flight, descending in Wyoming. He expects to travel at 160 miles an hour.

BRITISH FLIER GETS PLANE.

American Destroyers Rushed It From Japan to Burma.

HONG KONG, June 16.—(Associated Press).—The spare airplane rushed from Hakodate, Japan, to Akyab, Burma, India, to enable A. Stewart MacLaren, British around-the-world flyer, to resume his flight, was landed at Akyab June 13 according to radio advices received here from the American destroyer Preston.

The destroyer Preston carried the plane on the second leg of the 1,500-mile trip after the American destroyer, John Paul Jones, had brought the machine here from Hakodate.

MacLaren damaged the plane in which he started his flight while landing at Akyab. For a time it was feared he would be forced to abandon his flight, but services of the American destroyers, in rushing a new plane to him, have made possible plans for continuing his circumnavigation of the world.

Funds Sought for Outings For Very Old and Very Young

Plans for fresh-air outings this Summer for approximately 6,500 persons who need them but cannot afford them were announced yesterday by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, and an appeal was made for funds. Contributions should be sent to George Blagdon, Treasurer of the association, at 105 East Twenty-second Street.

The outings are to be for the old as well as for the very young. Mothers and babies are to go to Sea Breeze, on Staten Island; boys older than 8 years to the A. I. C. P. camp, in Interstate Park; girls of the same age to Gray House Farm, at Saugerties, N. Y., and the very old to Sunset Lodge, North Germantown, N. Y.

TWO BABIES KILLED BY AUTOMOBILES

ANOTHER HIT ON SIDEWALK

William Hellwedge Jr., 3 years old, eluded his mother yesterday afternoon while on the sidewalk in front of his home at 75 Hutton Street, Jersey City, and a few minutes later his body was found in the street, around the corner on Cambridge Avenue. The boy had been struck by an automobile. Nobody saw the accident, but after an investigation Captain Hogue of the Central Avenue Station arrested Chester Brandon of 496 Lincoln Avenue, Brooklyn, driver of a motor truck owned by Arbuckle Brothers of Brooklyn, on suspicion of manslaughter. Brandon, who was making deliveries a short distance from where the body of the child was found, said he did not believe his truck had caused the boy's death.

David S. Cassidy, 6 months old, who was knocked out of his perambulator in front of his home at 401 Twenty-first Street, College Point, Queens, by an automobile which skidded onto the sidewalk, died yesterday of his injuries. The driver of the car fled after the accident.

Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Marie Batholing, 32 years old, of 170 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn, who was one of six persons, including her two little daughters, injured last Saturday evening when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Long Island Railroad train at an unguarded crossing at East Moriches, died yesterday in Southampton Hospital. Dr. Morley E. Lewis, Coroner, at an inquest held later in East Moriches, recommended that the District Attorney arrest Hans Gottert, driver of the car, who was among the injured, on a technical homicide charge.

Three of four men in an automobile which crashed into a tree on the White Horse Pike, near Hammonton, N. J., late Sunday night were reported to be in a critical condition yesterday at the Cooper Hospital, Camden. The car was being driven by Frank Vespa of 3,023 North Twenty-third Street, Philadelphia. He received cuts and bruises. The other occupants, who received serious injuries, were Dominick Ludovico of 2,020 Indiana Avenue; Minevi Lopes of 3,052 North Twenty-second Street, and Dominick Retirro of 2,116 Clearfield Avenue, all of Philadelphia.

Thirty persons were hurt, none of them seriously, when an automobile bus in which they were passengers overturned at Shore Road and Voorhees Avenue, Sheepshead Bay, yesterday afternoon, following a collision with a commercial car. The bus, owned by the Manhattan and Plumb Beach Auto Bus Company, was on its way to the Sheepshead Bay station of the Brighton Beach subway line. The commercial car also was upset. In the excitement somebody turned in a fire alarm. The firemen found many of the passengers imprisoned in the bus.

Michael Robstein of 464 Oriental Boulevard, Manhattan Beach, was found to be the most seriously hurt. He received internal injuries and cuts on the head and body. Miss Esther Schwarz of 230 Beaumont Street received cuts and abrasions. Miss Estelle Monkanis of 27 West End Avenue received injuries to both legs and Miss Eileen Friedel of 20 Ocean Court suffered a fracture of the left leg. With Robstein they were removed to a hospital. Most of the others were attended at the scene of the accident and went to their homes.

ZIEGFELD HAS WAY TO BLOCK SCALPERS

HE ALLOTS THEM INSTEAD

Florenz Ziegfeld, in Atlantic City superintending the out-of-town opening of his "Follies," scheduled to come to the New Amsterdam Theatre one week from tonight, announced yesterday the completion of plans for keeping seats for the opening night, priced at $5.50, out of the hands of ticket speculators. With but few exceptions, Mr. Ziegfeld announced, tickets for the opening night would not be put on sale at the box-office, but would be allotted directly from his offices to applicants personally known to himself and his staff as bona-fide purchasers.

The downstairs capacity of the New Amsterdam is slightly in excess of 600 seats. Of this number, Mr. Ziegfeld said, there had already been requests for sixty seats apiece from Bernard Baruch, Colonel Boyce Thompson, ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard and Norman E. Mack for the entertainment of delegates to the Democratic Convention. In addition to these seats, about eighty seats will be allotted for newspaper reviewing purposes, and about 180 seats will be required to meet the requests of habitual first-nighters, who have been on the first-night lists of most theatres for many years. There will thus be about 180 orchestra seats left for sale to personal friends of the management and the actors.

A large part of the first balcony will be allotted in the same fashion, directly from the Ziegfeld office to persons personally known to Mr. Ziegfeld's staff. Those seats which will go on public sale Thursday morning will thus be for part of the balcony and the entire gallery.

"For several years," said Mr. Ziegfeld, "our opening night price was $11 a seat, and last year we charged $22 a seat. We have regularly had capacity audiences at our openings and have been required to turn away hundreds of prospective patrons.

"The $5.50 price this year represents a distinct financial sacrifice on my part, for as far as the receipts of the opening night are concerned, but it will be a sacrifice worthwhile if the acruing goodwill and restored confidence of the public in box office prices are not damaged by ticket scandals, through tickets falling into the hands of the speculators. It is for this reason that my office has taken these elaborate precautions to see that tickets go directly at the established price, to the people who will use them."

The legitimate ticket agencies, Mr. Ziegfeld said, had signed pledges to sell "Follies" tickets for the rest of next week, following the opening night, only to patrons known to them and at the authorized advance of 50 cents over the established price. In this way, according to the plans, theatre-goers, and particularly convention delegates and visitors, will be assured of a supply of tickets without recourse to the ticket scalpers and speculators. Mr. Ziegfeld said that two of the largest agencies had already shown him entries on their books for tickets, at the authorized 50 cent advance, that would take care of most of the down-stairs seating capacity in the New Amsterdam Theatre for the first week of the convention.

"SO THIS IS POLITICS."

SO THIS IS POLITICS, a comedy in three acts, by Barry Conners. At Henry Miller's Theatre.

Willie Marsden	Dwight Frye
Nina Buckmaster	Marjorie Gateson
Mrs. Cliff Callender	Lolita Robertson
Mrs. Harriet Axwell	Florence Earle
Mrs. Amos Woodruff	Marion Dyer
Elizabeth Moore Madison	Alice Fleming
Mr. McKenna	William Courtleigh
John Buckmaster	Glenn Anders
Brooks Caldwell	John S. Merrissey

Early last night, at Henry Miller's Theatre, it seemed that the perils of the convention were to be added to those of the Summer, so far as the theatre is concerned, with a piece called "So This Is Politics." Happily, even the semi-worst fears remained unrealized. After a slow start, the new play became a consistently, if mildly, amusing entertainment, without, to be sure, any distressing demands upon the audience for an unsummerlike consideration of novelty or plausibility or even dramaturgic resource.

The plot, of which there is one, deals with a woman candidate for the Mayoralty of a small town, whose political ambitions are held in no high regard by her young husband, a typical country club inmate, and apparently a little bit absurd. With the aid of a veteran politician, an ex-saloonkeeper named "Butch" McKenna, the lady manages to triumph, although not until she has successfully cleared a combination of political hazards put in her way by unscrupulous opponents, that resemble nothing so much as a reform candidate's nightmare.

William Courtleigh was the ex-saloonkeeper boss with the heart of gold. He gave a conventional performance that seemed to meet with the thorough approval of the audience. He read shrewdly and mellowly numerous profound observations upon politics as practiced only in the Hinterland, and caused himself to emerge as a likable, if implausible, personage.

Marjorie Gateson, but recently of musical comedy, is the ambitious heroine. Miss Gateson is personable, as of comparative yore, and manages to lend a little charm to a part that was conceivably without it. Dwight Frye it generously amusing, as a character that our dramatists have cliched out of all resemblance to humanity. Glenn Anders, as the impossible husband, contributed some highly annoying mannerisms and actory interpretations to a role that would have been none too entertaining without them. The other players handled capably and cleanly such action and lines as came their way.

IGOR STRAVINSKY'S PLANS.

Will Conduct the Philharmonic in Some of His Own Works.

Igor Stravinsky, the Russian composer who has been engaged by the New York Philharmonic Society to conduct several concerts next season, will present several of his own works, some of which were made known in America by the Diaghileff Russian ballet troupe. Stravinsky wrote the music for "The Firebird" and for "Petrushka," which were received with much favor, the latter having been presented by the Metropolitan Opera Company. It will be repeated during the next opera season.

"The Nightingale Song," "L'Histoire du Soldat," "Renard" and "Le Sacre du Printemps," all by Stravinsky, had their first performances in New York.

Stravinsky, who is a native of Petrograd, is only 32 years old. The composer lives in Paris, where recently he played his piano concerto at a Koussevievky concert, this being his initial performance in public as a pianist.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Saint Joan" will close at the Garrick on June 28.

ASKS PREMIER TO STOP RODEO STEER ROPING

British Society Appeals 'in Name of Humanity' Against Contest of American Cowboys.

LONDON, June 16.—The opening of Tex Austin's international rodeo in the British Empire Exhibition Stadium Saturday, when one of the steers had its leg broken while being roped and tied by an American cowboy, was followed today by an appeal to Prime Minister MacDonald by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, "in the name of humanity" to forbid the steer roping and wrestling contests of the rodeo.

After the accident to the steer on Saturday, which brought scattering "boos" and cries of "shame!" from the crowd of 40,000 persons who saw the night performance, Austin and his cowboys decided to exclude the roping contests from the rodeo program.

It was announced, however, that as the cowboys had traveled 5,000 miles to England to compete for money prizes, the roping and tieing contests would be continued in the Stadium at hours when no audience was present.

The appeal of the R. S. P. C. A. to Premier MacDonald stated:

"The press has announced that the steer-roping at Wembley is to continue in private and steer-wrestling in public. In the name of humanity, please forbid it, even if necessary by resolution in the House of Commons."

Meanwhile, Austin and the British promoters of the rodeo are considering what is to be done about the roping and wrestling contests. Out at Wembley several hundred American and Canadian cowboys are sitting around on the top rails of cattle pens sunning themselves and wondering what all the row is about.

BACK AT WHITE HOUSE AFTER POTOMAC CRUISE

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President and Mrs. Coolidge returned early today from a week-end cruise aboard the Mayflower, which took them down the Potomac River to the upper reaches of Chesapeake Bay.

The cruise, which began Saturday afternoon, constituted the longest period Mr. Coolidge has been absent from the Capital since he entered the White House last August. He and Mrs. Coolidge were accompanied by several friends, including Frank W. Mondell, Permanent Chairman of the Republican National Convention and Chairman of the committee which will notify the President of his nomination.

The Mayflower steamed about the lower stretches of the Potomac yesterday and anchored last night just below Mount Vernon. The trip from Mount Vernon to Washington was begun soon after daylight this morning.

DENIES VENEZUELA REVOLT.

Secretary of Legation Says Country Is, and Will Be, at Peace.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Some time ago THE NEW YORK TIMES published an article concerning a revolution in Venezuela headed by one Arevalo Cedeno. Our Minister in Washington has denied upon positive official information the truth of the same. In today's issue the false statement is repeated and exaggerated by the same Mr. Spinetti, so-called representative of the imaginary revolution, with the assertion that the revolution has won over the States of Bolivar and Apure and opened the Orinoco River for free navigation to the world.

Such a declaration is as absurd as would be an assertion of a European paper that a drug store clerk, for example, had rebelled in the United States and his followers had captured the States of New York and New Jersey and had abolished such domestic legislation as that upon immigration.

Venezuela is so near to the United States that it is difficult to understand how such fabrications can circulate, and I suggest that any one desiring information other than from us may communicate directly with Ciudad Bolivar, the capital of the State of Bolivar, to assure himself that neither the State of Bolivar nor its neighbor Apure, nor any other State in Venezuela, is in the slightest danger of being controlled or even annoyed by any imaginary revolution. Moreover, any person wishing to obtain unofficial information, but as reliable as ours, about conditions in Venezuela, may inquire at the National City Bank of New York, which has branches in Venezuela and extensive interests in the State of Bolivar, or at the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, this bank being the correspondent of the Banco de Venezuela, or at any of the large oil companies, such as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Sun Company of Philadelphia, the Maracaibo Oil Corporation of New York, the Gulf Oil Company or the Pure Oil Company, all of these having constant and reliable information concerning Venezuela.

The revolution in Venezuela has existed for fourteen years, but only on paper. But as such statements may affect the Stock Exchange and disturb commerce, with great injury to both Venezuelan and American interests, I should appreciate your courtesy if you would publish in your paper the assurance of this legation that Venezuela is now and for years to come will be at peace, and that in my country all interests of every kind are fully protected.

JAILS SON FOR CONTEMPT.

Virginia Judge Gives Lawyer 3-Hour Term for Disturbing Court.

Special to The New York Times.

DANVILLE, Va., June 16.—How Judge P. S. Dillard sentenced his own son, Herbert Dillard, to spend three hours in jail for contempt of court was related here today by J. H. Amos, who returned this morning from Rocky Mount, where the Franklin Circuit Court is in session. The commitment is confirmed by the clerk of the court.

Herbert Dillard, an attorney, was twice reproved, Mr. Amos said, by his father on the bench for continuing a conversation in the courtroom after the sergeants had called repeatedly for order so that a motion might be heard.

The third time the Court ordered the attorney before him and remanded him to the Sheriff to serve a three hours' jail term without the option of a fine.

Elks Give Party for Cripples.

One thousand crippled children of the Bronx will journey to Coney Island today as guests of Lodge 871 of the Bronx Elks. Burnside Avenue and Grand Concourse, at a picnic at Dreamland Park. The children will be driven from their homes in twenty buses and a number of private automobiles lent for the purpose. Thirty-five nurses and six doctors from Lincoln and Fordham Hospitals will go along to care for them.

Asks $1,296,661 for New Board.

Commissioner John H. Delaney, Chairman Designate of the new City Board of Transportation, which on July 1 will take over from the Transit Commission the planning and construction of subways, placed a request before the Board of Estimate yesterday for an appropriation of $1,296,661. That sum, Mr. Delaney said, "it is estimated will be required for the performance of the work of the new board for the six months beginning July 1, 1924." Action upon the requisition was deferred until tomorrow.

THE SCREEN

A Murder Mystery.

THE GUILTY ONE, with Agnes Ayres, Edward Jones, Stanley Taylor, Crauford Kent, Cyril Ring, Thomas R. Mills, Catherine Wallace, George Siegmann, Clarence Burton and Dorothea Wolbert; adapted from the play by Michael Morton and Peter Traill; directed by Joseph Henabery; Rissenfeld's "Classical Jazz," "O Celeste Aida," Ernest Davis, tenor. At the Rialto.

"The Guilty One," which is at the Rialto, contains quite an interesting story, weakened, it is true, by a rather hasty ending. Joseph Henabery, the director, has extracted some really impressive situations from the narrative, which was adapted from the play by Michael Morton and Peter Traill. The picture would have been even better if Mr. Henabery had been able to elicit from his players the same spontaneity Chaplin obtained in "A Woman of Paris." There is a marked tendency on the part of some of the players to go through their pantomimic efforts as if they were being timed and drilled, and one or two of them spoil effects by glaring into the eye of the camera.

Edward Burns, cast as Donald Short, shows a great improvement over his performance in "The Humming Bird." He is more natural, and in "The Guilty One" has, in certain instances, a difficult task. It is a thankless job trying to appear deep in thought when you can hear the camera grinding and the voices around you, even if a fiddle is squeaking its best.

Mr. Short is an architect feverishly desirous of accomplishing something artistic. He lives in a motion picture mansion, with movie walls, great cinema passages and film doors. His pretty wife Irene (Agnes Ayres) believes that all work and no jazz makes a dull home. To illustrate their tone of existence, Mr. Henabery shows a Boston bull chasing a Persian cat, the two animals beginning the fray over two saucers of milk in the kitchen and ending it with tooth and claw in the room where Short is endeavoring to concentrate on his ideas for an important building.

Mr. Henabery is to be congratulated for his temerity in refusing to be hastened in this story, and it is a pity he did not maintain the same pace in the last scenes of the production.

The chief feature of the story is whereoit is discovered that The Gotham Gossip, a scandal sheet, has printed an article calling attention to the numerous occasions on which Mrs. Short has been seen with Seaton Davies (Crauford Kent), a wealthy idler. It is alleged that Mrs. Short takes her brother with her only to throw dust in the eyes of those who may see her. Mr. Short telephones to Mr. Davies, and then goes to the latter's luxurious abode only to find that Mr. Davies has just been the victim of a bullet. Hence there is a murder to work out, and until the last few scenes it is done with much cleverness.

Cyrill Ring is efficient as the editor of The Gotham Gossip, and Agnes Ayres is charming as Mrs. Short. Mr. Kent makes an admirable villain, as George Siegmann is splendid as a captain of detectives.

This is a picture well worth an hour of one's time. It has certain weak spots, but it is a good entertainment.

The Business Woman.

Rupert Hughes, who writes his own stories and then translates them into pictures, is the author-director of "True as Steel," which is making its bow at the Capitol this week. We were agreeably surprised with this pictorial effort, which, while it is no masterpiece, is surely a distinct improvement over "Souls For Sale" and "Reno" that we emerged from the theatre satisfied with life. Mr. Hughes usually salaams to the "great gawd" hokum, and is a witty defender of his idol at banquets, but in "True as Steel" he has casually neglected hokum, which fact, makes this photoplay vastly more entertaining.

"True as Steel" is supposed to be an argument concerning women in business. It is told in a light vein, and therefore is not tedious. Mr. Hughes has engaged a capable cast with pleasing personalities, and although there are a number of scenes which could very well be excluded, they are relieved by well-worded and amusing subtitles.

Aileen Pringle, who officiated as the Queen in "Three Weeks," fills the role of the business woman earning $50,000 a year. It is a fantastic idea, for Miss Pringle never appears to be a strenuous worker, and the situations developed by Mr. Hughes are highly improbable. Huntley Gordon impersonates Frank Parry, the business man from Toledo, who goes to New York on business, and is amazed to find such an attractive woman acting in such a responsible position for the President of the concern, who thinks more of his yacht than his affairs. Mr. Parry has a wife and daughter, but it is not long before he finds that his stay in New York must be prolonged—owing to the fascinating Mrs. Eva Boutelle (Miss Pringle).

It is rather unusual for a business man and a business woman to put their heads so close together that the man is impelled to steal a kiss. Mrs. Boutelle, who is married to a man who obviously makes free with her large salary, apparently decide that business is important, and therefore she cannot be anything more than a little naughty for a while with Mr. Parry as punishment for his demonstration of admiration. She afterward goes to an exclusive restaurant with him, and, in the end, just when one thinks of the wife and daughter in Toledo and the scamp in Chicago, she seems to be falling in love with Parry. Mr. Boutelle is kept waiting outside his wife's office while Parry and the attractive business woman are in each other's arms. She is, however, "true as steel."

Mr. Parry goes forth to buy Mrs. Boutelle a bracelet of pearls, and when he asks the price he tells the salesman that he does not wish to know the population of New York.

Mr. Hughes opens his picture by showing the feet of dancers, and every scene of a dance is so thronged with those doing the light fantastic that there is hardly room for them to turn around.

Eleanor Boardman plays the part of Miss Parry, who becomes a business woman and wheedles an elderly flirt into buying large parcels of real estate. Cleo Madison is sympathetic as Mrs. Parry, and Norman Kerry impersonates the "beautiful butterfly husband" of Mrs. Boutelle.

Court Says He Is Not Liable for Injuries in Stove Accident.

The owner of an apartment or tenement house is not responsible for accidents growing out of defective stoves or any other appurtenances of the building, under a ruling by Supreme Court Justice Glennon yesterday. The Court accordingly set aside a verdict for $3,000 in favor of Mollie Rosal, 9 years old, and $1,000 for her father, against Max Schwartz, owner of the building in which the Rosals lived.

The child was setting the table for dinner when the front grate of the cook stove fell out, and live coals set her dress afire. She was seriously burned.

Harper & Bros. Win Injunction.

Supreme Court Justice Black handed down a decision yesterday granting to Harper & Bros. an injunction to restrain the New Harper's Weekly Corporation and others from using the fication, "New Harper's Weekly." The Court found that although the plaintiff stopped publication of Harper's Weekly, it still retains the right to use the name when it desires to do so.

Louis Rommel Gets 10 Months.

Louis Rommel, former President of the Puritan Guarantee Corporation of Newark, who was convicted a month ago of defrauding stockholders of $195,000, was sentenced to ten months in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Blanchard in the Essex County Court of Common Pleas.

NEW LAWS PROMOTE RECREATION PROGRAM

Appropriations for Wild Life and Reforestration Praised by the Conference Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Officers of the conference on outdoor recreation, which was addressed by President Coolidge early in the month, are highly pleased over the action taken by Congress on four measures which they regard as of great importance to the cause of conservation and recreation in America.

One of the bills appropriated $1,500,000 to provide for wild life on a stretch of river bottom land between Rock Island, Ill., and Wabasha, Minn. The McNary-Clark bill, which is designed to encourage reforestation, provided an annual appropriation of $2,500,000 to enable the Federal Government to cooperate with the States and private agencies to prevent forests fires and to distribute free seeds for reforestation.

A third bill transfers the administration of game in Alaska from the Department of the Interior to the Department of Agriculture, where it will be in charge of the Director of the Biological Survey. The fourth bill in which the conference officers are interested, and which became a law, authorizes the Secretary of War to draft regulations to prohibit the pollution of intercoastal waters by dumping oil from ships.

"The fact that all of these measures are of great concern to delegates attending the national conference on outdoor recreation and were passed by Congress shortly after the conference got under way is of great significance to future conservation and recreation measures," said T. E. Rivers, Secretary of the conference. "For the first time all recreational interests of America are united in developing a national recreational policy. The above legislation is the first practical step toward this end."

CONVENTION OF LUTHERANS.

70 Churches Send Delegates to Conference That Opens Tonight.

Seventy Lutheran churches in the Middle and Eastern States are sending delegates to the twenty-third annual convention of the Evangelical Synod of New York and New England, which will open this evening in Holy Trinity Church, Central Park West and Sixty-fifth Street, of which the Rev. Dr. Paul E. Scherer is pastor. The convention will continue through Thursday.

One of the questions to come up will be the attitude of the Church to war and the World Court.

This evening the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, President of the synod, will preach the convention sermon, which will be followed by the holy communion.

ALIEN BAR HITS CLERGYMAN

The Rev. C. M. Grace of New Bedford, Mass., who has lived in this country twenty-four years, but is not a citizen, had to go to Ellis Island yesterday when he arrived from England on the Royal Mail liner Orca, because he was traveling third class. He had been abroad eight months. Mr. Grace said that he had visited the Holy Land.

Another passenger was Captain Edward Noble, playwright, author and retired shipmaster, who has come to visit his brother, B. Tertius Noble, organist of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church. He said that he wrote books to please himself and not the public.

Suit Against Equity Adjourned.

Supreme Court Justice Platzek adjourned yesterday for two weeks the application of Ruth Chatterton, as Treasurer of the Actors' Fidelity League, for an injunction restraining the enforcement of the contracts entered into by the Equity Association and the Managers' Protective Association calling for 50 per cent. Equity casts. The defendants asked time to answer the contentions of the plaintiff. Paul N. Turner for Equity told the court that the litigation is backed by members of the Producing Managers' Association who have already lost their own case.

The Greatest Sporting Goods Store in the World

Madison Avenue and 45th St. New York

The Franchise

Equal suffrage of sport, co-incident with the voting franchise, has given America an alert army of sportswomen.

Her clothes for travel, town and country, riding and all the field sports—her golf clothes and clubs — her motoring and camp outfits, guns and fishing tackle, here have been brought to perfection.

Where Sportswomen Congregate

Every sportswoman, every country club member, every yachtswoman, knows the advantages of Abercrombie & Fitch sport and outdoor clothes and shoes.

Since the opening of the season there have been constant additions to the unequalled assortments.

Topcoats, sport coats, town-and-country dresses, suits, golf clothes, riding habits and yachting clothes.

Sweaters, hosiery, shirts, blouses, scarfs—every item of sport haberdashery.

Travel by Land and Sea

Luggage for the steamer and motor trip — compact and convenient for crowded European conditions.

Carefully selected trunks, week-end cases, kit bags, hat boxes, fitted toilet bags, writing cases, money belts, bottle sets and luncheon kits.

Golf and tennis trunks.

Imported steamer and motor rugs, carry-alls, deck chairs—and all the little conveniences for both men and women which put home luxury into travel.

BRONX JEWELER HELD UP.

Three Men Take $5,000 Worth of Goods After Binding Owner.

David Rothenberg was held up in his jewelry store at 265 East Fordham Road yesterday afternoon by three armed men who bound him, locked him in a rear room and escaped with jewelry valued by Rothenberg at more than $5,000.

Rothenberg told the detectives of the Bathgate Avenue station that the men evidently had been watching him for some time, for as soon as his daughter came and took his sixteen-months-old baby, Shirley, whom he had been caring for all afternoon, one of the trio entered his store, which is near one of the busiest corners in the Bronx, at Fordham Road and the Grand Concourse.

The man asked for a watch crystal and when Rothenberg turned to hand it to him found a gun aimed at his body. Another man came in with a revolver in his hand and Rothenberg was ordered to a rear room, where he was tied hand and foot with heavy rope. Rothenberg could hear a third man removing trays of gems and watches from the display window. The safe, which was open, contained nothing of value.

The key of the rear room was taken from Rothenberg's pocket and after locking the door the two men stepped outside to aid their accomplice. Rothenberg soon managed to loosen the rope on his hands and feet and opened a door leading into the store of Harry Pollack at 265 East Fordham Road. Pollack ran out and told a policeman in a traffic tower at the Grand Concourse of the hold-up and detectives arrived soon after. The detectives learned that three men had been seen running from the store to an automobile which was standing at Tiebout Avenue, a block away.

The police believe the robbers may have been the same three men who held up the jewelry store of Samuel Hahne, at Third and Elton Avenues, last Friday and took $43,000 worth of jewelry.

10,000,000TH FORD LEAVES.

Will Follow Lincoln Highway on Run to the Pacific Coast.

The ten millionth Ford motor car, driven by Frank Kulick, left Times Square at 10 o'clock yesterday morning on its run to the Pacific Coast. The route to San Francisco will be via the Lincoln Highway. The President of the Lincoln Highway Association, J. Newton Gunn, gave the word that started the car on its 3,300-mile trip.

An escort of cars and officials from the Ford Motor Company's branch at Broadway and Fifty-fourth Street accompanied the car across the Forty-second Street ferry to Jersey City and Newark. At the latter city a message from the Newark postmaster was handed to Kulick to be delivered to the postmaster of San Francisco. Kulick also carries a letter from Mayor Hylan to the San Francisco Mayor. No effort will be made to establish a transcontinental record. No driving will be done on Sunday and the average daily run will be about 100 miles.

ST. MARK'S VESTRY MEETS.

Discusses Church Finances, Not Eurythmic Services.

A meeting of the vestry of St. Mark's-on-the-Bouwerie was held yesterday afternoon in the office of Mountfort Mills, 30 West Forty-fourth Street. It was expected that definite action would be taken on the dance services, but after the meeting it was said that only the financial problems of the church had been considered.

Dr. William Norman Guthrie, the rector, explained that the church was facing difficult problems, and that it would be some time before a definite decision was made, especially in regard to the eurythmic services. He intimated that the recent publication of the report of dissatisfaction in the vestry over the dances and the withdrawal of wealthy patronage had been premature.

Next Sunday the Rev. John Ernest James of Melbourne, Australia, an exchange preacher between America and Great Britain, will occupy the pulpit of St. Mark's.

$15,000,000 FOR SCHOOLS.

Committee Makes Appropriation for Action by Estimate Board.

The Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate voted yesterday to appropriate $15,000,000 for the purchase of new sites and the building of new school buildings. The committee's action must be ratified by the Board of Estimate before the funds will become available. That action may be taken on Friday this week.

"This makes a total of $160,000,000 which has been appropriated by this administration for new schools in New York City," said Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen. He said that the Hylan Administration had excelled all others in the generosity of its appropriations for new schools.

WOMEN WORKERS IN CONVENTION HERE

NEED OF UNIONS STRESSED

Mrs. Maud Swartz Says Conditions Point Necessity of Firm Organizations.

Neither capital nor labor can win a lasting victory through force, Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn said yesterday in welcoming delegates to the ninth biennial convention of the National Women's Trade Union League of America, which opened a six-day session at the Y. W. C. A. Building at 600 Lexington Avenue.

"In the industrial struggles where capital, by sheer force and power, gains victory over working men and women," said he, "it is not a real victory, but a definite loss, for efficient production is never secured by that means. Likewise it is true that if organized labor, by mere power of organization, gains a victory which is not fundamentally just, the victory is merely temporary and cannot last."

Lieut. Gov. Lunn spoke in the place of Governor Smith who, he said, was unable to be present because of pressing business.

John Sullivan, President of the New York Central Trades and Labor Council, who also welcomed the delegates, said that his organization, at a meeting next Thursday night, would listen to a preliminary report from a special committee on the feasibility of starting a weekly newspaper here which would support the trade union movement. Mr. Sullivan is a director of the American Federation of Labor Bank of New York.

Bernard L. Shientag, State Industrial Commissioner, said that, although he was a party man, he believed that the State Labor Department should be entirely divorced from political influences.

"Two measures we consider essential to the well-being of women and children in industry," he said, "are the forty-eight hour a week law and a minimum wage law to secure a living wage to women and children. Past legislatures, listening to the demands of a narrow and reactionary group of employers, have refused to heed the popular will with regard to them. I am sure both measures will be enacted sooner than their opponents believe they will."

Mrs. Maud Swartz, national President of the league, said census figures showed that there are 8,000,000 women workers in the United States.

"We know that the vast majority of these women are not organized," she said. "We know what the industrial conditions are in our huge cities and in the Southern textile district. We know what efforts are being made by employers to break existing trade union organizations and to lower the standards which the workers have carefully built up.

"It is apparent that the work of organization must go forward and that a new emphasis must be put upon the importance of getting women workers to join with the men in demanding an up-to-date trade union agreement under which to work."

Other speakers were Rose Schneiderman, President of the Women's Trade Union League of New York, and Fannie Cohen, Vice President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Today's session will be devoted to committee meetings. A garden party will be given tonight by Mrs. Daniel O'Day at her home at Rye.

RADIO'S RAPID GROWTH.

3,000,000 Listened In on the G. O. P. Convention, It Is Estimated.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—Three million persons in the United States "listened in" on the Republican National Convention at Cleveland by means of the radio, E. B. Mallory, Chairman of the radio section of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies, now in convention at the Ambassador Hotel, said today.

Delegates to the meeting are stressing the possibilities of radio as an educational agent, pointing out that during the Republican Convention many schools discontinued regular classes so that students might receive first-hand knowledge over the radio of how a Presidential candidate is nominated.

BANS TWO CIGAR LABELS.

Federal Board Rules Use of 'Tampa' and 'Havana' Elsewhere Unfair.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The use of the words "Havana" and "Tampa" in connection with the sale of cigars manufactured from tobacco not grown in Cuba and not manufactured in Tampa, Fla., was declared today by the Federal Trade Commission to be an unfair method of competition.

The ruling was made in the case of C. N. Dellinger of Red Lion, Pa., and John M. Thomas of Indianapolis, who were charged with branding cigars "Havana" and "Tampa," which were made in Red Lion of domestic tobacco.

The commission declared the brand "has the tendency and capacity to deceive the purchasing public," and the manufactures were ordered to desist from such practice.

CANADIAN BUSINESS BETTER

OTTAWA, June 16.—Resumption of business on a pre-war scale and a record wheat crop last year increased bank clearings in Canada more than $1,000,000,000 above the 1922 total, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Bank clearings for 1923 were $17,321,503,034. In 1922 they were $16,256,915,313.

Exports of butter from Canada to the United States increased 300 per cent. last year as compared with 1922, the report said, shipments across the border totaling 6,394,927 pounds, valued at $2,418,375.

Exports of butter to all countries the bureau estimated at $5,070,891, while exports of cheese were valued at $23,426,282.

DISPLAY TEXTILE DESIGNS.

An exhibition of designs for different types of work for printed and woven textiles will open today at the Art Centre, 65 East Fifty-sixth Street, and will continue until June 28. It is under the auspices of the Silk Association of America and the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. Seven professional textile designers have furnished designs.

The designs displayed are conventional and original, the former being gracefully varied. One design for a printed couch cover is done in delicate tones on white. There are several Oriental-looking designs, and many new patterns and colorings.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Pickwick Dress Company, Inc., 230 West Thirty-eighth Street, will show its Fall lines for the first time today. The company is made up of M. A. Chaikin, J. A. Chaikin, M. C. Leibowitz and Herman Herzog.

To Try Cooperative Deliveries.

An interesting experiment in cooperative delivery to suburban points is being tried out by several local stores. In the group is a prominent department store, two specialty shops handling women's wear and two well-known men's furnishing concerns. The purpose of the cooperation is to reduce the cost of delivery service to customers in nearby cities and towns, it having been found that the problem could not be solved satisfactorily by the use of the parcel post system. A cooperative organization which will take charge of the deliveries is about to be incorporated at Albany. Four routes are already being covered in New Jersey, and, beginning yesterday, a system of daily deliveries was put into effect. Previously three trips a week had been made. Five other routes, including Long Island and Westchester districts, are also in operation.

Reference Bureau Was Active.

Over 80,000 more references were "cleared" through the bureau of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., during the year ended May 31 than during the year preceding. The year just closed was the third of the bureau's existence. The total clearances for the past year were 187,690, against 158,886 in the year previous and 120,529 in the first year. In the three years the daily average of clearances rose from 402 to 632. During the past year 13,761 special out-of-town reports were prepared. In all three years the largest number of references was cleared in April. The smallest number in the first two years was cleared in August, but last year July proved to be the low month. The largest number of references cleared in any one month was 23,836, which was done in April last.

Blouses to Be More Sombre.

Bright shades will be more or less taboo in Fall blouses, judging from the selections of the Color Committee of the United Waist League of America. Nine colors have been selected for the coming season, and they have been chosen with an eye on their harmonizing with the skirt and suit shades that are expected to lead this Fall. They are fallow, a light tan; Quaker gray; Gobelin, a blue slightly deeper than the regular powder blue; praline, a dark tan; fez, a cardinal hue; fairway, a dark green; Autumn brown, which describes itself, and League rust, a special shade. All but the last are contained in the Fall color card of the Textile Color Card Association. Black has been recommended.

Favor for Flannel Suits.

In the first featuring of Summer suits, flannels have come to the front strongly. To a certain extent they are said to be pushing the tropical worsteds for leadership in this type of Summer merchandise. With favorable weather conditions, retailers are said to expect much of them this season. The suits have been made up in regulation blues and grays and with both wide and narrow pencil stripes. The models are either of the two or three button variety, and, because of the "hang" of the cloth, they are said to tailor well. Both imported and domestic flannel fabrics are being used.

Gray Goods Not Active Here.

Sales of gray goods were not very large in this market yesterday. Some spot lots of 39-inch 68-72 printcloths sold from second hands at 10 cents, and there was also some trading in 38½-inch 64-60s at 9 cents. Second hands would not take less than 7¼ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s, but most of the bids for these goods did not go to 7½. In the heavier cloths there was trading in 37-inch 3.95-yard drills at 10¼ cents and in 40-inch 3.75-yard sheetings at 10¾ cents. Other sheeting business included sales of 5.50s and 6.15s at 7⅞ and 7¼ cents, respectively. The rest of the market was devoid of feature.

Competition Will Be Keen.

In many ways indications point to the coming lightweight season in men's wear goods as one of the most keenly competitive since the depression of 1920. Selling agents are convinced of this, and the reasoning resulting from it may lead many mills to sail on as close a price margin as can be done. This will be particularly noticeable on certain cloths, it is said, where little margin will be afforded. Whether the largest factor in the industry will provide this competition as keenly as it has in the past or whether the smaller mills will set a stiffer pace is now being worked out. It is held that the big company is now on a greater parity with the smaller mills in respect to raw wool than for some time past. In any event, both the big and little mills are expected to take strenuous steps to get business.

Spurt in Straw Hat Sales.

The warm spell yesterday afternoon helped to spur straw hat sales here. The activity has put more optimism into the trade, which admittedly has had one of the most disappointing seasons in years. The question is how much of the "lost" business can be retrieved, and linked up with this is the matter of how long the opening prices will be maintained. It is understood that some sort of understanding puts price cutting off until the second week in July. Whether there will be enough unity to do this remains to be seen. It is considered reasonable, however, that present levels will continue for two weeks more, as retailers unquestionably are desirous of making up as much of the "lost" business as possible at present prices.

Pearl Necklaces the Thing.

A leading house dealing in novelty jewelry and a wide range of similar merchandise for the department store trade believes that necklaces of "indestructible" pearls with imitation emerald "stations" will be popular items for Fall. Its buyer returned from France and reports that Paris has "gone in" for these necklaces strongly. He said high prices were quoted for them there, but copies are being produced here much cheaper. The necklaces come in both short and long strands, the former frequently having emerald pendants. The combination of the green of the imitation emerald with the soft bloom of the pearl, the buyer said, is an effective factor in their predicted popularity. The emeralds have odd tracings on them which have given rise to the term "flawed." The long strands are priced at $42 per dozen and the short ones at $24.

Some Improvement in Furs.

Some improvement in the demand for raw furs is reported in this market, but business is not yet as active as the dealers would like to see it. There is a possibility that after the Montreal auction is completed this week things will pick up, for some handlers of furs are known to have been holding back with a view to the possibility of getting some bargains at the sale. Among the skins that are moving best here at the moment are Southern "rats," raccoons and minks, all of which are selling for coat purposes. Beaver is moving quite freely for use as trimmings, while in the cheaper furs house cat and ringtail cat also are selling for trimmings. Some house cat is also being sheared and used for seal dyeing.

Chinese Laces Are Moving.

Importers of Chinese laces used in the cutting up trades are confident of a better Fall than was the case last year. Dress and other garment manufacturers have already done some sampling and indications, according to the importers, are that orders will be satisfactory. One well-known dealer said yesterday the demand was mainly for insertions of "Irish" filet and antique filet laces, ranging in various widths from one-half to eight inches. White is the color selling, but users are having the laces dipped to any shade they desire. Narrow pleat filets are also moving, as are medallions in square, round or triangular shapes. Competitive prices rule in the buying, although the Chinese primary market is finding an outlet here for practically all it can produce. Some goods are materially lower than they were at the first of the year, while others are on about the same basis.

PUBLISHER VANISHES FROM COUNTRY HOME

Failure of many searching parties to find any trace of Clarence D. Sheldon, 77, a publisher, who lives in Montclair, N. J., and who disappeared from his Summer home near Verbank, Dutchess County, N. Y., last Thursday night, has caused county officials to fear that he has been murdered.

Mr. Sheldon, an enthusiastic lover of nature, left his wife and his two daughters at his home at 4 Llewellyn Road, Montclair, about two weeks ago, to visit his country home in an isolated district between Verbank and Washington Hollow. He was last seen by Susan Perow, a negro woman who was caring for the house, last Thursday. She said that Sheldon left the house about 6 o'clock in the evening. The next day Sheriff Davis of Dutchess County was notified, and a search began in which more than 200 farmers and Boy Scouts took part.

Miss Florence Sheldon, daughter of the missing man, said last night that her father was known to be wealthy, and that he had more than $300 with him when he disappeared. Miss Sheldon said that her father had poor eyesight and sometimes suffered from loss of memory. She feared that he had wandered into the thicket and forgotten the way home.

Miss Sheldon said her father was 5 feet 5 inches in height and weighed 110 pounds. He wore a white beard and was bald, and most of his front teeth were gone, she said. The family has offered a reward for his return. Mr. Sheldon is President of the J. D. Sheldon Publishing Company, 32 Union Square, New York City, and while in New York lived at the Hotel Wolcott.

Cutter Bear Caught in Alaskan Ice.

NOME, Alaska, June 16 (Associated Press).—The veteran cutter Bear of the United States Coast Guard, on her farewell cruise to the Arctic, is in an ice pack drifting through Bering Strait.

CLUE TO MISSING STUDENT.

The body of a young man, believed to have been Christopher G. Gordon, Columbia University student, missing since June 3, was found last night in the water off Rockaway Point by a patrolman of the Harbor Squad. In a pocket of a white belt around the body was a card with the inscription "Christopher Gadsden Gordon, 620 Livingston Hall, Columbia University, New York City." The body was taken to Bennett's Morgue, Rockaway Point.

Young Gordon left Livingston Hall to go bathing at Coney Island. When he failed to return a general alarm was sent out and his father, W. D. Gordon, a bank cashier, hastened here from Charleston, S. C., to aid in the search. About ten days ago two boys playing in the sand at Brighton Beach found a coat, in which was a fountain pen, and a leather belt bearing the initial "G." Mr. Gordon afterward said the pen and belt looked very much like those of his son. Gordon was a first year student at Columbia.

We said we would do it—and we did!

We said we'd create a sensation that would startle dress buyers. We said we would cut up every yard of the huge stock of materials we had on hand. We said we would develop them in styles that were new and different. We said we would price them below ordinary clean-out prices. AND WE DID!

FLUER CREPONGE & PRINTED CANTON CREPES

Styles that will stimulate sales in any store. They are new—seasonable—beautiful! Find out how low the price is. Judge for yourself how fast they will move. Nothing this season to compare with them. But if you want some, you must act right now.

These gorgeous materials alone are worth the rediculously low price we ask. That's why we have been selling thousands each day—with only a limited number more to offer. We are cleaning house because we are moving—to bigger quarters, in The Bricken Arcade.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The week began on all financial markets with the exceptionally easy money rates the controlling influence. In recent years, so large a shifting of credit funds as occurred in connection with yesterday's Government operations always had visible effect on the money market; the quarterly readjustments frequently bringing the Stock Exchange money rate to 6 per cent. Payments which yesterday had to be provided for, on account of maturing short-term Treasury indebtedness and interest on the public debt, involved $521,000,000, and they were not fully covered by the $193,000,000 subscription to the new 3½ per cents., the $68,000,000 British debt instalment, and the reduced quarterly income tax collections; so that the large transactions should have had the effect of increasing supplies of available funds on the general money market.

It was entirely natural, therefore, that despite this large shifting of credits the Wall Street money rate should have been even more favorable to borrowers than before. The markets for securities moved accordingly; they were evidently subject to no other influence. Among the Liberty bonds, the fourth 4¼ per cents., always typical because their outstanding total is double that of any other, rose to a new high figure of their history. In domestic company bonds the upward trend was visible again, though with somewhat less uniformity than last week, but meantime foreign bonds were extremely strong.

Several of these securities went to prices not equaled since 1922, a number of them scoring an advance of a point or more for the day. This movement, remarkable but in the light of the money market not illogical, is perhaps the most impressive of all present indications of financial tendencies. In particular, it shows that last year's reaction in these foreign bonds was by no means wholly a measure of the American investor's returning distrust of Europe. The home trade revival of 1923 played its part in diverting from such investments to commercial purposes the capital which had turned to them during the period of slack trade in the first half of 1922. Apparently it is now going back again.

Notwithstanding a good many realising sales, the stock market also made another forward movement, the "averages" at one time standing barely half a point below the highest of the year to date, reached more than four months ago. But the day's noteworthy advances were mostly in the speculative industrial stocks; the others ended as a rule below the best, some of them at net declines. Without any reference to the money market, rates for sterling and francs advanced, the franc in particular passing the 5½-cent line, as against its price of less than 5 a week and a half ago. The interesting fact in that market is the testimony of the financial cables that this recovery has occurred without the help of the Bank of France.

None of the day's various advances in prices was more striking than the rise of wheat, which reached a figure on the Chicago market 1¾ cents per bushel above last week's closing and the highest since May of 1923. The wheat market's upward movement, which now amounts to 12 cents in the past fortnight, is fairly explainable by the sudden awakening of the grain trade from its recent mood of unqualified pessimism to the appreciation that the sweeping cut in American acreage may have more effect on the world's grain market situation than had been imagined. We shall doubtless presently hear from some quarters that the piling up of gold in our bank reserve is now beginning to create the predicted "inflation of prices." If so, its effects have thus far been curiously distributed; for among the commodities, wheat as yet stands almost alone in its response, and the wheat situation is admittedly exceptional.

MONEY.

MONDAY, JUNE 16, 1924.

About the only change that developed over the week was the rather firm tone noted in both call and time money markets. Rates held as previously, but with increased demand, especially for day to day accommodation, and lenders were not as free with their offerings as hitherto. There was some heavy calling as well, approximately $22,000,000 representing day's business, with little or nothing left unloaned. The quotation prevailed at 2 per cent. throughout. Time money likewise was unchanged in quotation, with actual business small. Paper brokers reported increased distribution of names at 4 per cent., with some offerings at 3¾, for which there was no demand. Market is barren of bills, brokers' portfolios being only scantily filled.

London Market.

Money in London unchanged at 1½ per cent.; short bills unchanged at 2 15-16@3 per cent.; three months' bills unchanged at 2 15-16@3 per cent.

Gold bullion 2d. lower at 95s 5d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a London price of 112¼. Highest for the year to date, 115 1-3, on Jan. 21; lowest, 110⅝, on April 23. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149¾, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 103⅞, on Feb. 21, 1923.

NEW CUTS IN OIL PRICES.

Corning Crude Down 25 Cents a Barrel and Wooster 16 Cents.

Two further reductions in crude oil prices, rumors of other reductions and reports of decreases in production were developments in the oil industry yesterday. Corning crude was reduced 25 cents a barrel to $1.90, while the Ohio Oil Company cut the price of Wooster crude 15 cents to $2 a barrel.

Reports that reductions would take place shortly in the Wyoming and Montana fields could not be confirmed. The news reached the market that there had been curtailment of production in the mid-continent fields.

Production in the Los Angeles basin fell off 7,600 barrels daily during the week ended June 14. Of twenty-three permits for new wells in the Southern California fields issued last week, fifteen were for Torrance, and practically all of the leading companies were represented. Daily production on the Gulf Coast and in the important Texas pools showed a slight decline from the previous week.

POWER LUNCHEON ON SHIP.

Experts to Be Entertained on Scythia Before Leaving for London.

Between 150 and 200 men, representing every phase of the American power industry, will attend a luncheon on the Cunarder Scythia tomorrow, preliminary to the departure on Thursday of the American delegates to the World Power Conference to held in London this month.

Fred R. Low, editor of Power, will be toastmaster, and addresses will be made by S. Z. Mitchell, President of the Electric Bond and Share Company, supervisors of extensive public utility properties in this country; Henry J. Pierce, President of the Washington Irrigation and Development Company; H. I. Harriman, President of the New England Power Company; John W. Lieb, Vice President of the New York Edison Company; Calvin Rice, Secretary of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; D. B. Rushmore, consulting engineer of the General Electric Company, and Calvert Townley, assistant to the President of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Rise in Stocks Continues, But Irregularly

Despite the fact that the upward movement in the railroad stocks halted yesterday, the market, as a whole, as was shown by the averages, again moved upward. This is the eighth consecutive day on which the averages for fifty stocks gained ground. Trading continued active, and interest extended to stocks which heretofore have been virtually neglected, especially in the coppers and motors. The outstanding feature of any one group of stocks yesterday was the rapid rise in the public utility issues, many of which rose to new high records for the current year to date. Another significant feature was the display of strength in the petroleum issues, due to more favorable developments in this industry, as a result of better weather conditions and contemplated curtailment of production in the mid-continent and further decline in output in California and Texas last week. Copper stocks reflected a firmer tone for the red metal, while sugar stocks, although quiet, were firm as a result of higher prices for this commodity. The recovery in the motors was believed to be chiefly due to pool operations.

Melt in the Railway Shares.

For the first time in many days the average of railway share prices yesterday showed a decline rather than an advance. This was not caused by weakness in any particular stock, but by a general though slight recession throughout the list, caused by a wave of profit taking, according to some of the close followers of the market. During the later days of last week the railway averages continued to reach new high records for the year so persistently that many Wall Street observers took the view that a temporary halt was inevitable, and acted accordingly.

The Question of "Market Leadership."

In all active markets of the past decade, whether they were declining or advancing, there has been some one outstanding individual to whom Wall Street could look for leadership. This, however, has not appeared to be the case in the current market, which has now been going up rapidly for eight consecutive days. If statements made in quarters which are supposed to know are correct the professional operator who has been looked upon as the speculative leader is adhering to the short side of the market, his stand being based upon the fact that general business conditions now are better than they were two weeks ago when the market was still declining. The group which he represents insists that the current rise is based solely upon technical conditions, and that when the short interest is entirely eliminated the market will again react; in fact they say that the current rise is nothing more than a rally in a declining market. All inhabitants of the financial district know that the turn of the market came when the Reserve Bank made its second reduction in rates and several of the larger commission houses turned to the side of rising prices. This, it is thought, might conceivably present the not wholly unfamiliar case of the public against the professionals.

Demand for Tax-Exempt Bonds.

Another quick sale of a large bond issue was effected yesterday when the new $35,000,000 Federal Land Bank securities were placed on the market, and announcement sent out of their oversubscription a few moments after the opening of subscription books. According to bond dealers, the demand for tax exempt securities has as yet shown no indications of exhausting itself, and although close to one-half of a billion dollars of new securities, both taxable and non-taxable, have been offered in the last four weeks, the demand was said still to outrun the supply. An indication of this fact was furnished, so bankers attested, in the open market quotations for the new Farm Loan bonds; they were quoted at a premium.

Varying Views on a Reaction.

When the current rally in stock market prices began early last week it was generally expected that a reaction would follow within a few days and not all of the so-called constructive interests were entirely satisfied that the new start upward would prove to be more than a flash in the pan. In this connection it was interesting to note yesterday the revisions in forecasts made by some of the "market letter writers" who were fortunate enough to call the turn during the preceding week. Some held that a reaction must be imminent, quickly to be followed by another advance, but there were quite a number who apparently came to the conclusion that the advancing market was "correcting" itself on each succeeding day. Certain groups, it was suggested, have reacted from time to time, but while this so-called corrective process was going on, the leadership was assigned to some other group, and in this way practically all groups have been able to keep their technical positions sound, although the average of fifty stocks as a whole has been steadily moving forward.

The British Debt Payment.

There was no element of surprise in the fact that Great Britain paid yesterday its semi-annual instalment of interest due under the terms of the funding agreement underlying its debt to the United States, but considerable interest was shown as to the manner in which the payment was actually made. Complete information was lacking and, it was explained, there would be no elucidation of the process until the Treasury Department saw fit to make it public; but enough facts were gleaned to show that the whole proposition was largely a bookkeeping operation. The fiscal agent for the British Government, J. P. Morgan & Co., gave its check to the First National Bank, which is a member of the Federal Reserve system; received in turn a check from the national institution, and then turned this over to the Reserve bank, together with a small amount of Treasury certificates. The Reserve bank, in turn, gave its receipt for the Treasury Department, and within a very few moments the process, involving nearly $60,000,000, was terminated.

Speculative Public Utilities.

Taken as a class, the gains established by the public utility and allied manufacturing corporation stocks have been the most spectacular of the year to date. Wall Street men who are prone to look upon the shares of the light and power companies as non-speculative in the ordinary sense have had some difficulty in adjusting this view to the facts of the present stock market. Yesterday's trading provided additional evidence of this, a number of the same stocks that were taken hold of two or three weeks ago being again the centre of the market's interest so far as utility issues were concerned. General Electric, whose "chart" is more difficult to trace than that of any of the regular industrial shares because of the sharp rises and falls, went to a new high poinnt of 234¼ yesterday and closed at a net gain of five points. Consolidated Gas went to a new high at 66, while further gains were also made by American Gas and Electric and Public Service of New Jersey. General Gas and Electric advanced ten points to a new high. Two weeks ago the prediction was heard that the advances that had then set in would not continue.

Odd Lots

By purchasing 10 shares of stock of the leading companies in 10 diversified industries, greater margin of safety is obtained than by purchasing 100 shares of any one issue.

Adverse conditions may arise in which any industry might be affected, but it is unlikely that the ten industries would be affected simultaneously.

Beginning March 22, 1923, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty Bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

BILLION DOLLAR DAY FOR U. S. TREASURY

Receipts Total About $487,000,000 and the Expenditures About $521,000,000.

BRITISH PAY $69,000,000

Check for $50,000,000 Figures in Settlement of Interest Due on War Debt.

Yesterday was a billion-dollar business day for the United States Treasury Department. Receipts were about $487,000,000 and expenditures $521,000,000. The entire operation required little more labor than that of keeping books, and the work was done primarily through the twelve Federal Reserve banks, the New York institution attending to the bulk of the work.

The credits and debits for the day showed about the following income and expenditures:

INCOME.

British debt payment	$69,000,000
Paid on new certificates	193,000,000
Tax payments	225,000,000

EXPENDITURE.

Maturing certificates	$134,000,000
Maturing Treasury notes	311,000,000

In striking the balance, the Treasury Department dipped into its reserve funds, of which it had ample to meet the day's requirements and also to take care of demands until next Sept. 15. A large part of the maturing paper was changed for the new issue of certificates and comparatively little actual cash figured in the day's adjustments. The entire operation had no effect on the money market.

The British debt payment was made soon after the opening of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for the day's business, and for the first time since the debt-funding agreement went into effect, the payment was made principally through a check. Heretofore, Great Britain has defrayed its interest charges through the surrender at par of Liberty bonds purchased at discounts ranging from 1 to 2 points. The check was made out to the First National Bank, a member of the Federal Reserve system, by J. P. Morgan & Co., who received in return a check from the national institution which Morgan & Co. endorsed over to the Federal Reserve Bank.

The check was reported to have been for $50,000,000, and the balance of $19,000,000 was paid in the form of Treasury certificates. J. P. Morgan & Co. served in this instance as fiscal agent of the British Government and the Federal Reserve Bank as the representative of the United States Treasury. The First National Bank was an intermediary because it had balances with the Federal Reserve Bank, whereas Morgan & Co. did not.

The British Government's next payment on its American debt will be on Dec. 15 when, in addition to the semi-annual interest charge of more than $68,000,000, it will also pay $23,000,000 on the principal.

SEES END OF HIGH SUGAR.

Federal Co. Says World Conditions Make for Lower Prices.

The day of high-priced sugar is over unless there is another World War, in the opinion of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, after a survey of probable world sugar conditions during the rest of the year and in 1925. The company figures that Europe during the coming season will produce at least enough for its own needs, and that Cuba will be left with the United States as its only market and with excess production.

"There will, therefore, be over 1,000,000 tons of surplus sugar this Fall, and nearly 2,000,000 tons in the Fall of 1925, even under the most favorable conditions of consumption," says the company, which explains that the principal reason for excess sugar is that cane sugar-producing countries, particularly Cuba, made rapid gains during the war emergency when Russia, Germany and Austria could not produce and export their usual large supplies.

James on Great Northern Board.

Arthur Curtiss James has been elected a director of the Great Northern Railway. His acceptance will depend upon the ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission as he is a director of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. Mr. James recently resigned from the Northern Pacific.

ADIRONDACK POWER INCOME

Gross Earnings for May Exceed Those of a Year Ago.

Gross revenue of the Adirondack Power and Light Corporation for May was $556,969, compared with $538,207 in May, 1923; gross income was $220,290, against $206,353 and net income $103,047, against $112,734, a decrease of $9,186. Net for the five months ended with May was $560,718, an increase of $99,711 over the same period last year, while for the twelve months ended May 31 net income increased $217,948 over the preceding year, or 39.22 per cent.

The Middle West Utilities Company in a letter accompanying dividend checks mailed yesterday to 18,219 stockholders said that the readjustment of capitalization accomplished four years ago had resulted in larger earnings than had been estimated.

New Offering

Kentucky Hydro Electric Company

(Controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company)

First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds, Series A

Due June 1, 1949

Interest payable June 1 and December 1, at the office of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., in Chicago and New York. Coupon Bonds, denominations $1,000, $500 and $100. The Company will agree to reimburse the holders of Series A Bonds if requested within 60 days after payment for the Pennsylvania and Connecticut 4 Mills and Maryland 4½ Mills Taxes, and for the District of Columbia Personal Property Taxes not exceeding 5 Mills per dollar per annum, and for the Massachusetts Income Tax on the interest of the Bonds not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum.

A SINKING FUND PAYABLE THROUGH HALSEY, STUART & CO., INC., SINKING FUND AGENT, IS PROVIDED FOR SERIES A BONDS BEGINNING JUNE 1, 1930, WHICH IS CALCULATED TO RETIRE PRIOR TO MATURITY 25% OF THE PRESENT ISSUE.

For detailed information regarding the Company and these Bonds, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Martin J. Insull, President of the Company, from which the following is summarized:

Plant: A 22,500 Kw. hydro-electric generating station is being built on a site owned by the Company situated on the Dix River near its confluence with the Kentucky River about 20 miles southwest of Lexington, and 65 miles southeast of Louisville, Kentucky. About 45 percent of the construction has been finished and the completion of the entire project is looked for about January 1, 1925.

The Company is well along with the building of 95 miles of double circuit, 66,000 volt steel tower transmission line connecting with the transmission lines of the Interstate Public Service Company at the Ohio River in the vicinity of Louisville, Kentucky, and with those of the Lexington Utilities Company, at Lexington, Kentucky.

Territory: The Dix River hydro plant, owing to its operating characteristics, will, when completed, occupy a very important place in the generation of electrical energy for a super-power system connecting Indianapolis, Louisville, and Lexington with the southeastern Kentucky coal fields.

Security: A direct obligation of the Company and, in opinion of counsel, a direct first mortgage on all of its permanent property and rights now owned, or hereafter acquired with the proceeds of First Mortgage Bonds.

Valuation: Cost of the completed project with 22,500 Kw. capacity and about 95 miles of transmission line, exclusive of plant and dam sites and flowage rights valued at $1,500,000, is estimated at over $6,250,000 against which no additional Bonds may be issued. The contracts referred to below will be pledged under the Mortgage as additional security for Bonds issued thereunder.

Middle West Utilities Company which through subsidiaries serves one or more classes of public utility service to 806 communities, located in 15 states of the Union, with an estimated population of 1,895,500, has obligated itself to furnish any additional funds required to complete the project as above described through the purchase of additional capital stock of the Kentucky Hydro Electric Company. It will contract to cause a sufficient amount of electric energy generated by the station to be purchased during the life of these Bonds at rates sufficient to pay operating expenses, including maintenance, taxes and depreciation and the interest on these Bonds. It will also contract to cause the prompt payment of the Sinking Fund for Series A Bonds.

Examining Your Investments

Number Five

Suitability of the Security to the Needs of the Investor

There is a form of security which best meets the requirements of each class of investor. We often find an investor holding tax-exempt or legal bonds which command a relatively high price because of features from which he derives no benefit. It is obvious, therefore, that an increase in income is obtainable by exchanging such securities for investments of equal merit but better adapted to the individual's needs.

Your list should be regularly reviewed that such a condition may be revealed and corrected so as to obtain the maximum earning power from your investments.

Do You Want A Bond You Can Buy and Forget?

THE advice, often heard, to have your securities examined by specialists periodically is sound—if you have the kind that need examination.

But if you own Secured Serial 6% Gold Bonds of this Investment Company there is no cause for post-purchase investigations and hasty "switches". By its nature, the security behind them is as strong today as it was last week, last month and a year ago, always valued much higher than the par value of outstanding Bonds.

TO OFFER SHARES OF RAILROAD TRUST

Banking Syndicate Organizes the United American Railways, Inc.

HAS INTEREST IN 17 ROADS

Certificates to Be Put Out at About $14 Per Unit—Expected to Yield 7 Per Cent.

Stock certificates representing an interest in seventeen large railroad systems will be offered shortly by a banking syndicate headed by Bonner, Brooks & Co. of New York and Boston, and an offering will be made simultaneously in England by the British and General Debenture Trust of London. The offering will be made in connection with the organization of the United American Railways, Inc., which will issue its securities under the investment trust plan in force in England for many years. The certificates, which will be offered on the basis of about $14 per unit, will be issued in denominations of 5, 10, 25, 50 and 100 share certificates. The yield will be about 7 per cent., based upon the expected offering price.

The certificates will be secured by stock of the Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Central of New Jersey, Chesapeake & Ohio, Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson, Illinois Central, Lehigh Valley, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Norfolk & Western, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Reading, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. These seventeen roads, which own or operate 94,828 miles of track, report, according to the bankers, aggregated surplus and reserves of $2,597,042,640 and total assets of $11,502,476,816. They reported net income of $377,614,208 in 1923 and their dividends amounted to $210,717,770.

Against 115 shares of stock of the above companies, the United American Railways, Inc., will issue $10,000 par value of bankers' shares. The stocks securing the bankers' shares have been deposited with the Empire Trust Company, as trustee, and the security back of the shares cannot be substituted during the life of the company.

LAUD GERMAN BANK POLICY.

Bankers Here Pleased by Statements of Dr. Schacht Made in Interview.

Bankers expressed pleasure yesterday with the positive statement of policy for the new central bank of Germany, to be organized under the Dawes plan, as it was outlined yesterday in an interview by Dr. Schacht, head of the new German gold discount bank. Dr. Schacht said the new German currency would be on a gold basis, thus linking it with the American dollar or the units of other nations that are on a gold basis, and denied that the new money of Germany would be tied to the pound sterling, which, he said, was unstable, and until it was again placed on a gold basis could not so serve.

The interview took on an added interest in view of the recent controversy over the report made by the Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Board, which emphasized the need of keeping German trade avenues open through the establishment in this country of ample credits for German industries and banks. It also stressed the possibility of America losing its present trade advantages through the substitution of the pound sterling for the dollar. The Government institution is not in a position to take an active part in the conquest for German trade to arise once the reparations problem is solved and, so bankers explained, the issue was left squarely before financiers acting as individuals and not with Government backing.

In this connection it was shown that much progress has been made. The original credit established here for the new Schacht bank, which will eventually be absorbed by the new central bank as envisaged in the Dawes report, was $5,000,000. This amount was increased last week to $25,000,000 and, while United States Government activity in the competition was not practicable as in the case of the British Government, the new trade bills have been made eligible for purchase by the Federal Reserve Banks. The American credit, it was said, would benefit Germany only from the standpoint of its foreign trade, the importers and exporters being enabled to keep their business going until the establishment of the new German central bank and a new gold currency.

TURKISH OIL RIGHTS OPEN.

No Restriction as to Nationalities, Says American Concessionaire.

There need be no international financial struggle for possession of oil rights in the rich Turkish fields, according to Henry Woodhouse, Managing Director of the Ottoman American Development Company.

"There is no restriction whatsoever to British and French participation in the oil fields of Mosul, Zakko, Bitlis, Van, Erzeroum and Trebizond, which are estimated to have a potentiality of from four to eight billion barrels," he said yesterday at his office, 280 Madison Avenue. "In granting a concession covering these six oil fields to the Ottoman American Development Company in April, a year ago, the Turkish Government did not in any way place restrictions as to the nationalities that can participate in developing these oil fields."

CONSOLIDATED GAS PLANS.

Initial Issue of $30,000,000 Likely for the Year's Financing.

The proposed financing by the Consolidated Gas Company to meet the current year's construction budget probably will not exceed $30,000,000 for the initial issue and will consist of short-term notes, although the budget which amounts to $60,000,000 very likely will entail further financing before the year is over.

It is understood that the offering of $30,000,000 will be made before Fall. It is definitely stated that the issue will no consist of bonds or stock.

INSPECT LINE TO BE LEASED.

Pennsylvania Railroad Officials Go Over Norfolk & Western.

Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad, accompanied by several officials, including President Samuel Rea, Vice President A. J. Country, Vice President H. C. Tatnall and M. C. Kennedy, made a trip of inspection over the line of the Norfolk & Western Railroad yesterday. This trip was interpreted as a step toward the leasing of the Norfolk & Western by the Pennsylvania. Committees have been appointed by both railroads to negotiate the lease.

Road to Guarantee Bonds.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Great Northern Railway Company today received authority from the Interstate Commerce Commission to assume obligation and liability as guarantor in respect of $4,400,000 of Western Fruit Express Company equipment trust certificates to be issued by the First National Bank of the City of New York.

Gold holdings this month are the largest ever recorded. The largest total stock of money was $8,977,466,556, on Jan. 1, 1924.

London and Paris Steady—Sterling Falls Sharply at Paris.

LONDON, June 16.—Prices were firm on the Stock Exchange today with the exception of oil shares, which were easy. Old 2½ per cent. consols, ⅜ higher at 57½; British 5 per cent. war loan, ⅛ higher at 101⅛; 4½ per cent. war loan, unchanged at 97⅝.

PARIS, June 16.— Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rents, 45 centimes lower at 53 francs 20 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan, 35 centimes higher at 68 francs 15 centimes.

Exchange on London declined 2 francs 10 centimes to 78 francs 50 centimes per sovereign; the American dollar was quoted at 18 francs 17 centimes, against 18.57½ last week.

GENERAL MOTORS CHANGES.

Reduction in the Common Stock Approved by Stockholders.

Stockholders of the General Motors Corporation at a special meeting in Wilmington, Del., yesterday approved certain changes in the charter of the company calling for a reduction in the number of shares of the company's common stock outstanding and also for simplification of the capital structure of the organization.

As a result the company will issue 5,161,600 shares of new common stock in exchange for the 20,646,400 shares of no par value common stock now outstanding. One share of the new will be given for each four shares now held.

The amendments also call for the consolidation of the three issues of senior stocks now outstanding into one issue of 7 per cent. preferred. Under the plan proposed by the management, holders of the present 6 per cent. preferred stock and 6 per cent. debenture stock may exchange their holdings for the new 7 per cent. preferred stock upon payment of an additional $10 for each share of stock now held. Holders of the present 7 per cent. debenture stock may exchange their holdings on a share for share basis for the new 7 per cent. preferred stock.

The amendments also provide for an authorized capital common stock issue of 10,000,000 shares, of which 5,161,600 shares will be outstanding, and 15,760,844 shares of 7 per cent. preferred stock, of which 1,000,160 shares will be outstanding.

SEEK HIGHER COMMISSIONS.

Brokers Propose Increase of $5 a Hundred on Shares Up to $75.

The report of the special committee representing New York Stock Exchange firms which advocate an upward adjustment of commission rates is expected to be voted upon by the Board of Governors soon.

The proposed rates, it is said, are as follows: $7.50 per hundred shares for stock selling between $1 and $10 per share, $12.50 per hundred for stocks above $10 and up to $25, $15 per hundred for stocks above $25 and up to $75, $20 per hundred for stocks above $75 and up to $125, and $25 per hundred for all stocks above $125. This is an increase of $5 a hundred on all stocks selling at or above $75 a share.

The increase in commission rates will affect chiefly the more active stocks listed on the Exchange, such as American Can, United States Steel Common, Baldwin, American Locomotive, Norfolk & Western, General Electric and other active favorites, all of which are now selling above $75.

AMERICAN WATER WORKS.

Earned $13.35 a Share Last Fiscal Year, Against Previous $9.40.

The American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., reported yesterday a balance, after charges and depreciation, for the year ended April 30 of $3,305,160, equivalent, after first preferred dividends, to $13.35 a share on the 100,000 shares of common stock and 100,000 shares of participating preferred outstanding. This compares with $2,315,839, or $9.40 a share on the same amount of common and participating preferred for the period ended April 30, 1923.

Gross earnings of $37,886,140, compared with $29,901,007 in 1923, a gain of $7,985,132; while net, after operating expenses and taxes, was $16,377,462, against $12,690,007 the year before, an increase of $3,687,365. Electric output totaled over 1,120,000,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 203,737,000 kilowatt hours over the preceding year.

INQUIRE FOR LOCOMOTIVES.

Railroads Now Are in the Market for No Less Than 120.

A revived interest in the purchase of new equipment has resulted in inquiries in the market for no less than 120 locomotives, it was reported in railroad circles yesterday. One large system was interested in more than one-third of the total amount, a Southeastern railroad wants twenty-five, and Western and New England lines are also in the market.

Officials of some roads take the position, however, that the trend of traffic and the condition of the present equipment on their lines is such that few orders will be placed in the next few months. An official of a large Southeastern railroad said yesterday that his company was not intending to make any purchases this year.

Banker Back From Europe.

LIFE INSURANCE RECORD.

This Year to Exceed the Banner 1923, 40 Companies Say.

Despite the slowing down in various national industries, life insurance is being bought at a greater rate this year than in 1923, which year broke all prior records.

Six per cent. more life insurance was bought in May of this year than May of last year, while 6 per cent. more was bought in the first five months of this year than in the corresponding period of 1923, according to a report of new business, on paid-for basis, forwarded yesterday by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents to the United States Department of Commerce at Washington. Those figures are the aggregate of reports from 40 member companies having in force 17 per cent. of all legal reserve life insurance carried by United States companies.

It is shown that the total new paid-for life insurance, exclusive of revivals, increases and dividend additions bought from those 40 companies during the five months of 1924 amounted to $3,491,000,000. This is an increase of 3.3 per cent. over the same period of 1923 when the amount was $3,195,000,000, which in turn was an increase of 22.4 per cent. over the amount of the five months of 1922.

The amount during each month of 1924 exceeded the amount during the same month of 1923, although by varying percentages, and the amount during each month of 1923 exceeded the amount during its corresponding month of 1922.

The growth was reflected in each class. New ordinary business during the first five months of 1924 was $2,566,662,000 as against $2,352,382,000 in 1923 and $1,942,876,000 in 1922. New industrial business for 1924 totalled $312,500,000, as against $733,721,000 in 1923 and $596,605,000 in 1922. New group business in 1924 amounted to $106,000,000, as against $106,700,000 in 1923 and $70,547,000 in 1922. Percentage increases in 1924 over 1923 were: Ordinary, 9.2 per cent.; Industrial, 10.6 per cent. and Group, 3 per cent. Increases in 1923 over 1922 were: Ordinary, 21.1 per cent.; Industrial, 23.5 per cent. and Group, 51.3 per cent.

Directors' Meeting Is Postponed.

The meeting of directors of the United Alloy Steel Corporation, scheduled for yesterday at Canton, Ohio, was postponed until Wednesday.

LAND BANK BONDS QUICKLY ABSORBED

$35,000,000 Disposed Of Soon After Subscription Books Were Opened.

KENTUCKY POWER ISSUE

Hydroelectric Company's $4,000,000 Six Per Cents Offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc.

Offering of the new issue of $35,000,000 of Federal Land Bank bonds was quickly absorbed yesterday and the books were closed a few moments after the bonds were offered. Buying was chiefly for large institutions and an evidence of the strength of this demand was furnished in the open market where the bonds commanded a premium.

Further reflection of the continued demand for bonds, both of new and old issues, was afforded in the advance of foreign Government bonds. Reports from Europe indicated that Great Britain and France were in accord, and with Germany on record as approving the Dawes report, investors showed less fear of foreign securities. French Government bonds advanced briskly to new high levels for the year.

With the calendar of investment bankers showing little new business in sight for the accounts of States and municipalities, underwriting houses focused attention on the action of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who authorized yesterday the sale of $15,000,000 of highway bonds by that State. These bonds will comprise part of a total authorized issue of $50,000,000 of bonds, proceeds to be used for highway purposes. The State of Pennsylvania will place the initial instalment on sale on July 22, and a number of New York syndicates will enter bids. The bonds will bear 4¼ per cent. coupons.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., are offering $4,000,000 Kentucky Hydroelectric Company first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, series A, due June 1, 1949, at 94 and interest. A sinking fund is provided beginning June 1, 1930, whereby 25 per cent. of the issue can be retired prior to maturity. The Kentucky Hydroelectric Company is one of the subsidiaries of the Middle West Utilities Company which serves 806 communities in 15 States.

Eldredge & Co. are offering a new issue of $3,000,000 City of Dallas, Texas, gold 4½ per cent. waterworks bonds due $75,000 a year July 1, 1925 to 1964 inclusive, at prices to yield 4 per cent. for 1925 maturity, 4.25 per cent. for maturities 1926 to 1927, 4.35 per cent. for maturities 1928 to 1929, 4.45 per cent. 1930 to 1944, and 4.40 per cent. for maturities 1945 to 1964. The bonds are legal investments for savings banks in New York and Connecticut.

An offering of $2,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. serial coupon gold loan of the Waitt Operating Company, Inc., is being made today by S. W. Straus & Co. The security consists of the land, and the present fifteen-story Weylin Apartment Hotel with a fifteen-story addition to be erected at Madison Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, New York. Coupons are payable June 2 and Dec. 2.

The National City Company is offering a new issue of $1,250,000 Northern Ohio Traction and Light Company general and refunding mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, series due 1926, at 99 and interest. The company does an electric light and power business in Akron, Ohio, and surrounding territory, besides owning and operating a system of city and interurban railways in the Cleveland-Akron-Canton industrial section.

The Lawyers' Mortgage Company is offering a new issue of $215,000 guaranteed first mortgage certificates, maturing Nov. 15, 1929. They are secured by the land and building at the southeast corner of 171st Street and Wythe Place, the Bronx, and yield 5½ per cent.

The Hibernia Securities Company, Inc., is offering $164,000 City of Atlanta, Ga., 5 per cent. serial street improvement bonds, due 1926 to 1933, at prices to yield 4.20 to 4.25 per cent.

Horwitz & Co. are offering $150,000 City of Galveston, Texas 5 per cent. water bonds, trade raising and street improvement bonds, maturing serially from 1930 to 1960, to yield 4.90 per cent.

A. B. Leach Co. are offering a new issue of $220,000 Marion County, Ore., school district bonds, due serially 1925 to 1934, at prices yielding 4.40 and 4.60 per cent. The district includes Salem, the State capital.

EDMUND & JONES DIVIDEND.

Extra Payment of 50 Cents on Common Is Announced.

Directors of the Edmund & Jones Corporation declared yesterday an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents a share; also the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock, all three dividends being payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

According to advices from Boston, the Laconia Car Company has resumed dividend payments by declaring a return of $3.50 a share on the first preferred stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 24. This dividend covers the payment for the six months ended July 1.

Directors of the State Bank have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent. on the capital stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank has declared a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum for the period ending July 1. The bank now pays interest on monthly balances. Its assets are more than $270,000,000.

General Electric Trolley Orders.

Orders have been placed by the Detroit Street Railways for seventy-five new cars for general service, the motors and control apparatus to be furnished by the General Electric Company. The Chicago Surface Lines will get 100 new cars to be operated in two-car trains, designed for one-man or two-man operation. The electrical equipment for these will also be supplied by the General Electric Company.

Gen. Harries Heads San Diego Gas.

General George H. Harries, Vice President of Byllesby & Co., has taken charge temporarily of the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric Company, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. H. Jones. Mr. Jones was recently elected Vice President in charge of operation of the Northern States Power Company.

Continental Gas and Electric.

The Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, which controls the Kansas City Power and Light Company and other utility properties in the Central West, reports gross earnings of $12,733,359 for the year ended April 30, against $11,721,806 for the preceding year, while net earnings were $5,562,483 compared with $4,873,839.

Phone Stocks Listed on Curb.

The New York Curb Market has admitted to trading 1,000,000 authorized shares capital stock, par value $100, of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, also 200,000 authorized shares of capital stock, par value $100, of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling and the Francs Higher on Basis of Strong Foreign Covering Movement.

Mainly as a result of speculative covering movement abroad, which brought higher cables for sterling and the francs, trading in these bills featured yesterday's market for European exchanges. There was a decidedly firm undertone for these documents throughout, and while for a time after the preliminary business profit-taking canceled part of the opening gains a recovery near the close returned these bills to approximately the day's best levels. Continentals displayed a softer tone, however, Holland, Italian, Spanish and the Scandinavians shading previous rates.

The improvement was put down to the progress which has been made in the status of the French political situation, and to the approaching conference between Premiers MacDonald and Herriot. Business in sterling started at ½ cent gain, at $4.32, the demand carrying it ¾ cent higher, from which point it eased a fraction. Paris checks opened 17⅝ points up, at 5.05½ cents, got up to 5.07¾ before it was shaded to 5.48½, with a 4-point improvement upon this at the close. Brussels rose 16 points to 4.81½ cents. After showing a decline of 2 points, at 4.30¼ cents, Italian recovered to 4.33¾. Indian rupee advanced ⅛ to 30.63 cents, with Japanese and Chinese bills strong.

Copper Market Advances.

The copper market started the week with a sharp advance, sellers taking contracts at 12¾ cents a pound, delivered. This represents an advance of between ⅛ and ¼ of a cent a pound from the close of last week. Buying is reported as larger than in several weeks past on account of a strong domestic demand.

BIG SILVER BUYING CREDITED TO RUSSIA

PAYING FOR IT IN GOLD

Far Eastern buying of American silver, which has kept quotations firm for several months, gave rise yesterday to the report that Soviet Russia was aggressively in the market for the metal. According to this report, the silver was being shipped via the Pacific into Russia and minted there.

Secrecy has surrounded Eastern purchases and bullion dealers said they could only speculate as to the source of the buying. A number said they thought the buying was for India and China, and others that it was of Russian origin. Interest was stimulated in the question because of the recent activity of Romanoff rubles, buying of which was supposedly for the account of Japanese speculators.

Russian activity in the last few months has attracted much attention. Its purchases of cotton have been heavier so far this year than in any corresponding period since the start of the war, and almost as large as in the pre-war years. The total for 1924 is expected to reach $100,000,000. The significant thing, according to bankers, has been the fact that Russia is paying for these purchases with gold.

Buying of silver by the Far Eastern countries also has been with gold, but whether this was Russian gold was a question dealers could not tell. The Russian trade balance has been favorable this year, it was pointed out, and through an excess of exports over imports it would be possible for her to accumulate gold. Silver quotations are now close to the year's high of 67½ cents reached on June 3 last.

GIVER PAYS TAX ON GIFT.

The tax on gifts of more than $50,000, imposed under the new law recently adopted by Congress the legality of which is questioned by some prominent lawyers, must be paid by the donor and not the recipient, according an analysis of the Federal income tax law just compiled by W. C. Langley & Co. For 1924 and each year thereafter, says the review, a tax is imposed upon the transfer of property by gift, whether directly or indirectly, an exemption of $50,000 being allowed in determining the net amount of gifts taxable, in addition to usual gifts for religious and other purposes. The tax on gifts above $50,000 is on a sliding scale ranging from 1 to 40 per cent.

The review calls attention to the fact that the method of determining the profit and loss from the sale of securities or other property acquired before March 1, 1913, has again been changed, the basis being the cost of such property or the fair market value as of March 1, 1913, whichever is greater. Capital net gain and capital net loss under the new law applies only to property held for more than two years. In the case where a taxpayer has a capital net gain, he has the option of being taxed at the regular normal and surtax rates on his total net income, or of separating the ordinary net income, paying the regular rates thereon, plus 12½ per cent. on the capital net gain.

GRAIN EXPORTS SMALL.

Shipments Last Week Hardly One-fourth of Week Preceding.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Exports of grain from the United States last week totaled 868,000 bushels, against 3,347,000 bushels for the week before.

As compared with the previous week by the Commerce Department they were: Barley, 79,000 bushels, against 309,000 bushels; corn, 121,000, against 280,000; oats, 2,000, against 3,000; rye, 51,000, against 585,000; wheat, 615,000, against 2,170,000; Canadian grains in transit, 710,000 bushels, against 2,863,000 bushels; United States and Canadian wheat flour in transit, 15,000 barrels, against 245,000 barrels.

Famous Players Net Profit.

Net operating profit of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, including subsidiaries, for the first quarter of 1924 was $803,072, after deducting all charges and taxes. Frank Bailey, Vice Chairman of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company Board and Director of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has been elected a member of the finance committee of the latter company.

How to Invest $1,000 to Bring $60 a Year

"I HAVE $1,000 to invest. How can I place it to get 6% interest and still be assured of—

Complete safety of principal;
Prompt and sure payment of principal and interest in cash;

This is the problem many investors are facing today. They are anxious to secure a good interest rate for a long term of years, and they want to know just which of the many securities offered will be the best, most convenient and safest.

New issues of STRAUS BONDS now offered provide the answer to this question. The soundness of these bonds is proven by their record of 42 years without a single case of loss. They will give you safety, and $60 a year for every $1,000 invested; $500 will give you $30 yearly—or you may invest in any multiple of $100. Write or call today for our current offerings of safe 6% bonds. Ask for

Crime Wave Attains New Heights!!

There exists more dishonesty today than ever before in the history of the country!

There are more "trusted" employes causing losses now than ever before in the history of the country!

We are bonding more "trusted" employes than ever before in the history of the business.

We are paying more losses on "trusted" employes than ever before in our history.

We have dealt with more than 250,000 defaulters during our experience.

The number of losses in the last two years greatly exceeds any previous similar period and is getting worse.

With fifty-two million dollars in gross premium income in the last two years we earned no profit, indeed we lost over $700,000.00

If we have been unable to make money by receiving pay for carrying such risks, how can you afford to take the chance without pay?

In times like these every employer should insure his "trusted" employes, either with or without their knowledge. We write bonds without the knowledge of employes only because some employers desire it so. Enormous sums of money are lost in excess of the amount for which employes are bonded under such system. Therefore it is desirable to have the lives and records of "trusted" employes thoroughly investigated! We appreciate, however, that some employers do not like to indicate that some of their employes may be suspected, but the wise employer bonds his employes in the wise way, and has their habits and records investigated.

Some employes have been bonded for $5,000, and have stolen $200,000!!

LAST MINUTE RUSH OF TAX PAYMENTS

Fewer Defaults Noted, Which Is Attributed to Reduction in Sums Required.

MANY PAY FOR FULL YEAR

Offices In All Three Districts Are Kept Open Until Midnight.

Income tax payments in the four districts that make up New York City came in with the usual eleventh hour rush yesterday and the offices remained open until midnight to accommodate the payers. At all the offices it was said that the reduction applicable for the first time had made very little trouble. The collectors said there were many inquiries about it from persons who were not sure they understood its application correctly, but the attitude of the officials seemed to be that if these persons had not asked questions about the reduction they would have asked them about something else.

At the First District, which takes in Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, in charge of Collector John T. Rafferty, whose office is at 105 Court Street, Brooklyn, it was said that there seemed to be fewer persons defaulting on the June 15 payment than usual, and this was attributed to the lesser amount that was required when the reduction was taken advantage of.

At the Third District, which takes in Manhattan above Twenty-third Street, where Charles W. Anderson is Collector, it was said that the reduction was having the effect of causing many persons who intended to pay their tax in quarterly instalments to pay it in full for the year instead.

There was only one person to be attended to when midnight, the hour of closing in the third district office, in the Fuller Building, at 250 West 57th Street. The total quarterly payments received during the week at this office amounted to $17,156,687.00, and it was estimated that about $4,000,000 would come in the mail this morning. The total taken in yesterday was $7,630,806. The largest single payment of this amount was a check for $1,180,000.

In some of the offices is was said that not a few returns had come in with the reduction overlooked and the regular quarterly payment made. It was believed that the intention of these persons was to complete the payment of their tax in full with their next payment.

In all the offices the impression was that the new conditions had led to a more complete payment of what was due than ever before. None of them, however, was in a position to give definite figures as the returns were not all in yesterday, letters arriving today with yesterday's postmark being acceptable as on time. All the offices said they expected a big return in today's frist mail.

PROTEST TAX BOARD OF TREASURY STAFF

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The question of choosing members of the Board of Tax Appeals created under the new revenue law has already subjected the Treasury Department and the White House to pressure from two sides; on the one, those who protest against selecting the board from the Treasury staff, and, on the other, those who are convinced that this very course should be taken.

The objectors to making up the board from Treasury experts complain that the experts would be too deeply steeped in Treasury traditions and procedure to represent the taxpayer as well as the Government in the disputes that will come up. A protest has been made to President Coolidge by those who consider it unwise to compose the board of Treasury experts.

"The purpose of the board is to give the taxpayer the opportunity of a hearing before men whose ideas on the administration of the tax law are not prejudiced by the Administration point of view," said one of the contenders this afternoon.

The other group maintains that the Treasury experts are familiar with practically all of the intricate questions that will be involved, and have, at any rate, a fine groundwork in others which may arise, whereas if men unfamiliar with administration of tax laws are chosen, they will have to spend months in study before they can be efficient. It is also said that it will be extremely difficult to obtain thoroughly equipped men outside the Treasury who will be willing to work for the $7,500 salary provided.

Under the new law, the board is to be composed of not more than twenty-eight members for the first two years of its life, and seven members afterwards.

RESERVES OF COAL NEARLY DEPLETED

Consumers who accumulated reserves of coal in anticipation of a strike when the old union agreement expired, and who have since then been relying on their stocks most of the time, are at last nearing the bottom of their coal piles. As a result, while the coal producer's face is not exactly wreathed in smiles, he is beginning to perk up. The Coal Age says, and take a renewed interest. The long-awaited decision on rail rates to the Northwest has helped to clarify the atmosphere somewhat, "though the usual howl of protest is coming from the interests on the losing side," according to the review, which continues:

"While there is as yet no noticeable recession from the policy of curtailment that has prevailed for some time in most industrial lines, due in some cases to overproduction in the latter part of last year and the early part of this year, with consequent heavy carry-over, basic conditions are pronounced as sound. Industrial leaders, who give assurances that an industrial revival may be expected by Autumn. The usual cautious policy of business during a Presidential year has hit the coal industry particularly hard, but the passage and signing of the tax-reduction bill, as well as the adjournment of Congress, undoubtedly will prove of benefit in hastening the expected upturn. Meanwhile, the clearing out of surplus stocks in all lines will insure the basis for a lasting revival of the industry."

The publication says that the lull foreshadowed in the anthracite market is now an actuality, demand having slackened and movement tapering off correspondingly. Circular prices were advanced June 1 by the companies and most of the large independents, the increases, which were not uniform, ranging from 10 cents to 20 cents on the sizes above pea, 10 cents being the predominant rate of advance. Advance bookings by the large companies are taken to indicate a marked renewal of activity in the Autumn.

Bituminous coal production took a tumble by reason of the holiday during the week ending May 31, when, according to the Geological Survey, 6,699,000 net tons were produced, a falling off of 464,000 tons from the output of the week ended May 24. Anthracite output likewise declined sharply, for the same reasons, to 1,294,000 net tons, compared with 1,850,000 tons during the week before.

Kentucky Securities Dividend.

The Kentucky Securities Corporation has declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable July 15 to stock of record June 23, and a dividend of 1 per cent. on the common stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 23.

Southwestern Bell Shows Gain.

The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company for the quarter ended March 31 shows net income of $2,249,533, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.49 a share earned on the $75,000,000 outstanding common stock. Net for the same quarter of 1923 was $2,322,807.

2 ROADS' PROJECTS PUT AT $36,641,477

Union Pacific and Pere Marquette Will Make Big Improvements This Year.

The Union Pacific and Pere Marquette Railroads yesterday made public their budgets for improvements during 1924, totaling $36,641,477.

According to Carl R. Gray, President of the Union Pacific, that railroad will spend $29,510,447 for extensions, new equipment and new shops.

Frank H. Alfred of the Pere Marquette announced that his road would expend $6,131,000. This program, while not as large as that of 1923, affects every division on the system.

The Union Pacific's plans include the construction of forty-four miles of second main line through Boise, from Orchard to Nampa, Idaho; a ninety-eight-mile line from Rogerson, Idaho, to Wells, Nev., a thirty-mile line from Crane to Burns, Ore., and a seventeen-mile extension northerly from Fort Collins, Col., to serve the newly developed oil fields.

New equipment includes twenty mallet and ten 2-10-2 type freight locomotives, and five passenger mountain type locomotives, 500 steel tank cars, ninety-three caboose cars and work equipment.

$49,769,002 CASH ON DEBTS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Both Great Britain and the Republic of Finland selected today to make the larger part of interest payments on their so-called wartime indebtedness to the United States in cash. The Governments had the option of making payment in cash, Liberty bonds or certain of the Treasury certificates of indebtedness. Great Britain had made previous payments of interest and principal in Liberty bonds, as she had been able to purchase them below par and effect a saving.

Secretary Mellon announced today that the instalment of interest from the British Government, amounting to $68,655,000, due June 15, under the terms of the Debt Settlement act approved Feb. 28 1923, had been received. The payment consisted of $19,000,000 of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, series TJ 1924, maturing June 16, 1924, which were accepted at par, and $49,655,000 in cash.

The Republic of Finland also made its semiannual payment today, according to the terms of the agreement approved March 12. The total payment amounted to $134,325 and consisted of $20,250 face amount of second Liberty 4¼ per cent. bonds, with accrued interest amounting to $72.50, and $114,002.50 in cash.

1,030,000 Warrants Exchanged.

One million thirty thousand of the Lehigh Valley Coal warrants have been turned in to the Girard Trust Company in exchange for certificates, it was reported yesterday. The time for the exchange expired yesterday afternoon. About 182,000 warrants are still outstanding.

Approves Baltimore & Ohio Plan.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Authority was granted to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad by the Interstate Commerce Commission today to issue $4,160,000 of refunding and general mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, to be pledged from time to time as collateral security for notes.

Seeks Power to Issue Securities.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Maryland & Delaware Coast Railway today applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to issue 1,500 shares of capital stock without nominal or par value and $350,000 of mortgage bonds, of which $100,000 are to be sold.

Bank Closes in Lidgerwood, N. D.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 16.—The First National Bank of Lidgerwood, N. D., closed today and a bank examiner was placed in charge, it was announced here. The institution of which Miss Mary C. Movios is President, was capitalized at $50,000, with a surplus of $25,000.

COTTON RECOVERS AFTER EARLY BREAK

SPOT PRICE DOWN 15 POINTS

After an early loss of a quarter of a cent, reports that weather in some parts of the Southwest was too hot for late planted cotton brought a recovery in the market yesterday. The crop obtained so poor a start last month that sentiment is easily influenced by the least adverse news. Weather as a whole continued the best this season and in decided contrast with conditions during the greater part of June last year. Strength in the wheat and stock markets led to buying of several blocks of cotton and late months regained more than the early loss in later trading. July proved less active yesterday, that month closing at a decline of 11, compared to an advance of 11 points on January.

Liverpool reopened after its three-day holiday with a slightly lower range of prices. Following the closing abroad on Thursday, a sharp upturn of half a cent had occurred on this side and this failure of the foreign market to respond brought selling pressure at the beginning of the session here. For the fourth time in the last six weeks, the week started with a sharp opening break that was followed by a subsequent recovery. After selling around 26.10 at one time Saturday, October touched 26.55 on the call. Contracts appeared to come mainly from local and professional sources, cotton being absorbed by small outside orders aggregating a considerable volume. After the first rush of liquidation, selling fan its course quickly and later buying started a slow recovery as the day advanced. Over-Sunday weather remained favorable in nearly all sections with high temperatures west of the river. Hot weather brought adverse crop accounts from certain parts of Texas, where young cotton is not far advanced. Owing to the extensive replanting made necessary last month, the plant is in such varied stages of growth that it becomes virtually impossible for the same character of weather to benefit all fields.

With more than half the reporting stations in Texas showing temperatures from 100 to 114 the last three days sufficient covering developed to bring a forty point upturn in the October position. Early sellers took back contracts and demand was increased by several lots of cotton taken for speculative account. This ran October above 26 cents though July ruled relatively quieter as well as easier than the latter part of the week. Interests that brought July from 200 to 300 points over October last week supplied contracts at a difference of 275 to 290 points and New Orleans ran as much as 40 points under July here, compared with 5 and 10 points a few days ago. Exports for two days aggregated 18,000 bales, the same as last year, while weekly shipments from this country continue to average about 50,000 bales.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

Cattle Markets at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Hog prices were generally steady, with the general average five cents higher, the quality being a factor. Shipping orders were the largest in nearly a month. Lambs dropped 50 cents, with best Idahos down to $16.50. Receipts of 21,000 were in excess of the demand. Yearlings were off 25 cents, with a top of $14.25. Aged sheep were scarce and steady. Beef steers averaged 25 cents lower, with the top $11.15 and best yearlings $10.60. Receipts were 26,000. The dressed beef trade was slow.

Public Service Corporation of N. J.

According to officials of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, a large number of holders of the general mortgage 5s have already accepted the offer to exchange these bonds for the new 5½ per cent. bonds to be issued in connection with the merging of the Public Service Electric and Public Service Gas Companies. Bondholders have until July 1 to make the exchange.

UPWARD MOVEMENT STILL ON IN WHEAT

Profit-Taking Sales by Recent Buyers Check a Runaway Rise in the Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—It came near being a runaway market in wheat and, had it not been for immense profit taking by traders who have been active on the buying side of late, the finish would have been materially higher than the net gains of 1¼@1¾ cents. All deliveries sold at a new high on the crop, and it was not until near the last that there was any recession of consequence, as each bulge carried values into new ground. The pronounced strength in Liverpool and in Winnipeg helped the local market, Liverpool gaining 1¼@2d, and Winnipeg 2@2¾c, for the day.

An outstanding feature in the situation was the decrease of around 1,500,000 bushels in supplies on ocean passage, bringing the total down to 65,000,000 bushels, or 9,000,000 bushels less than a month ago, in the face of world's shipments of 67,000,000 bushels during that period. This was construed as indicating an immense consumption. Fred Uhlman, who returned today from a four months' trip in Europe, said that the Government June report changed the entire situation abroad.

A local expert, who is going through Kansas, estimates that State will have 115,000,000 to 120,000,000 bushels, compared with 113,000,000 suggested by the Government. So far the extreme hot weather has apparently done but little damage in Kansas. Wichita received a car of new No. 2 mixed Winter from Oklahoma—the first arrival of new grain for the season—that tested nearly 60 pounds per bushel. Harvesting will start in Southern Kansas within a week.

In the visible supply there was a decrease of 1,127,000 bushels, making the total 38,788,000, compared with 39,915,000 the previous week, and 29,718,000 last year.

Primary arrivals for the day were 919,000 bushels; week ago, 949,000; last year, 987,000. Shipments were 486,000 bushels; week ago, 398,000; last year, 475,000.

Some of the local bulls on corn who were out in the country over Sunday found that the outlook for the new crop was better than they expected, and their sales of December made a reaction of ⅞ cent from the high point of the day. The finish was ¼@1¼ cents higher. July and December sold at a new high on the crop while September equalled the old high made some weeks ago.

Weather conditions were somewhat more favorable for the crop over the West, and there is a disposition in some quarters to look for a revival in the Eastern cash demand, as Duluth is said to have sold the last of its stock.

The visible decreased 728,000 bushels for the week and is down to 11,150,000 bushels, against 11,878,000 a week ago, and 4,332,000 last year.

Primary arrivals for the day were 1,105,000 bushels; week ago, 908,000; last year, 712,000, and shipments, 421,000 bushels; week ago, 575,000; last year, 305,000.

July oats closed at ¼ cent lower, selling presumably for a local bull who was hedging against cash grain taken in on May contracts. Deferred deliveries were ¼ cent higher at the last.

Rye gained 1¼ cents, selling at a new high on the crop. Little was heard regarding export business. Private reports suggest a crop of 11,000,000 bushels of rye in Canada, or 9,000,000 less than last year.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Grains Rise to New Highs—Sugar Boosted—Dairy Products and Cotton Sag.

Substantial improvement in the contract grains, following higher foreign markets, good weather and speculative buying, had a salutary effect on the spot options, wheat, corn and flour all rising to new high points for the year. Wheat rose 5¾ cents, to $1.33; corn, 1¼ cents, to $1.02½, and flour, Minneapolis patents, 15 points, to $6.90 cents. American Sugar Refining Company made another advance in sugar as they did a week ago, the market being quoted at 6.00 cents. Tin, copper and lead were stronger and higher, while butter, eggs and spot cotton declined slightly.

TELLS OF RAILWAY MERGER PROGRESS

Commission Perfecting Arrangements for Unification of Facilities, McManamy Says.

LAWS AIDING CARRIERS

Success of Legislation Depends on Attitude of Roads Themselves, Convention Hears.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—Plans for the consolidation of all railroads of the United States into a limited number of systems, for the unification of general railway facilities, and for the stabilizing of railroad credit by proper rate making, control of excess revenue and issuance of securities, are being perfected by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This was announced here today by Frank McManamy, a member of the commission, during an address before the convention of the American Railway Association, mechanical division.

Mr. McManamy said that Federal control of the railroads during the World War had demonstrated the need for unified use of equipment and facilities and of uniform standards of service and operation.

"Railroads are primarily public highways and only incidentally common carriers," he said, "and we must bear in mind that it is the duty of the Government to see that adequate transportation is provided, just as much as to construct and maintain public highways, and that it has only delegated the duty of furnishing transportation to private corporations.

"Those who advocate a hands-off policy on the part of the Government and who simply repeat the slogan 'let the railroads alone,' forget that the effect of the greater part of legislation has been to help the railroads if not the corporations operating them.

"So far as the railroad as a public utility is concerned, a study of the legislation from the first land grant down to the present Transportation act shows that it has been the policy of the Government to be helpful to the railroads even to the extent of protecting them from themselves. I think that the phrase, 'Help the railroads along' would be more representative of the effect of legislation."

The railroads," Mr. McManamy continued, "like every other human agency, are always on trial, but so long as they perform with efficiency and economy the functions for which they were created, they will continue to exist in their present or in an improved form. The success of the present laws depends largely upon the attitude of the carriers themselves. They must show in practice that they realize that they are performing a public function. They must willingly agree to cooperative arrangements in order to promote the general transportation needs."

The human factor is one of the most vitally important today in the successful operation of railroads, L. W. Baldwin, President of the Missouri Pacific Railway, told the convention. He strongly urged the establishment of schools for apprentices and other railroad employes, sympathetic cooperation and training, by superior officers, and positive assurance of a point of contact between employes and management so as to insure a good morale and unified, efficient endeavor on the part of all.

That the railroads of the country, during 1923, purchased materials of all kinds costing a total of $1,738,703,000 while capital expenditures for equipment totaled $1,034,000,000, was announced by R. H. Aishton of Chicago, President of the association. He spoke before the opening session of the Purchases and Stores Division.

"The railroads during 1923," said Mr. Aishton, "bought 28.4 per cent. of the bituminous coal produced in the United States in that period; 5.2 per cent. of the anthracite, and one-fifth of the fuel oil, at a cost of $617,800,000. They purchased 15 per cent. of the lumber products of the country for $232,511,000, and iron and steel products for $464,955,000."

Mr. Aishton urged the purchasing men to save a pound of coal for every thousand gross ton miles, as a first objective in an economy program. This, he said, would save $3,165,000 a year. "That pound of coal," he added, "can be saved the first month, if you really set yourselves to the task."

PRINTERS ELECT PRESIDENT

INDIANAPOLIS, June 16.—James M. Lynch of Syracuse, N. Y., has been elected President of the International Typographical Union to succeed Charles P. Howard of Detroit, according to an unofficial count of the election board made public today. Lynch's majority, was given as 2,629 out of approximately 56,000 votes cast.

Lynch, who was President of the organization from 1900 to 1913, swept the entire "administration" ticket into office with him. Other officers elected and their majorities, according to the unofficial count are:

Seth Brown, Los Angeles, defeated George F. Bean, New York, for First Vice President by 1,658; Austin Hewson, New York, defeated William R. Trotter, Vancouver, B. C., for Second Vice President by 3,630 and J. W. Hays, Minneapolis, was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer over William A. Aldrich, Chicago, by 5,996.

Other officers elected included:

American Federation of Labor Delegates—Frank Morrison, Chicago; Max S. Hayes, Cleveland; T. W. McCullough, Omaha; John C. Harding, Chicago, and William Young, Philadelphia.

Union Printers' Home—Joe M. Johnson, Washington.

Auditor—Fred Barker, Spokane Falls, Washington.

KLAN AIDS NEGRO CHURCH.

Delegation Leaves $50 Gift With Trenton Congregation.

TRENTON, N. J., June 16.—Alarm and indignation which spread through the congregation of St. Phillips Baptist Church, a negro house of worship at Broad Street Park last night when a delegation of Klansmen entered in the course of the service changed to astonishment when one of the intruding band, announcing himself as "Mr. Hobson, Kleagle of Mercer county," said the county klan had donated $50 toward the church's building fund.

In an address to the congregation, this man denied the Klan was antagonistic to negroes. He said: "We ask you to accept this contribution to encourage Protestant Christianity among negroes."

Announces Greek Cabinet Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Greek Legation was today advised from Athens that in addition to the Minister of War, General Condylis, whose resignation already had been announced, Foreign Minister Roussos and Minister of Finance Taouderos have resigned. The Prime Minister, A. Papanastassiou has taken over the Ministry of Finance; General Pangalos has become Minister of War and M. Aravantinos Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Cabinet changes, it was said, would not alter either domestic or foreign policies. A Minister to the United States will be announced soon.

TERMS FRANKS SLAYERS MERELY 'SMART ALECKS'

Alienist for Prosecution Contradicts 'Abnormality' Theory of Defense Experts.

CHICAGO, June 16.—After learning that alienists for the defense of Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb, awaiting trial for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks, had declared that the two students were psychologically abnormal and therefore should not be hanged for their crime, William O. Krohn, a psychiatrist retained by the State, gave out his theory as to "the youths' mentality."

"Smart alecks," he termed them, saying "their ailments, minus long, jawbreaking legal phrases, are nothing more than that which corrupts bad little boys and causes their parents to spank them." He stated that he did not believe being a "smart aleck" was sufficient to keep a murderer from the gallows.

Defense alienists today continued their intricate physical and psychological tests of the youths, the result of which will be presented to their attorneys for use in the trial on Aug. 4.

Investigation of alleged brutalities by the police in examining two of Franks's Harvard school teachers before Leopold and Loeb confessed was started today by a council committee appointed last week by Mayor Dever. Neither Mott K. Mitchell, who brought the charges against the police, nor Walter Wilson, the other private school instructor once held in the case, was present when the hearing opened.

REDUCE GASOLINE PRICES.

Dealers Act in South Dakota, Iowa and Minnesota Towns.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 16.—A reduction of one cent in the price of gasoline was made today by independent dealers in every city in the State except Sioux Falls, J. H. Cumbow, President of the South Dakota Independent Oil Dealers' Association, announced.

The reduction is not occasioned by the State sale of gasoline at reduced prices, Mr. Cumbow said, "but is made possible by a decline in the spot market." He charged that the State is losing money by selling gasoline at 18 and 18½ cents.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, June 16.—A reported agreement among gasoline dealers involved in a price war failed to materialize today, and gasoline was selling at 13 cents a gallon.

WINONA, Minn., June 16.—Gasoline sold at 12.9 cents a gallon at all filling stations here today, as a result of a price war. Four reductions have been made in the last week. The price before the cutting began was 20.9 cents.

BUTLER SCORES LYNCHING.

Calls the Intolerant Uncivilized in Message to Negroes.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Those persons who persist in manifesting intolerance toward men and women of a race, a color or a creed in which they themselves do not believe are essentially uncivilized, said Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in a letter of felicitation to the Negro National Educational Congress, which opened here today.

"Those who would advance civilization," Dr. Butler wrote, "must labor in season and out of season to resist and check that persecuting tendency which is a mark of barbarism and which manifests itself now in lynching, now in prohibition and now in the cowardly and unpatriotic activities of the Ku Klux Klan.

"Every liberal will wage war on this spirit of persecution until a sound and truly liberal education drives it from the human heart."

HENSLEY TO FLY BACK HERE

Man Who Carried Times to Nebraska Prepares for Return.

COLUMBUS, Neb., June 16.—Major William Hensley, commander of the army air service station at Mitchel Field, New York, will hop off tomorrow, weather permitting, on a return flight to New York, following his dawn to dusk flight yesterday from Mitchel Field to Columbus to visit his parents, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Hensley.

Accompanied by Lieutenant M. L. Elliott, operations officer at Mitchel Field, Major Hensley arrived here at 7:23 o'clock last night after leaving at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning, and making three stops en route. A standard observation type DH-4 B plane was used.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—General Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice President, expressed his gratitude today to United States Senator Walter E. Edge for the support extended to him at the Cleveland convention.

The New Jersey delegation, led by Senator Edge, voted for Dawes on the first ballot. Senator Edge, at his home at Ventnor, received the following telegram from General Dawes, dated Evanston, Ill., June 15:

"Am very proud of the support of New Jersey under your leadership, and will do the best I can to deserve your compliment. My wife joins me in remembrances to you and your charming wife."

UNION BANKER IN CAR CRASH

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 16.—In an automobile collision here this morning Louis Berman of 45 Townsend Street, Port Chester, driver of one of the cars, sustained injuries of the chest and was taken to the Greenwich Hospital. His father, Hyman Berman, aged 70, was seriously injured and is reported to be in a critical condition.

Abraham S. Boroff of 878 East 176th Street, New York, driving the other car, was held in $1,000 bail pending the outcome of the victim's injuries.

Mr. Boroff is President of the International Union Bank of New York and is also General Secretary and Treasurer of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, located at 3 West Sixteenth Street, New York.

DIPLOMAT'S AID FINED.

Speeder's Courtesy Card From Coolidge Fails to Move Jersey Judge.

Special to The New York Times.

EGG HARBOR, N. J., June 16.—C. Diamantopulos, Secretary to the Chargé d'Affaires of Greece at Washington, arraigned here on a speeding charge yesterday, displayed his credentials and also showed a courtesy card signed by President Coolidge. Magistrate William Mischlich, however, fined him $27.50.

Diamantopulos, considerably rattled, left the courtroom vowing he would see President Coolidge and compel the return of the fine.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

$250,000 IN IMPROVEMENTS

Attorney Buys Two Apartment Houses in the Inwood Section, Valued at $210,000.

The Depew Building at 487, 489 and 491 Fifth Avenue and the connecting building, 12 East Forty-second Street, have been acquired by Wallach Brothers, clothiers and men's furnishers, through Anton L. Trunk as broker, for a long term of years. The lease was made with Frederick Brown, and takes out of the market one of the choicest holdings in the Grand Central zone.

The Depew Building is a seven-story-and-basement structure, with a frontage of 51 feet on Fifth Avenue, and together with the Forty-second Street Building, which has a frontage of 22 feet, a six-story building, gives to Wallach Brothers control of a land area of 7,300 square feet.

The whole property is to be modernized and improved at an expenditure of about $250,000, and after the work is finished Wallach Brothers will occupy the store, basement, and first and second floors in the Fifth Avenue building and the entire six floors in the Forty-second Street building.

The property has had an interesting history from the real estate standpoint, inasmuch as it is owned by the August Pottier Estate, which, five years ago, leased it to the National Drug Stores Corporation, which in turn sold its lease shortly after obtaining it to Frederick Brown, who has controlled the property up to the present time.

Buys Two Apartments in Inwood Section

Joseph P. Friedman purchased from Shirlen Realty Company, Inc., the two apartment houses known as 33-35 and 37-39 Vermilyea Avenue, near Academy Street, in the Inwood section of Manhattan. The buildings have five stories and basement, and are each erected on a plot 50 by 150 feet, and are built 106 feet. The buildings have been recently erected, they have an annual rental of approximately $33,000, and were held at $210,000.

Isidor H. Kempner & Sons, Inc., resold the four five-story triple flats, on a plot 100 by 75 feet, situated at 625-631 West Forty-eighth Street, near the new transatlantic city-owned piers. The property was bought by the operators last month through Cyrille Carreau, from the estate of Rosa Lyck, and now sold to Elizabeth Signer as intends holding for investment. The Kempners have recently purchased several pieces in this vicinity, principally along Tenth Avenue.

The Folsom Corporation sold for the Ninth Street Company to a client 233 East Ninth Street, a six-story brick tenement, on a plot 45 by 68.11. The property was held at $55,000.

Levine & Levine, through Gettinger & Weinman, have sold 1,480 Amsterdam Avenue, a plot of 40 by 100 feet, improved with an apartment renting for $18,500. The property sold for $115,000.

Amsterdam Avenue Corner Sold.

The five-story flat with stores at 701 Amsterdam Avenue, northeast corner of Ninety-fourth Street, on lot 25 by 52 feet, was sold through A. V. Amy & Co. for the Mansco Realty Corporation, Henry Mansfield, President, to David and Henrietta Rothschild. It was held at $100,000.

Dr. Henry L. Crehan has purchased 340 East Forty-ninth Street, a five-story flat, 25 by 100, from the Benoia Realty Corporation. Title to this property, located in the rapidly improving Turtle Bay section, has not passed in seventeen years. William G. Chipley Jr. was broker in the sale.

MALBA DWELLING SOLD.

Concert Artist Buys Block Front for Occupancy.

The Malba Estates Corporation, Champ & Dasey, sales directors, sold at Malba-on-the-Sound, North Shore, L. I., the large new red brick Colonial residence, occupying the block front at Hillcourt and Keenan Place, to Allan Rogers, the concert artist. Mr. Rogers and family will occupy as his all-year home.

H. Richter & Co. of Rockaway Park sold for Mrs. Sprague 189 Beach 113th Street, on a plot 40 by 100, to a client; also sold for J. Abrahamson the house at 175 Beach 130th Street, on a plot 60 by 100, to a client; also sold for the estate of W. C. Baker the southeast corner of Washington Avenue and Beach 142d Street to a client.

A WEST SIDE PROJECT.

Builders Buy West End Avenue Corner of Five Lots.

The Alliance Realty Company, Clark G. Dalley, President, purchased through Leroy Coventry, as broker, a plot containing about five lots at the southeast corner of Ninety-ninth Street and West End Avenue. The sellers were W. H. Reid, Daniel H. Jackson, Irving Judis, Samuel Elsman, C. R. Clifford, Agnes Leffler, Adolf Worm and A. E. and W. H. Hall. This part of West End Avenue has recently displayed considerable activity, new fifteen-story apartment houses having been erected during the past year at 105th Street and on two corners of 103d Street. It is understood that plans are being drawn for a new building to be erected upon the site just sold.

PRIVATE HOUSE DEALS.

West Side Buyer to Occupy Dwelling Held at $55,000.

Mrs. H. H. McLewee sold the four-story and basement private house at 47 West Seventy-fourth Street to a client of Charles K. Clisby & Co., Inc., for occupancy. The house was held at $55,000.

The Folsom Corporation sold for Charles Stuart Folsom to a client 229 East 123d Street, a three-story and basement brick dwelling on a plot 21.8 by 100.11 feet. The property was held at $15,000. It has been in the seller's family for over forty years.

Buys Roof Garden Apartment.

Worthington Whitehouse, Inc., has leased for Arthur H. Griswold a roof-garden apartment at 17 East Eighty-fourth Street to Michael M. Van Beuren of Newport.

ADDS TO HOLDINGS.

L. Montefiore Levy Buys West Side Plot.

Fred Grasmuck, a retired lawyer, sold to L. Montefiore Levy 528 West Forty-fifth Street, a five-story building on a lot 25 feet in width by 100 feet in depth on both sides.

This is the first sale of this property in the past twenty years. This squares out Mr. Levy's adjoining holdings and gives him a plot with a frontage of 100 feet in width by 100 feet in depth, available for any future development. There has been considerable activity on this block. The brokers in this transaction were Charles Raskin and N. Wernicke.

$37,160 for Whitestone Lots.

The Jere Johnson Jr. Company, Fred B. Snow, auctioneer, sold last Saturday the Dimock property at Whitestone, L. I., which has been owned by the Dimock family for more than half a century and subdivided into 162 lots, for a total of $37,160.

Lots on Parsons Boulevard brought from $325 to $600; on Eighth Avenue, from $285 to $450; on Fifth Avenue, from $300 to $460; on Ninth Street, from $250 to $400, and on Tenth and Eleventh Streets (not opened as yet), from $110 to $170.

Buys Bay Ridge Show Place.

The Bay Ridge home of George Andrews, between Seventy-seventh and Seventy-eighth Streets and Colonial Boulevard, has been purchased by Dr. Frederic C. Elliott, X-ray specialist, who will use the ground floor for his office. The house has thirty-two rooms and is built in the centre of the block, with a 200-foot front and a depth of 225 feet.

Bridge Plaza Site Sold.

Clark T. Chambers, Inc., sold for the Foley estate the northeast corner of Bridge Plaza South and Hunter Avenue, the westerly end of the Jackson Avenue block. It consists of a plot 10 by 58 feet. The purchaser is the Bruce Holding Corporation, represented by Trencher & Bernbaum.

Heights Apartment Deal.

Bella Hauser sold to Walter A. Morris the six-story apartment arranged in four and five room suites at 526 and 528 West 158th Street, adjoining Broadway. The property was held at $125,000 and rents for $18,000. Thayer, Saunders & Co. were the brokers.

West New Brighton Lots Sold.

Cornelius G. Kolff, Inc., in conjunction with Adelaide Irving, has sold for the Kels Realty Company five lots, 25 by 100 feet each, on Amelia Court and Kissell Avenue, West New Brighton, to the Henderson Estate Company of New York. This was a multiple listing sale.

Realty Notes.

The New York Title and Mortgage Company has made thirteen loans, aggregating $6,000,000, on upper Manhattan properties during the last week.

Hamilton Iselin & Co. report that they placed the loan of $140,000 with the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank on the Hotel Princeton at 116-118 West Forty-fifth Street, recently announced.

"Canadian National" Way

DIFFERENT from all the trips you've made, the great "Canadian National" transcontinental tour takes you through the highest Canadian Rockies at a low roadbed altitude.

All your life you'll remember glorious Jasper National Park, the largest in America, its mountains, gorges and glaciers; then snowy Mt. Robson, 13,068 feet, beside the mystic Skeena to Prince Rupert; next the smooth scenic seas of the "inside passage" to Vancouver and by rail through the mountains to Jasper—completing the Triangle Tour of British Columbia.

Ask for tourist fares, resort rates and illustrated booklets. Liberal stopover privileges include Jasper Park Lodge, a glorious playground resort for 350 guests amid majestic mountains. (Rates $6 up. American Plan.)

SMITH NAMES BOARD IN GARMENT DISPUTE

BOTH SIDES ARE PLEASED

Governor Smith announced yesterday the personnel of the advisory commission he appointed in an effort to forestall a strike of 50,000 garment workers. Representatives of both the employers and the union expressed confidence in the commission and said they were ready to lay their troubles before it.

The commission includes Bernard L. Shientag, State Industrial Commissioner, George Gordon Battle, lawyer; Lindsay Rogers of the Department of Political Science of Columbia University, Colonel Herbert Lehman of Lehman Brothers, and Arthur D. Wolf, Vice President of the Chatham and Phenix Bank.

In announcing the personnel of the commission Governor Smith wrote to Charles Sussman, President of the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, and George Jablow, President of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, asking their cooperation. He reiterated that the commission's recommendations, "while not binding on any of the parties in interest, will, of course, have the force of public opinion behind them."

"The hearsings of the commission will commence tomorrow, Tuesday morning, June 17, 1924, at 10 A. M., in the City Hall, New York City," the Governor wrote. "It is most essential that your organization attend and participate in these hearings in order that you may present such facts to the commission as you deem necessary to enable them to obtain a comprehensive view of the entire situation. I strongly urge you to do this, because I believe with the cooperation of all interested in the situation a solution may be reached which will save a good deal of suffering, and monetary loss as well."

Commenting on the communication, Mr. Sussman said:

"We shall be very willing to lay all the facts before the commission, because we believe there can be no adequate solution of the situation until we have stated our side of the case. As regards the personnel of the commission appointed by Governor Smith, we feel that they are a body of very representative men."

Morris Hillquit, counsel for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said:

"The union has complete confidence in the ability and integrity of the commission. I think it well chosen and sufficiently representative, unbiased and competent to suit all parties concerned. We will be represented at the hearing at the City Hall tomorrow morning."

SARATOGA

GEYSER

Geyser Water, as bottled under state supervision, is naturally charged with carbonic acid gas and valuable mineral salts. A delightful drink, Geyser Water, because of its mineral content, is also a great aid to activity. For years doctors have recommended it for feeble digestion, sluggish liver, slow circulation—and for general health.
